COMMISSIONERS OF QUARANTINE OF NEW YORK, AND REPORT OF HEALTH OFFICER.

STATE OF NEW YORK :

OFFICE OF COMMISSIONERS OF QUARANTINE, }
No. 71 BROADWAY, NEW YORK, December 31, 1891. }

To the Legislature :

The Board of Commissioners of Quarantine herewith submit their annual report.

Two thousand seven hundred and thirty immigrants, who had been exposed to typhoid fever and small-pox, were detained on Hoffman and Swinburne islands for observation. No new cases developed, however, and at the expiration of the probationary period they were discharged.

The administration building on Swinburne island has been newly furnished with carpets, oilcloths, matting, rugs, furniture, beds, bedding, etc., and new matting placed in the corridor of the hospital.

Six wards in the hospital have also been furnished with new wire-woven spring iron bedsteads, washstands, chairs, toilet sets, etc.

Five hundred feet of plank walk have been laid, and the property is in good condition.

On the twenty-ninth day of October last, the hospital ship "Samuel D. Carlton" was damaged by fire, communicated from a burning building adjacent to the dock of the Brooklyn Water Front and Dry Dock Company in the city of Brooklyn, where she had been moored for the winter.

The "Carlton" was insured against loss of fire in the sum of $10,000, under a policy issued by the Liverpool and London and Globe Fire Insurance Company. Of this amount the sum of $2,000 was paid by said company, which was sufficient to repair all the damages sustained and put the ship in as good condition as before.

The general health of the port during the past year has been excellent, and compares very favorably with former years.

FINANCIAL STATEMENT.

Balance in bank to credit of the Board of Commissioners of Quarantine on account of the crematory fund, December 31, 1890.....	$1,258 99
Less disbursements	175 00
Balance on hand	$1,083 99

The commissioners also have in bank to their credit the sum of $315.30, derived from sale of old material.

From Dr. William M. Smith, Health Officer, the commissioners have received the sum of $469.47, being the amount (reported by him) of the excess of fees received by him as such Health Officer during the past year over and above the amount of his salary, together with the other salaries and expenses required by law to be paid by him out of said fees, pursuant to section 53 of an act, entitled "An act to amend section fifty-three of chapter three hundred and fifty-eight of the laws of eighteen hundred and sixty-three, entitled An act establishing a quarantine and defining the qualifications, duties and powers of the health officer for the harbor and port of New York," passed March 22, 1888.

All the property of the State in the custody of the Commissioners of Quarantine is in good condition and ready for such service as may be required.

The details of the repairs and improvements made to the Quarantine establishment during the past year are embraced in the annual report of the commission created by chapter 270 of the Laws of 1888, to which reference is hereby respectfully made.

Daily meetings of the commissioners were held during the quarantine season, and at such other times as became necessary.

The office of the commissioners has been open on every business day throughout the year.

In the annual report of the Health Officer (appended herewith) will be found an interesting summary of the workings of this department during the past twelve months.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

REPORT OF HEALTH OFFICER.

HEALTH OFFICER'S DEPARTMENT, }
QUARANTINE, S. I., February 3, 1892. }

To the Board of Commissioners of Quarantine:

GENTLEMEN.—In conformity with the law I herewith submit my annual report for the year 1891.

The number of vessels from foreign ports inspected during the year was 5,590.

From domestic ports south of Cape Henlopen there were 1,867 vessels given pratique between April thirtieth and November first.

The number of vessels inspected in 1890 was 5,758; this is 168 more than the number inspected in 1891.

The number of foreign vessels inspected from January 1, to September 1, 1890, was much greater than the number inspected during the same period in 1891.

Vessels from domestic ports inspected, were twenty-five in excess of those made in 1890.

The number of immigrants from transatlantic ports inspected during the year, was 445,290.

The number of cabin passengers arriving during the same period, was 105,023.

The total number of immigrants that have been inspected at the New York Quarantine since January 1, 1880, is 4,455,690; an average annually for the twelve years past, of 371,307. There were 73,697 more immigrants inspected in 1891 than in 1890.

The number of cases of small-pox taken from vessels was seventeen.

Of yellow fever there has not been a case admitted to hospital or found on incoming vessels during the year. Indeed there has not been a patient admitted to the Swinburne Island Hospital since October, 1889. Such an exemption from the diseases to which that hospital is devoted has not previously occurred during the nearly twelve years of the present Health Officer's administration. This is exceptional in the whole history of the New York Quarantine. It is not believed to be accidental, but attributable to the management to which I have referred in previous reports, though its results have never been so conspicuous and satisfactory as during the past year. A single sentence will describe the measures and management which have secured these results, namely, the quarantine of vessels has begun at the port of departure. In other words, vessels that ply between New York and yellow-fever-infected ports, or that touch at such ports, are required to take their cargoes at a distance from the wharves, and persons on board, except the master and executive officer, are prevented from going ashore at such ports under penalty of detention or the expense of discharging cargo "in quarantine" on arrival at the port of New York.

Section 6 of chapter 534 of the Laws of 1865, declares that "all such quarantinable diseases except yellow fever, cholera and typhus fever and small-pox shall be removed to the emigration hospital, Castle Garden or Ward's island." Castle Garden and Ward's island ceased to exist April 19, 1889, as an entrepot for immigrants, and as a hospital for their care and treatment. The reception hospital for immigrants at the "barge office," under charge of the federal government, has taken the place of the reception hospital at Castle Garden. The sick of scarlatina, diphtheria and measles have been received at the reception hospital at the barge office, as the sick of those diseases were at Castle Garden under the administration of the State commissioners. From the reception hospital the State commissioners removed the immigrants sick of contagious, as other diseases were, to a well-equipped and extensive hospital on Ward's island.

The State law requires the Commissioners of Emigration to receive into their hospitals all alien passengers for whom bonds have been given or commutation paid at the port of New York, who shall have been affected with any contagious or infectious diseases other than yellow fever, and sent to such hospital by the authority of the Health Officer. They shall defray the expenses of such patients out of the moneys received by them on account of bonds or commutation.

The necessity of more liberal accommodations for immigrants sick of contagious as well as other diseases than the reception hospital at the barge office afforded was apparent from the first; and it is believed that the hospital at Ellis island will be inadequate for the proper isolation of the sick of the contagious diseases mentioned, and the accommodation necessary for the care and treatment of immigrants who are ill of non-contagious diseases.

Thus far the federal authorities have arranged with the New York city board of health for the care of contagious diseases, other than small-pox, at a per diem cost for each person of one dollar and fifty cents, and, in case of death, the payment of a stipulated sum to defray the expense of burial. The sick of non-contagious diseases are accommodated at the Long Island College Hospital at an average per diem cost of eighty cents.

The medical officer of the federal emigration department at this port, Dr. J. A. Tonner, desired to be relieved of the difficulty which the care of the sick of the several contagious diseases referred to caused, and to have them removed from the steamers or other vessels to the Quarantine hospital.

There are several insurmountable objections to this under present circumstances. First. The law declares that such quarantinable diseases as scarlatina, diphtheria and measles "shall be removed to the Emigration hospital." Second. The expense of providing for the sick of the diseases named at the Quarantine hospital would be greatly in excess of what it is at such a hospital as the New York Contagious hospital, where a corps of nurses and a resident physician are already employed.

During the three months ending December 31, 1891, eighty-five immigrants sick of the diseases mentioned have been received at the Riverside hospital, being an average of twenty-five each month at a per diem cost of one dollar and fifty cents.

To properly care for and isolate the sick at the Quarantine hospital would require one resident physician at the Swinburne Island Hospital in addition to the deputies, whom the Health Officer is now authorized to appoint at a monthly salary of not less than $150.

Physician's salary	$150 00
The salary of the nurse for the scarlatina ward	50 00
The salary of the nurse for diphtheria ward	50 00
The salary of nurse for measles ward	50 00
Total per month	$300 00

Add to this two dollars per diem charge for maintenance by the superintendent of the hospital under a regulation made by the Commissioners of Quarantine, and the sum amounts to $950 per month, equal to $31.66 per day.

The resources of the Quarantine department from the collections made under the present law, are wholly inadequate to defray such additional expense of the hospital. The Quarantine Commissioners have neither the money from any appropriation by the State for such a purpose, nor the authority under the law to incur the necessary expense. The owners and agents of vessels from which the cases are removed will not be willing to pay the charges necessary to sustain the hospital, in view of the fact that the law requires that they "shall be removed to the Emigration hospital," where the cost will not be nearly so great as at the Quarantine hospital. Nor is it right that either they or the State of New York should pay the expense of the care and maintenance of the sick of these contagious diseases.

The federal government collects of the passenger steamship companies a per capita tax of fifty cents on every immigrant whom they bring to the port of New York. As previously stated, under the State law, the emigration commissioners were required to "receive into their hospital all alien immigrants for whom the commutation" or per capita tax had been paid. The tax was designed to pay the expense incurred in the care and maintenance of sick and disabled immigrants.

The Health Officer removes cases of small-pox at Quarantine to the Riverside hospital (formerly at Blackwell's island), under section 24 of the Laws of 1863. The city of New York is entitled to compensation for the care and maintenance of these cases. The State formerly under the commutation law, and the federal government at present, collects the tax on all immigrants that are removed at Quarantine to the Riverside Contagious Hospital; but the departments mentioned have, and still do refuse to pay bills rendered by the New York city board of health for the care of immigrants with small-pox sent to them from this Quarantine. It is difficult to understand on what principle of justice compensation is refused. If the cases of scarlatina, diphtheria and measles should be removed at Quarantine, it is presumed that in conformity with the precedent referred to, compensation for their care and maintenance would be denied by the emigration department.

It was in view of the fact that the emigration commissioners received fifty cents per capita from the transatlantic passenger lines, and in the belief that that tax was enacted by Congress for the purpose of meeting in part the expenses incurred in the care of sick immigrants, that the State law of 1885 was enacted requiring

“all quarantinable diseases except yellow fever, cholera, typhus fever and small-pox, to be removed to the Emigrant hospital.”

During the past year the number and character of these diseases, whether scarlatina, diphtheria or measles, which were discovered on the inspection of the immigrants at Quarantine, and those in the steamer's hospital on arrival at Quarantine, were telegraphed from the boarding station to the physician of the immigrant hospital, so that the medical or other officers in charge of the barge or steamboat that transferred immigrants from the steamer to the emigration depot could continue the isolation of the sick during the transfer. On some occasions a trusted employe of this department has been sent to the steamer's dock to supervise the removal of the sick to the transfer barge, and thence to the Emigration hospital.

It will be seen from the statistics given that the immigration through the port of New York in 1891 was largely in excess of the year previous, and is but 30,786 less than the greatest number during any year since the present extraordinary flood of immigration began to invade our country. Unless the civil authorities exercise greater care in the inspection of immigrants in relation to their sanitary, physical and moral status, the country will in the near future be subjected to sanitary conditions, and social and political evils much worse than those which now exist among the populations of the old world.

With the exception of one case of typhus fever, small-pox, scarlatina, diphtheria and measles have been the only quarantinable diseases found on board vessels during the year.

The case of typhus fever referred to occurred on the French steamship La Bourgogne, April 19, 1891. The case was discovered during the inspection of the steerage of the steamer. Reliable evidence was obtained that the patient had been ill several days and had not been discovered by the surgeon of the steamer. All the steerage passengers (796) were removed to Swinburne Island Hospital for observation, Hoffman island being at the time occupied by 719 immigrants who were under observation on account of exposure to small-pox.

Twenty-seven hundred and thirty immigrants have been taken from vessels and detained for observation at Hoffman and Swinburne islands since my last report.

March 8, 1891, the steamer Obdam arrived with 492 steerage passengers. One case of confluent small-pox was found in the steamer's hospital. The case had been early isolated in a hospital located under the turtle back on the upper deck. In an adjoining room to the one occupied by the small-pox patient the surgeon had located two cases of measles; the members of the family of these patients, seven in number, were put in the room with the sick. The partition between the small-pox patient and the patients with the measles and their friends was so defective that it was considered very possible that the contagion of the case of small-pox had infected the immigrants in the adjoining hospital. The case of small-pox was removed to the Riverside hospital, and the cases of measles to the emigrant hospital, and the other members of the family were detained for observation.

April sixteenth the steam yacht Alva from Mediterranean ports arrived with one of the crew (Hugh Halpin) sick with confluent small-pox. There was no isolation of the case. The patient was removed from the yacht, but died before he reached the hospital.

The crew was detained for observation on board the Alva. Ten days after arrival, James Pursell, another of the crew, was taken sick with the disease and sent to hospital. On the thirtieth of April the yacht and the remaining portion of the crew were discharged.

April 17, 1891, the steamer Fulda arrived with 719 passengers in the steerage. One woman was found among the passengers suffering from small-pox in the third day of the development of the eruption. The medical officer of the steamer had no knowledge that there was a case of small-pox on board. Two hundred and sixty-four of the passengers who had been vaccinated successfully, by the steamer's doctor before the case of small-pox developed, were sent to the emigrant depot in New York city. Four hundred and fifty-five of the passengers were removed to Hoffman island for observation.

April nineteenth, Jacob Couri, a Turk, was found in the hospital of the French steamer La Bourgogne, suffering from typhus fever. He had been isolated two days previous to arrival at Quarantine (17th). The condition of the patient and the appearance of the eruption indicated several days' illness previous to his isolation, while in the steerage, and exposure of the passengers to the contagion of the disease. Seven hundred and ninety-six steerage passengers were removed from the steamer for observation. Nearly 800 immigrants were at this time under observation at Hoffman island on account of exposure to small-pox. The immigrants from La Bourgogne were therefore isolated at Swinburne Island Hospital.

The steamer Vigilanca arrived April twenty-eighth, with one of the crew (Louis Jennings) sick of varioloid. The exposure of other members of the crew to the contagion of the disease, and of the steerage passengers (eight), was sufficient to justify their removal to the Quarantine of Observation, where they were detained until May twelfth.

May sixteenth the steamer India arrived at Quarantine with 799 passengers. Giovanni Fretti, a steerage passenger, developed small-pox May third. He was found in a temporary hospital on the upper deck forward of the foremast. The expedient adopted by the captain and medical officer for the isolation of this case illustrates the resources of intelligent officers of passenger steamers, where, as on this steamer, provision had not been made for proper hospitals, and deserves a more particular description. The hospital referred to was so far forward on the steamer's upper deck as to be out of the way of the crew in the discharge of their duties. It was well nigh air-tight on the sides and at the bottom; its height was ten feet, and funnel-like ventilators projected from the top two feet. All the passengers were vaccinated about the twenty-fifth of April, the day after most of them came on board at Naples. It gave great pleasure to be able to reward the efficiency of the management in this instance, by discharging the vessel without detention, except to remove the patient and disinfect the quarters used as a hospital, and with no other expense than the charge for disinfection (five dollars).

June first the steamship Burgundia arrived from Mediterranean ports with Italian immigrants, one of whom developed small-pox May twentieth and died the twenty-ninth. The history of this case and its management, as shown by the journal of the medical officer of the steamer, was so intelligent and circumstantial that it gave entire confidence in the doctor's declaration, that the case had been so early and effectually isolated that the passengers had not been exposed to contagion from the patient. The steamer was therefore given pratique as soon as the hospital was cleansed and disinfected.

The steamer Polcevera arrived at Quarantine the seventh of June with 882 immigrant passengers who were taken from the disabled steamship Stura that left Naples May ninth for New York. May twenty-seventh a child developed a mild case of small-pox. The evidence afforded by the doctor's journal was fairly satisfactory that the case was discovered and isolated sufficiently early to prevent exposure of the other passengers. The steamer was disinfected and given pratique three days after arrival. The detention in this case was owing to an apprehension that there might have been neglect in the isolation of the patient. While the Deputy Health Officer was inspecting the passengers, and the procession of them had nearly passed, the patient in the arms of its mother was seen approaching the deputy, evidently for the purpose of being inspected. The neglect which gave the opportunity for the patient to be taken from the hospital might well give rise to the suspicion that the patient had not been properly isolated during the time it was in hospital. Fortunately the patient was discovered before it came sufficiently near the well passengers to communicate the contagion of the disease.

On board the steamship Russia that arrived June twenty-third with 411 steerage passengers a child of 16 months developed small-pox on the twelfth of June and died the twentieth. The evidence of early and complete isolation of the patient was satisfactory and the steamer was given pratique immediately after it was disinfected. But the mother, who had not been vaccinated since childhood, was detained for observation, but did not develop the disease.

The protection afforded by vaccinations that are made a little time before exposure to the contagion of the disease, is well illustrated in this instance. An older child than the patient was vaccinated for the first time the day before the younger one developed the disease, and although it shared the hospital with the patient and mother it did not contract the disease.

July seventh, the steamship Chandenagor arrived from Marseilles June fifth, and Naples the nineteenth with Italian immigrants from the latter port. A child of 4 years was in hospital with small-pox in the eighth day of its development. The case had been properly isolated and the steamer was discharged as soon as the hospital was disinfected.

The Portugese steamer Vega arrived July eleventh with 385 steerage and twenty-one saloon passengers, from Fayal chiefly. A boy of 13 years was taken sick with modified small-pox. The eruption was in the third day of its development. The steamer's doctor claimed to have discovered the case in the initial stage of its development while examining and vaccinating the passengers. The captain told a different story — that the "patient went to the doctor at the dispensary to be vaccinated, on the advice of a fellow passenger, who had discovered the eruption on the boy." It is fair to say that this conflicting testimony was not given by the parties in the presence of each other. The patient was sent to Riverside hospital, and the immigrants were removed to Hoffman island for observation, with the exception of those who had been successfully vaccinated on the eighth instant, and those who had had small-pox; these were allowed to proceed to the barge office.

The bark Subra left Rio de Janeiro for New York June first, after lying in the harbor several weeks to discharge cargo and take ballast. During this interval several of the crew were on shore; the result of which was that the day after leaving Rio de Janeiro one man was taken sick with small-pox; another the fifth day out, and the third victim of "shore liberty" was still in hospital July eighteenth, when the bark arrived at Quarantine. The history given by the captain of the bark of the management of the cases in respect to their isolation gave occasion for the suspicion that the well members of the crew had been exposed. The patient was removed to the Riverside hospital and the crew were quarantined on board the bark during the usual incubative period of the contagion.

The steamship Waesland, from Antwerp, August twenty-ninth, with 808 passengers in the steerage, arrived at Quarantine September ninth. One case of small-pox was found in a hospital adjacent to a room occupied by a mother and four children, one of whom was sick of measles. The two rooms had a small ante-room common to both.

The medical officer of the steamer declared that he had isolated the patient on the seventh of September, in the earliest stage of its sickness. The first part of his statement was doubtless correct; the second part was contradicted by the mother of the child, who declared that the eruption on the child appeared six days earlier. The rules of the steamer allowed no communication between the steerages, owing to their separation by the saloons, which are located between them. The passengers in the forward steerage in which the case developed, numbered 529. These, with the exception of those who had had small-pox, were removed to the Quarantine of Observation, and detained the full period of incubation of the disease of small-pox from the date of the last possible exposure of the passengers to the disease. The passengers in the aft steerage were allowed to proceed with the steamer after it was disinfected.

The necessity for morning and evening inspection of passengers by the steamer's doctor, which has been so frequently urged upon the managers of passenger steamers for years past, was made evident by the expense attending the detention of the passengers while under observation.

The bark Chignecto arrived September ninth in ballast from Rio de Janeiro. One of the crew died July twelfth after an illness of a few days, of confluent small-pox, probably. John Patterson and Lewis Lethiec developed the eruption characteristic of small-pox fourteen days after the first case. These were mild cases, and the men were well on arrival at this port. The captain had shown unusual intelligence and efficiency in the disinfection of the clothing of the patients and those portions of the vessel occupied by them; therefore, the bark was discharged after little delay.

The steamship Pharos from Rio de Janeiro, August twentieth, had one case of small-pox develop among the crew the day the steamer sailed. On the twenty-third another man was taken sick with the disease and was returned to duty the seventh of September. His appearance on arrival at Quarantine showed that he would communicate the disease. He was removed to the River side hospital, the crew was kept under observation while discharging the cargo at the wharf in Brooklyn, by an arrangement with the Brooklyn board of health, and after the cargo was discharged the steamer and crew returned to Quarantine for observation.

The steamer Phidias left Rio de Janeiro August twenty-first, and other Brazilian ports later. Five days after leaving Rio de Janeiro the cook (Robert Hardie) was taken sick, with symptoms of small-pox. The patient was convalescent on arrival at Quarantine. The evidence showed care and intelligence in the management and isolation of the case. The steamer was given pratique as soon as disinfection had been effected.

The steamship Van Dyck arrived from Brazilian ports September twenty-seventh. Thomas Grant, one of the crew, was taken sick the eleventh of September, with premonitory symptoms of a severe attack of small-pox; was delirious during the period of invasion. The eruption appeared on the thirteenth; on the seventeenth the man died.

The clothing of the patient had been destroyed; all the clothing and dunnage of the crew were disinfected by boiling in water, and the room occupied by the patient disinfected with sulphurous acid gas, the product of the combustion of three pounds of sulphur to each one thousand feet of air space. Notwithstanding the care and intelligence exercised by the captain of the Van Dyck in the isolation of the patient and the disinfection of his surroundings, he had allowed the mess-room steward to wait on the patient without taking any precautions to avoid carrying the contagion to other members of the crew. The steamer was therefore detained until fourteen days had elapsed from the death of the patient.

The steamship Suevia arrived from Hamburg and Havre October fifth with ninety-six cabin and 830 immigrant passengers. Vincenzo d'Rosa, a steerage passenger who came on board at Havre the twenty-second of September, was taken sick the twenty-seventh. The case was first observed by the doctor the same day that the eruption of small-pox developed. The patient was isolated in a room off the gangway on the upper deck. This objectionable location was, however, relieved by closing the gangway with canvas, to prevent access to it by any persons but those who waited on the patient. The steamer was given pratique as soon as the patient was removed and the hospital disinfected.

An unusual development of measles occurred among the immigrants on the steamship Polynesia that arrived at Quarantine the ninth of December, twenty-one days from Hamburg. Twenty-seven cases of that disease and three of diphtheria were found in the steamer's hospitals, besides several patients convalescent of the disease who had been discharged from hospital. The steamer's doctor had doubtless overlooked one or more cases that developed during the early days of the voyage, and these had infected many others. The length of the voyage had given time for the development of the contagion from the cases which had not been detected by the doctor of the steamer. The Polynesia has been unfortunate in the record it has made at the New York Quarantine. A few years since this steamer arrived with two cases of small-pox in hospital. There was reason to doubt the declaration of the medical officer of the steamer that the cases had been isolated in the initial stages of the disease. The passengers were therefore detained for observation. During the fourteen days they were under observation, forty cases of small-pox were removed from the steamer to the Riverside hospital.

YELLOW FEVER.

Yellow fever was epidemic in 1890 at Rio de Janeiro. During the latter part of 1891, and the early part of 1892 it has prevailed to an unusual extent at Santos. It extended to the shipping, and hundreds of victims were found among the crews of vessels lying in the port.

There have been thirty arrivals at this Quarantine of vessels from these Brazilian ports, which have given a history of sickness and death on board of this terrible disease, either while lying in port or within the first few days after their departure. Twenty-four deaths have occurred among the crews of these vessels, from the disease, and there have been forty-six cases which have recovered. The percentage of deaths evince a terrible malignancy in the type of the disease, or else the care and treatment of the victims were deplorably deficient in the methods and measures necessary for their recovery. An earnest effort has been made to have vessels that trade at these ports anchor at such a distance from the wharf that the infected atmosphere which prevails near them may not effect the people on board, and to have the cargo lightered from the wharf to the vessel, and thus minimize the danger of infecting the vessel from the dirt which is frequently taken on board with the cargo when it is taken directly from the dock.

The Health Officer has endeavored to impress upon masters, consignees and owners of vessels that trade with infected Brazilian ports, the danger of going to the dock of such ports, or of allowing their crews to go ashore. Notwithstanding the representations made to the parties mentioned, they have been less heeded than could be desired, as will be seen by the following statement of the recent experience of two of the steamers in the Brazilian trade.

The steamship Marcia arrived at Rio de Janeiro, November 30, 1891, remaining there ten days. The steamer arrived at Santos the twentieth of December and went to the dock. The captain, first mate, third engineer and a fireman were taken sick with yellow fever while at Santos. The first three mentioned died before the steamer left Santos, and the last died the day the steamer reached Victoria (December seventeenth). Henry Hicks was taken sick four days before the steamer left Santos, but recovered.

The steamship Buffon left Santos the twenty-ninth of December, Bahia January ninth and St. Thomas the twenty-third of the same month. Austin Hubbard, a steward, was taken sick of yellow fever and died the 23d of December, 1891. James Leahy a fireman, was taken sick and died November twenty-sixth. The captain (Glasspoole) of the Buffon died December third; William Baker, the fourth mate, and Franz Bauman, a fireman, died the same day (December third); James Henry and John Brennan died December twelfth.

Four men were sent to hospital on shore; the result of their sickness had not been learned when the steamer sailed. The uniform testimony of the officers of the steamers engaged in the Brazilian trade is, that there are great difficulties attending the lightering of cargos to and from the docks of the steamers; and that it would be impossible in most instances to sail on schedule time unless they received their cargoes from the docks.

Ports in the West Indies have been by far the most prolific source of yellow fever at this port, previous to the last ten years. Havana, of all the ports in the West Indies, has been the most severely scourged by this disease during the infected season; it is never quite free from it, and probably never will be while its present unsanitary condition exists. Notwithstanding this fact, and that this home of the disease is situated within reach of our port by steamers before the incubative period of the disease has elapsed, we have had no developed cases of yellow fever from Havana during the infectious season for several years past. I have stated in previous reports that our exemption is owing to the care which is exercised in preventing the crews of vessels from going ashore at ports where yellow fever prevails, and in discharging and receiving cargoes at a distance from the infected docks and wharves.

In my report for 1890, I took occasion to express my regret that the "Passenger Act of 1882" did not direct that a qualified medical officer should be employed on all passenger steamers that run between New York and tropical or semi-tropical ports. I desire to repeat to some extent, in this report, my reasons for urging this measure upon the consideration of the owners and managers of all such lines, and to say that my conviction of its necessity becomes more apparent with increased experience and observation.

It is impossible in many instances in which deaths have occurred on board, at the port of departure, or on the voyage, to determine with certainty from the imperfect history given by the master of the vessel, or by the purser, whether or not the disease which caused the death was infectious or contagious. There is often so much uncertainty and doubt in the mind of the Medical Officer at Quarantine in many cases of this character, that he is liable to resort to unnecessarily restrictive and expensive measures in discharging his first duty, to protect the public health.

On such voyages as those from Mexican gulf ports via Havana, and from Santiago de Cuba via Nassau, a medical officer can do much to relieve the sufferings, and sometimes contribute to the preservation of the lives of the passengers.

This was well illustrated during the past summer by the sickness on board one of the steamers that runs to ports on the south side of Cuba. Five passengers of the steamer referred to were sick on arrival at Quarantine of "malarial fever" of a remittent type. The condition of these patients was deplorable; for a week they had had no intelligent medical treatment, and even the nourishment which was essential to sustain their strength and contribute to their recovery had been left to the caprice of sick men's inclinations. Two of these patients died in hospital, and a third at his own residence. Another not unimportant reason for the employment of a medical officer on steamers of this class is, that it not only insures some degree of intelligence in securing a proper sanitary condition of the steamer and treatment of the sick on board, whether of passengers or crew, but it affords the officers of the various departments into which the crew is divided a resource for determining the physical condition of the men of their division, for the discharge of the duties assigned them. A convincing argument of this character occurred recently in the experience of one of the most enterprising steamship companies at the port of New York.

A fireman on one of the company's steamers of this line complained to his chief that he was not able to take his turn of duty. The officer believed he was playing the "old soldier," and peremptorily ordered him to duty. The man died soon after going on duty and just as the steamer had reached the port of its destination. The physician on the staff of the United States consul determined that the man died of "heart disease." In consequence of this the company was subjected to a vexatious and expensive suit for damages. If there had been a medical officer on board the steamer he would have been "a court" of first and "last resort" in this instance, and would, perhaps, have saved a human life, at least for a time; and certainly would have saved the company from a suit at law for damages.

Since my last report the attention of the steamship companies that did not employ medical officers has been earnestly called to the necessity of doing so.

Under date of August 29, 1891, the following communication was addressed to the New York and Cuba Mail Steamship Company:

GENTLEMEN.—I have taken occasion in my annual reports and otherwise to express my regret that many passenger steamers trading at ports in the West Indies, and other tropical or semi-tropical ports, did not employ a physician. I beg leave to call your attention to the following extract from my last annual report in relation to that subject:

" 'The Passenger Act of 1882,' provides that 'every steamship or other vessel carrying or bringing immigrant passengers, or passengers other than cabin passengers, exceeding fifty in number, shall carry a duly qualified and competent surgeon or medical practitioner.' Under this law it is not obligatory on steamship companies to employ a physician on their steamers if they carry less than fifty immigrant passengers, although they may have 500 of any other class. The law evidently is intended only for those who can not provide protection for themselves. It is to be regretted that the 'Passenger Act of 1882,' does not direct that a 'duly qualified surgeon or medical practitioner' shall be employed on all passenger steamers that ply between New York and tropical or semi-tropical ports. Of the several lines whose steamers ply regularly between New York and ports in Central America, on the east coast of South American ports in the West Indies, and the Mexican gulf ports, the greater number of which are prolific of the most malignant fevers to which the human race is subject, there are but two lines that employ 'duly qualified surgeons or medical practitioners.' In consequence of this, such an intelligent history of cases of sickness among passengers or crew as will afford a satisfactory conclusion as to the character of the disease can not be obtained. Frequently deaths occur among passengers or crew at the port of departure, or during the voyage, and the Health Officer is compelled to make up his conclusions as to the nature of the disease from the story of the captain, who knows much more of navigation than he does of disease or its treatment, or from the purser, whose attention to his freight bills has left little time and perhaps less inclination to observe the symptoms and to administer to the wants of the sick. The want of intelligent supervision and history of the sick on vessels from tropical ports, particularly of those from yellow fever infected ports, may leave the Health Officer in doubt or liable to be mistaken as to the source and character of the disease; in the event of his mistaking the nature of the disease that has occurred, an infected steamer might be allowed to proceed to the dock in the city, and thus the greatest source of danger to the public health be incurred—the source from which numerous epidemics of yellow fever in New York city have originated. The safety and comfort of passengers on steamers running to those ports also require the employment of a competent medical officer."

Not only will the safety of the passengers entrusted to your care, particularly those who come from Vera Cruz, be better assured by having an intelligent physician on board, and the public health better protected, but, if I may advise, and I think I ought to be competent to do so, your interests will be better served by employing such an officer.

There is another and more important reason for the employment of medical officers, particularly on vessels that make the long run from Vera Cruz via Havana, and from Santiago de Cuba via Nassau; it is the humanitarian view of the subject to which I refer. Passengers may be taken ill on the steamer and for nearly a week have no intelligent treatment.

The recent experience of the passengers on the steamer Santiago fairly illustrates the subject of which I respectfully complain. Several of the passengers on arrival at Quarantine, as you know, were sick of a type of malarial fever contracted on some part of the Cuban coast near Santiago de Cuba; indeed they were ill when they came on board and ought not to have been received as passengers in the absence of any medical officer to care for them. Two of the passengers referred to have died — perhaps others, since my last advices from them. Their condition on arrival at Quarantine produced a conviction that if they had had the care and treatment of a competent medical officer during the voyage, it would have added very much to their chances of recovery.

Very respectfully.

WM. M. SMITH,
Health Officer.

Under date of the 31st of August, 1891, the company replied as follows :

“WM. M. SMITH, Health Officer, Port of New York :

“DEAR SIR.— We have duly received your favor of the twenty-ninth instant, contents of which have our careful attention.

“We highly appreciate your kind feelings and suggestions in the interest of the public health and of our line, but with a light passenger business we really do not feel that we can afford to pay the salaries of good physicians, particularly as it would be almost impossible for us to get efficient graduates who could be employed in another capacity in conjunction with their duties as physician.

“If you can suggest how we can secure the services of competent men whom we could employ in this way, at such a salary as we could afford, we would be very much obliged, and would endeavor to carry out your advice on the subject.

“Very truly yours.

“JAMES E. WARD & CO.”

On the 25th of September, 1891, the above letter was acknowledged and the subject again presented in the following letter :

“Messrs. JAMES E. WARD & Co :

“GENTLEMEN.— Referring to the subject of your letter dated August thirty-first, I desire to say that I am much gratified at the evidences therein contained that you appreciate the reasons of my suggestions of the necessity of surgeons on your lines to West Indian and Mexican ports. I fully understand the objection which you urge as to the employment of physicians, to wit., that you can not afford to pay the salaries of good physicians. It has occurred to me many times to call your attention to the employment of physicians of education, but perhaps of not large experience, who can combine and discharge the duties of physician and purser. This has been done in the past. The duties certainly are not generally taxing for a physician, but his qualifications are not the less necessary when his services are needed. I believe this was adopted by the Pacific Mail Steamship Company at one time, although at present they employ physicians whose duties are exclusively those of the physician and sanitarian. I do not know what compensation you pay your pursers, but I think that if the duties of both are combined you will find no difficulty in obtaining men who are fully competent to discharge the duties of both positions.

“In the absence of some such arrangement as I have suggested, for the employment of a physician on board your steamers, I would respectfully suggest that it would be better that you do not receive on board at the points of departure any person who is sick at the time of going on board. A sick man, from whatever disease, usually requires such care and treatment as only a physician can give, and particularly on your long runs from Vera Cruz or Santiago de Cuba, a man who is sick when he starts on the voyage may suffer much from want of professional care and treatment. The death of persons on the voyage, or even after arrival at this port, coming as they do from suspicious localities, is liable to leave much apprehension on the minds of the Quarantine officers and create alarm if they die in the city or community which is their destination, as the diseases which originate in tropical or semi-tropical ports are likely to be misunderstood by physicians who have had no experience with them.

“Hoping that you may see your way clear to bring about such an arrangement as will give to your steamers competent physicians. I remain “Yours very truly.

“Health Officer, Port of New York.”

I am informed by the manager of this line that it is now supplying its steamers with medical officers, as fast as competent and capable men are found. The steamships Yumuri, Yucatan and Orizaba are already supplied with medical officers.

The steamship Cienfuegos arrived at this port January ninth, from Cienfuegos, December thirty-first, and Santiago de Cuba, January second, via Nassau. Gustave Tesch, a second cabin passenger, died on board a few minutes before Deputy Health Officer Skinner boarded the steamer. As there is no medical officer attached to this steamer, the cause of death could not be satisfactorily determined from the history given by the captain or the purser. The remains were therefor removed to Swinburne Island Hospital where an autopsy was made, which showed that the cause of death was congestive remittent fever.

The following table contains the names of the vessels, and the number of cases of yellow fever on each, that have occurred while at the port of departure or on the voyage to this port since my last report :

I have taken occasion in my annual reports for several years past, to recommend the repeal of the law which declares that the "hospital ship shall be located in the Lower Bay from May first to November first." It is illogical to require that a patient with a non-contagious disease should be removed from a vessel to hospital ten or twelve miles from the city of New York, and then bring the vessel which may be the source of the disease, to discharge cargo within three miles of the city (at Robbins Reef), as was done for many years, and until 1886. It is unreasonable to require the Health Officer to cripple and embarrass himself in the discharge of his duties at the boarding station, by the detail of one of his deputies to the so-called "hospital ship" in the Lower Bay, when it does not contribute to protect the public health.

Twenty-seven hundred and thirty immigrants have been detained for observation at the islands during the past year. This is 2,730 more than should have been, or would have been, had the medical officers of the steamers discharged their duties according to the suggestions made and urged upon their attention by the Health Officer at this port.

The average number of days that each immigrant was detained at the Quarantine of Observation, was fourteen. The total expense of this detention of these passengers, was nearly or quite $28,000.

This is a great price to pay for the services of a half dozen incompetent or neglectful medical officers. It is quite enough to secure competent and faithful officers, if equally divided and added to the amount of the present meager salary of a ship's surgeon.

There is no greater need for improvement in the whole system of transatlantic steamship service, than in the medical department.

The salary of the medical officer must be increased, to secure competent and faithful officers; he should be made independent of the gratuities upon which he often depends. On those lines that do not carry a considerable number of saloon passengers, the wages he receives are not greater than that of the ordinary "deck hand" in our harbor, notwithstanding that the responsibilities he assumes in the care of several hundred immigrants during every voyage to this port, involve to a greater or less extent the protection of the public health, and the material interests of the steamship company by which he is employed.

The tenure of the medical officer under the present system, is at the mercy of the company. It should be secure as against anything but proved of incompetency or inefficiency. If the medical service of the mercantile marine is ever what it should be, the qualifications of the medical officer must be determined by a competent board of examiners, and if the appointee is discharged for any cause, his right to an appeal to the board which certified to his qualifications should be guaranteed.

The prospect of promotion with the increase of pay commensurate with the period of service and the ability of the officer, will secure those who will devote their life to the service, and their best energies to secure success in their chosen calling. Let the standard of qualification be raised if desirable, but increase the pay proportionately. There are many well-qualified, experienced and efficient surgeons on the transatlantic passenger steamers that enter this port. It is in no degree disparaging to such officers to say that there are other medical officers in the passenger steamship service who have been found with commendable zeal isolating patients with syphilitic papulæ and chicken pox; and others who could not distinguish between varioloid and varicella. In a majority of instances the doctor of a steamship when appointed has never seen a case of small-pox.

The medical officer of an immigrant passenger steamer should be something of an expert in the diagnosis of eruptive skin diseases. No better service could be rendered the managers of passenger steamship companies than to impress upon them the necessity of such a special preparation on the part of their medical officers, as will enable them to diagnose correctly the contagious diseases which so frequently come hand in hand with immigrant passengers.

The immigration that has flowed like a resistless tide into this and other ports of the United States during the past year, will continue. The nearly four and one-half millions of immigrants that have passed into the country through the port of New York since January, 1880, will be increased by other millions within the same period. The political and economic conditions of the old world communities will continue to drive the people forth, and our undeveloped expanse, and liberal institutions will continue to attract them to our country.

Notwithstanding that the utmost liberality consistent with protection of the public health has been exercised in the detention of vessels at this Quarantine, the experience of the steamship companies at this port with incompetent and inefficient medical officers on their steamers, would seem to have been sufficient to determine them to adopt a system in the selection of such officers as would secure competent and efficient physicians.

CHOLERA.

Cholera has prevailed at several places in Asia Minor, and at its home in India during the past year. A number of vessels that obtained cargo at cholera-infected ports have arrived during the year. Unremitting vigilance is necessary to prevent the cargoes from such ports communicating the infection to the populous communities adjacent to our port. It is often when least expected that the dread disease makes its appearance. When cholera arrived at the port of New York in 1887, it had in the four years previous scourged Egypt, ravaged France and Italy, numbered more than a hundred thousand victims in Spain, invaded the eastern coast of South America at Rosario, crossed the Andes and decimated the population of the western coast of South America.

In the summer of 1887 the danger of its reaching this country seemed past. It still lingered in some localities in Spain and Italy. But the apprehension that it would reach our shores had almost ceased to exist, when it appeared at the threshold of our port on the steamers Alesia and Britannia.

The half-completed, improperly-equipped and long-neglected Quarantine of Observation at Hoffman island, notwithstanding the repeated warnings of danger, and importunities of the Health Officer of the port to the State government for aid, from the time the disease made its advent in Europe, has been referred to in the report of the Health Officer for 1887.

Had the New York Quarantine been prepared and equipped then as it now is, there would have been little occasion for anxiety on the part of the Quarantine officials, or the apprehension of the escape of the disease from the Quarantine islands which existed in the public mind during the detention of the cholera-infected immigrants. And there would have been no opportunity for the unjust and ungenerous criticism of the management of the cholera-infected immigrants from the Alesia and Britannia made by Doctor Shakespeare, of Philadelphia, in his report on the late cholera epidemic in Europe.

In the report referred to he takes occasion to refer to the cholera epidemic at the port of New York, as follows :

“First. The absence of resident medical officers both at the hospital on Swinburne island and at the Quarantine of Detention at Hoffman island. Second. Absence of anything like an adequate sanitary police force on the latter island. Third. The absence of any effort to separate the well, detained on Hoffman island, into small groups, and the lack of any proper daily systematic inspection such as would enable the authorities promptly to discover and isolate new cases. Fourth. The unreasonable detention for a period of nearly two months of more than 500 immigrants not sick, under circumstances of great hardship, exposure and privation; a fact which in view of the present state of knowledge in regard to the nature and mode of transmission of the infectious principal of cholera, in itself bears overwhelming testimony to faulty administration. And this was the situation after cholera had continued to prevail in countries, the ports of which were in constant communication with New York for a period of some four years, and after the entire public press of the United States had persistently called attention to the ever-present danger of its reaching our shores.”

The above criticism is in part a rehearsal of the unfair, and in some respects untruthful report of certain physicians, of whom Dr. Shakespeare was one, who visited the New York Quarantine soon after the cholera-infected passengers of the Alesia were put “in quarantine” at Hoffman and Swinburne islands.

The report which these gentlemen made of their visit at the time was given to the newspapers and produced something of the effect intended; a sensation. Their report was subsequently answered by the Health Officer at New York in a communication to the mayor of the city of New York, in which some of the statements repeated in Dr. Shakespeare’s recently published report were corrected and others denied. The doctor having recently availed himself of the liberality of the federal government to publish his criticism, it seems proper that they should be noticed even at this distant date, by one who desires only that the true history of the cholera epidemic at the New York Quarantine in 1887 should be written.

There has always been, and probably always will be, an “absence of resident medical officers at both the hospital on Swinburne island and at the Quarantine of Detention at Hoffman island.” Ordinarily a “resident physician” at either of the islands is unnecessary. There have been few patients suffering with the diseases the law allows to be received there (yellow fever and cholera) admitted at the Swinburne Island Hospital for several years last past; and none since October, 1890. In an emergency such as existed when cholera patients were in Swinburne Island Hospital, and cholera-infected passengers at Hoffman island, the Health Officer, his two deputies and the physicians temporarily employed, supplied all the necessities of the emergency. The Health Officer divided his time between the two islands after the passengers of the Alesia were put upon them, giving the largest portion of it to those in hospital; and two experienced nurses were in constant attendance upon the patients. When the Britannia's passengers came and increased the duties of the Health Officer and his deputies, Dr. Armstrong, of the United States Marine Hospital Service, and Dr. Frank W. Chapin, of New York, were employed as assistants.

When Dr. Shakespeare states that there was "an absence of anything like an adequate sanitary police" on Hoffman island, he misrepresents the facts. Four faithful men were employed to guard by day and night the approaches to the island, and to prevent escapes therefrom. Twelve men were employed, under the supervision of one of the most faithful and efficient men that ever served in this department, to police and disinfect the grounds the dormitories, and correct as far as possible every unsanitary condition and place on the island.

The good doctor goes on to say: "Third. The absence of any effort to separate the well into small groups, and the lack of proper daily systematic inspection." Dr. Shakespeare knows very well that the condition of Hoffman island, at the time the cholera-infected passengers were there, rendered it impossible for more than three groups to be made; and if he knows anything of what he writes, he knows that the three floors of the dormitories were occupied by groups selected with reference to the possibilities of their being infected. That these groups were judiciously arranged is proved by the fact that, with one exception, every case of cholera that developed after the passengers were removed from the steamer, occurred in the group occupying the lower floor of the north dormitory; a group in which the families, friends and acquaintances of the sick and dead passengers were included.

What constitutes "any proper daily systematic inspection" in the opinion of the doctor, we are not informed. It may be something less; it could not be more than was practiced daily while the evidence of choleraic infection existed among the passengers. Not only was "daily inspection" of every passenger made, but twice daily. Every deviation from the normal condition of a passenger was considered with careful deliberation. Of the thoroughness of the inspection there are ample proofs, in the fact of the detection of the disease during the period of invasion in several instances. In the case of Francesco Cesario no evidence was given in his general appearance at the morning of inspection of any deviation from health; but one of the attendants noticed that he had diarrhoeal dejections. A close examination of the man confirmed the suspicion that they were choleraic in character. He did not complain, and was inclined to resist the order for his removal to hospital. The man was able to be about the ward of the hospital to which he was assigned for two days before he became seriously ill with the disease.

Antonio Coviello, a child of 6 years, was noticed at the morning inspection, October eleventh, to be languid and drooping, although able to pass the Health Officer for inspection with the other passengers. October twelfth the appearance of the tongue of the child indicated choleraic infection, but no other symptoms existed which might not be attributed to disordered digestion. The child was carefully isolated in the bath-room of one of the dormitories, and a diet of milk and soup allowed. At 4 A. M. of the fifteenth the first choleraic discharge from the bowels occurred, succeeded by several others of like character within a few hours, which were attended with much prostration. (Health Officer's Report, 1887, page 36.)

The doctor continues his criticism under a "fourth" specification as follows: "The unreasonable detention for a period of nearly two months of more than 500 immigrants not sick, under circumstances of great hardship, exposure and privation." And the doctor assumes that the detention of the passengers for that period "bears overwhelming testimony to faulty administration."

Dr. Shakespeare draws his conclusions that a "faulty administration existed," from the fact of this detention. The circumstances that caused their detention he was evidently ignorant of when he wrote the paragraph last quoted from his report, and it is presumed that he did not care to inform himself, for the information was easily obtainable, even if he was not familiar with the facts which were published in several of the newspapers at the time, and in the official report of the Health Officer for that year. A paragraph from that report (page 43) reads as follows : "No case of cholera developed among the Alesia's passengers after the eighth of October, fifteen days after their arrival at Quarantine (September twenty-third), except the case of the child Coviello before mentioned, in whom the invasion of the disease was very evident the eleventh. This child had been under close observation and isolation after the eighth of October." "More than three weeks had elapsed since any evidence of choleraic infection had been manifested, when the passengers were transferred to the ship Washington. Two weeks before their transfer the Health Officer reported to the Board of Commissioners of Quarantine and the board of health of New York city his conviction that the Alesia's passengers and their baggage were free from choleraic infection, and ought to be discharged from quarantine. His personal representations to the latter board were concluded by the expression of the opinion that the immigrants should not be discharged from Hoffman island, and more than an intimation that if they were they would be again quarantined when they came within the jurisdiction of the board of health. Under these circumstances the Quarantine authorities believed it better that they should be detained "in quarantine" until the authorities were satisfied to let them proceed to their destinations. To embarrass the situation still more, the cholera-infected passengers of the steamship Britannia had been quarantined on that steamer since their arrival on the thirteenth of October. The superintendent of Swinburne island objected to their transfer to the vacant wards of the hospital on that island, and the Quarantine Commissioners sustained his objection. In the meantime an epidemic of measles had also developed among the passengers of the Britannia, and upwards of forty patients with that disease had been removed to the wards at Swinburne island, and located in wards remote from the cases of cholera from the Britannia.

It would have been unpardonable mismanagement to have taken the passengers of the Britannia to the Quarantine of Observation while occupied by the Alesia's passengers, with no possibility of isolating the infected passengers and baggage of the former steamer from the disinfected baggage of the latter steamer. The only other alternative was to secure, prepare and anchor a vessel near the Quarantine islands for the Alesia's passengers, until such time as the health authorities of New York city would allow them to proceed to their destinations.

This was done, and after a sojourn on the ship Washington from the third to the seventeenth of November, the passengers of the Alesia were discharged from quarantine. There was no evidence of any infection among the Alesia's passengers for three weeks before they were transferred to the Washington, as was proved by there being no new cases for that time previous to their being transferred. And that there was no source of infection established on Hoffman island, as was claimed by sensation mongers, was demonstrated by the fact that although the Britannia's passengers took possession of the island the day after the passengers of the Alesia were removed, and remained there under observation for twenty days, no signs of cholera appeared.

In referring to the condition of the Quarantine establishment Dr. Shakespeare says: "And this was the situation after cholera had continued to prevail in countries, the ports of which were in constant direct communication with New York, for upward of four years." It is a source of pleasure to be able to agree with the doctor for once. The Health Officer at New York summoned the State Board of Health in the summer of 1884 to visit the Quarantine islands and consider the "situation." The members of the board inspected the establishment and unanimously passed resolutions requesting the Governor and Legislature to grant an appropriation to make the necessary improvements.

In the fall of the same year the representatives of health organizations and eminent sanitarians from several States met in New York at the request of the Health Officer of the port and considered the measures necessary to fortify our maritime quarantines against the epidemic of cholera that was then numbering its victims by tens of thousands in France and Italy. The conference adopted resolutions expressing necessity and urgency in the repair of the Quarantine islands at the port of New York, and directed that a copy of the resolutions be sent to the Governor of the State and to each branch of the Legislature. In his report to the Board of Quarantine Commissioners for 1887, the Health Officer said in part: "I have many times called the attention of your honorable board to the condition of the property (Quarantine islands), and I am aware that the Board has endeavored to repair, improve and protect them by the expenditure of such means as the State has provided. I also know that it has repeatedly endeavored, without success, to secure appropriations for this purpose, which have been granted by the Legislature, but which were vetoed by the Executive."

The inference to be drawn from the report to which I have referred, and to which I have perhaps given too much consideration, is that the Health Officer at New York was responsible for the condition of the Quarantine islands. If by this, it is intended to charge the Health Officer's administration with neglect to repair the Quarantine islands at his own expense, for the methods and measures of his administration were not "faulty," except in so far as they were dependent on the condition of the islands, your honorable board is referred to the testimony of the late Health Officer, Dr. S. O. Vanderpoel, before the investigating committee of 1881, in which he said: "It would bankrupt a health officer to keep the Quarantine islands in repair," and to the fact that the "Quarantine of Observation" (Hoffman island) was not completed for the purposes for which it was intended until the recent improvements were made, and had never been used as a quarantine of observation until the exigencies arising from the enormous emigration which commenced in 1880, required it.

The representatives of health organizations and eminent sanitary and medical experts repeatedly joined with the Health Officer at New York in calling upon the State authorities to make the necessary improvements, and secure the desired repairs and equipment of the Quarantine of Observation. All efforts failed until cholera stood face to face with the community. Partisanship and personal hostility too often prevented the Commissioners of Quarantine from obtaining the appropriations necessary for even the preservation of Hoffman island, much less for repairs and improvements of the establishment. The New York Quarantine was so long the victim of partisanship, the appropriations for its preservation were so frequently denied or cut down by executive veto, that the "foundations of the establishment were crumbling with decay, and its efficiency for such an emergency as the advent of cholera produced, was greatly impaired."

To most minds it would occur that under these circumstances the Quarantine officials at New York should be commended for destroying the infection of cholera as quickly and as successfully as they did, and that the administration was efficient rather than "faulty."

The official and personal courtesy extended to Dr. Shakespeare by the Health Officer at New York on the occasion of his visit to the New York Quarantine during the cholera epidemic at the quarantine islands, would among most professional gentlemen have entitled him to an opportunity for explanation and revision before publishing the criticisms contained in his report.

The Lower Bay service during the past summer has been so small as scarcely to deserve notice. The S. D. Carlton was anchored in the Lower Bay. The deputy in charge of that service, Dr. E. C. Skinner, endeavored to meet and inspect at that station vessels from yellow-fever-infected ports. He boarded and inspected fifteen vessels from such ports at the station in the Lower Bay.

The service in the Lower Bay is a useless precaution, an unnecessary expense, and seriously embarrasses the Health Officer in the discharge of his duties at the "Boarding Station." This practice of removing yellow-fever patients during the warm season from vessels in the Lower Bay, is a relic of the false theory upon which the quarantine against this disease was managed a hundred years ago, when the patient was isolated as if he was a "plague spot" among human beings, and the vessel, the real source of danger and disease, was allowed to go to the wharves of the city.

The absurd practice is adopted of removing a non-contagious disease from vessels ten or twelve miles from the city, and taking the infected vessel within three miles of it, in the track of great ferries and a vast marine commerce, and the most frequented portions of the Upper Bay, to discharge the cargo, as was done half a century ago, and until within the last few years.

The following table shows the number of vessels that arrived at the port of New York from yellow-fever-infected ports during the season of 1891 :

With this report my official relations with the New York Quarantine will close. It is nearly twelve years since I assumed the responsibilities and began to discharge the duties of "Health Officer at the Port of New York." They have been years of earnest, unremitting effort to discharge its duties, with two objects in view: First. To so guard the nation's great highway from the sea, that it shall be closed against the infectious and contagious diseases which follow in the course of commercial relations with foreign and domestic ports, or that accompany that vast bannerless army of more than half a million of people that yearly invades our shores from the old world. Second. To lighten the burdens which quarantine imposes on commerce, either of actual expense or detention of vessels or passengers, to the utmost extent consistent with the primary duty mentioned.

The twelve years have been years in which care and anxiety have dominated all other impressions.

With the commercial interests of the port of New York 'as represented by the owners and agents of its vast commercial marine, the administration of the Quarantine department has been in pleasant accord.

The restrictions imposed by the necessary rules and regulations of Quarantine have been cheerfully complied with by those whose interests were immediately affected by them. But one appeal has been made from the decisions of the Health Officer during this long period.

The great immigration through the port of New York since 1880, by the transatlantic passenger steamers, has unavoidably caused the burden of the detention and expense at Quarantine to fall upon the passenger steamship lines. The uniform courtesy and good will manifested toward the Health Officer by this portion of the commercial community, in the discharge of the duties imposed by him for the protection of the public health, evinces an intelligent appreciation of the duties of that officer, and, it is not too much to assume, a degree of confidence in his integrity and good judgment which has contributed to make his anxieties and responsibilities less onerous.

One of the pleasurable recollections of this period is the uniform kindness and courtesy, whether in official or personal relations, that have existed between the Board of Quarantine Commissioners and myself. The duties of the board of commissioners and of the Health Officer are essentially different; their prerogatives are in a great measure independent of each other, and yet, their functions are so co-ordinate, and the object for which they were created being the same, to wit, the protection of the public health, that harmony of purpose and action are essential to success. It is with great pleasure that I recall my personal and official relations with the members of the Board of Quarantine Commissioners past and present.

I have been faithfully and efficiently aided in the discharge of my duties during the past year by Deputy Health Officers Drs. A. W. Smith and E. C. Skinner.

Dr. Smith has been a considerable sufferer from ill health, but continued to discharge his duties with singular determination and efficiency.

In parting with them, as my assistants in the discharge of many responsible duties, I desire to express my grateful appreciation of their valuable services.

Dated February 3, 1892.

Health Officer, Port of New York.

STATE OF NEW YORK:

ALBANY, March 1, 1892. }

Hon. ROBERT P. BUSH,

Speaker of the Assembly:

SIR.—In compliance with the provisions of chapter 506 of the Laws of 1890, I have the honor to present to the Legislature the second annual report of the Superintendent of the Banking Department relative to foreign mortgage, loan and investment companies.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant.

CHARLES M. PRESTON,

OF

Superintendent of Banking Department on Foreign Mortgage Companies, etc.

To the Honorable the Legislature :

In accordance with the provisions of chapter 506, of the Laws of 1890, this report is respectfully submitted. It consists of the following :

First.—A summary of the condition of the companies licensed, with tables showing the aggregate assets and liabilities, and the increase and decrease during the year in the material items. A list of the companies that have discontinued doing business in the State during the last year, the reason for such discontinuance, and the comments and suggestions of the Superintendent upon matters generally applicable to the mortgage loan business.

Second.—A comparative table of the items of assets and liability of each company licensed, in detail. A list of the companies examined, licensed and rejected.

Third.—The sworn semi-annual reports of the several companies for July and January, as required by law.

Fourth.—The several reports of the examiners of the financial condition of the companies as found by them at the time of the examination, after deducting current expenses, and every item not a tangible asset or an enforceable liability.

Fifth.—A glossary of terms used.

Sixth.—A copy of chapter 506, of the Laws of 1890, and of the forms used by the Superintendent in enforcing its provisions.

Seventh.—Index.

Of the thirty-nine companies licensed last year, thirteen have discontinued doing business in this State, as follows:

The American Investment Company, of Emmetsburgh, Iowa.

The Globe Investment Company, of Boston, Massachusetts.

The Husted Investment Company, of Kansas City, Kansas.

The Kansas City Investment Company, of Kansas City, Missouri.

The Lewis Investment Company, of Des Moines, Iowa.

The Mead Bond and Trust Company, of Denver, Colorado.

The Union Debenture Company, of Minneapolis, Minn.

The Western Investment Company, of Lemars, Iowa.

The Winner Investment Company, of Kansas City, Mo.

The license granted to the American Investment Company was revoked shortly after the publication of my first annual report.

The Globe Investment Company, of Boston, the Mead Bond and Trust Company of Denver, the Husted Investment Company, of Kansas City, Kansas, and the Western Farm Mortgage Trust Company, of Lawrence, Kansas, voluntarily withdrew from the State.

The Western Investment Company, of Lemars, never did any business in the State and declined a re-examination on that account.

The Smith Brothers' Loan and Trust Company, of Beatrice, Nebraska, withdrew voluntarily from the State after receiving the license.

The Lewis Investment Company, of Des Moines, Iowa, refused to report or submit to examination.

The license of the Western Loan and Investment Company, of Hastings, Nebraska, was recalled in the early summer and soon thereafter it began proceedings for voluntary liquidation.

A partial re-examination of the Winner Investment Company was had, after the regular examination mentioned in my first annual report was made, and thereafter its license was voluntarily surrendered and canceled and the company was subsequently placed in the hands of a receiver.

The application of the Kansas City Investment Company, the Union Debenture Company and the Nebraska Loan and Banking Company for a renewal of their respective licenses was rejected on report of the examiners.

There have been three failures. The Winner Investment Company, the Western Farm Mortgage Trust Company and the Western Loan and Investment Company, of Hastings, Nebraska. The last-named company was carried down with the failure of the City National Bank, of Hastings, Nebraska, with which it had business relations. None of the three last-mentioned companies was licensed to do business in this State at the time of their respective failures.

Five new companies have been added to the list this year, namely:

The Belcher, W. C., Land Mortgage Company, Fort Worth, Texas.

The Howard State Bank, of Kansas City, Missouri.

The North American Loan and Trust Company, of Chicago, Illinois, making thirty-one companies licensed to do business in the State for the year commencing October 1, 1891.

Following is a summary of the assets and liabilities of these companies, compiled from their sworn reports of January 1, 1892.

About two million of dollars of the capital stock of these companies is owned in this State, much of it by persons who have invested nearly all their savings in this way, but a considerable amount by financial men of experience and established reputation for conservatism.

The total sales of securities of these companies to date is upwards of $120,000,000.

The sales of securities in this State during the year last past, from January, 1891, to January, 1892, by these thirty-one companies aggregated something more than $3,000,000; being about one-half of the reported sales of the previous year.

The following table of material items shows the condition of the twenty-six companies that were licensed last year, and whose licenses have been renewed, as compared with their condition this year:

Debenture bonds outstanding.....	39,187,207	43,496,600
Guaranteed loans outstanding.....	69,000,000	65,000,000

From a study of this table it appears that, considering the season of doubt and depression which has prevailed with these companies by reason of the fluctuations in the value of western real estate, their condition is very much improved. It is true that the past due interest has increased something more than $300,000, and that the tax sale certificate, past due loans, and real estate accounts have increased in a like ratio, which is unfavorable; but, on the other hand, the first liens have increased upwards of three millions of dollars; the second mortgage liens have decreased nearly a half a million of dollars; bills payable have decreased $128,000; guaranteed loans have been decreased upwards of four million of dollars; the surplus and undivided profits in excess of current expenses has increased two-thirds of a million; the amount of cash in bank and on hand has increased almost $700,000, and the total assets have increased more than six and a half million dollars. The increase in the amount of cash on hand and in bank, and in surplus, and the decrease in guaranteed loans—the last always a possible liability—is particularly pleasing.

In my first annual report five companies carried among their assets a “good will” or premium account, viz.: The Bunnell and Eno Investment Company, the Georgia Loan and Trust Company, the Lewis Investment Company, the McKinley-Lanning Loan and Trust Company, and the R. J. Waddell Investment Company, aggregating more than $200,000. The Bunnell and Eno Investment Company, the Georgia Loan and Trust Company, the McKinley-Lanning Loan and Trust Company and the R. J. Waddell Investment Company, as will be seen from their reports, have since charged this item off, under a ruling of the Department. The Lewis Investment Company refused to do so and declined a re-examination, as hereinbefore stated. With these changes made, each of the companies has a surplus on the examiner’s report. The examiners are of the opinion that the business of the respective companies is better handled than on their first examination, and the officers giving closer attention to material details.

The extraordinary demands made upon mortgage companies during the past two years shows the necessity as well as wisdom for each company to lessen or pass entirely its dividends on capital stock until such time as it has accumulated a surplus adequate for any probable emergency, and in reasonable proportion to its direct obligations.

Such companies as have passed their dividends during the past year for the purpose of devoting all their net earnings to surplus, while they may thereby cause present disappointment to their stockholders and a temporary depreciation in the market value of the stock, are taking a step in the direction of conservative management, and should be commended.

The following, taken from my first annual report, seems equally pertinent now :

“I feel it my duty to especially urge that investors in this State contemplating the purchase of western mortgages or debentures exercise the same caution in selecting their securities for investments that they would if they were buying eastern securities. The fact that the securities of some person or company in the west are not safely placed ought not to militate against the reputation of other securities placed and negotiated by other companies any more than that the decline in value of a certain railroad stock should depreciate the value of every other railroad stock. The character of the men and their reputation for integrity and business ability should be as carefully considered in one case as the other, and the securities issued by each company should be examined and valued each by themselves and not because of the reputation good or bad of another company.”

Last year in my suggestions to the purchasers of debentures, it was stated that the character of the company issuing the debentures should be carefully considered, and that the purchasers should not be very much influenced by the reputation of the corporation acting as trustee, because in almost every instance the corporation trustees merely certifies in effect that they hold securities in their hands certified to them to be of a certain value, themselves giving no opinion as to the conservatism of the valuation, and it is an almost universal condition that the trustees shall in no way be held liable for the correctness of the valuation of the securities, or for anything except personal misconduct. They do not testify, nor do they purport to testify, as to the sufficiency of the security in any respect.

These suggestions I emphasize and repeat. In one of the companies examined this year it was found that it had securities in the hands of its debenture trustees which were many times the total assessed value of the real estate covered. In one instance the assessed valuation being $100, and the mortgage, purporting to be only for fifty per cent of the real valuation was for $1,000.

It is highly essential also that the investor of western securities, whether real estate or municipal bonds, should understand the provisions of the laws of the State in which the investment is made.

In 1891 an act was passed in Texas amending the alien laws of that State. It provided that no person not a citizen of the United States of America could acquire title to or own any interests in the lands within the State, and declared any deed or conveyance purporting to convey such title or interests to be void. This included the conveyance of any title or interest to "any alien or unnaturalized foreigner, or to any firm, company or corporation composed of such in whole or in part.

It is further provided that any such aliens, firm, company or corporation then owning land within the State, must dispose of such land or property within six years from the passage of the said act, and in case of a failure to do so that said lands and property should escheat to and vest in the State.

The effect of the passage of this law was to cause nearly all of the investment companies to cease loaning money in the State as nearly all of them had capital stock held by the persons and corporations prohibited under the act. This act is said by State officials to have been a legislative accident, and it has since been declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court of that State in the case of Gunter v. The Texas Land and Mortgage Company, Limited. While the decision in this case turned upon a pure technicality it is believed that the law will never be re-enacted so as to make it effective.

While the past two years have been particularly fraught with disaster and dissatisfaction to the holder of western securities, it is believed that the condition of affairs is improving. For instance, the report of the State Board of Agriculture of Kansas shows that, while its population decreased in 1889 and 1890 the increase in the valuation of agricultural products, due to an abundant yield, was many millions of dollars, and the appreciation in the value of real estate was marked.

The companies licensed to transact business in this State invest moneys in Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, Louisiana, Georgia, Texas, Tennessee, Washington, Oregon, Montana, Utah, Minnesota, etc., and the investor can, through them, invest in whatever locality and in whatever style of security is desired.

Investors are particularly cautioned against dealing with unlicensed companies or companies who write from some other State offering inducements and soliciting funds for investment. It is pretty safe to assume that companies who solicit patronage by letter are either companies that have been examined and whose licenses have been withheld as the result of such examination, or companies that are afraid to pass the ordeal of an examination. The officers of these companies seem to think when they are not allowed to do business in this State, that by soliciting business, by letter, of investors in this State they are not violating the laws of this State, some even going so far as to say to this Department that they propose to solicit business by correspondence from their home office, notwithstanding this law. All such companies, or their representatives, when caught in this State, should be prosecuted for the full penalty of the law.

Respectfully submitted.

GLOSSARY.

Many of these terms may be self-explanatory, and all will be easily understood by persons familiar with financial book-keepers' phraseology; but as many of the investors with mortgage companies are not financial men, and as some of the terms as used in the reports and examinations have a local signification, it is thought advisable to include these definitions in this appendix.

- "ACCRUED INTEREST."—Interest computed to the time of taking the balance on interest-bearing assets or obligations, at the rate specified, but not yet due.
- "APPRAISED VALUE."—The value given to any property, real or personal, by persons selected to estimate its value, or "appraise it."
- "BILLS PAYABLE."—Notes with or without collateral security, given for money borrowed.
- "BILLS RECEIVABLE."—Notes with or without collateral security, taken for money loaned, or for a debt.
- "BONDS."—Written obligation under seal.
- "BROKERAGE."—Fees or commissions allowed a broker or sales agent.
- "CAPITAL STOCK."—Is that money or property contributed by stockholders to the corporation and becomes the corporate fund of the corporation. A share of capital stock is the right to partake of its surplus earnings, and in dissolution to share in its surplus property after its debts are paid. "Authorized capital" stock is the amount of capital the corporation or company is allowed by its charter to have. "Subscribed capital" stock is the amount of capital stock agreed to be taken by stockholders subscribed for. "Paid-in capital" stock is the amount of money actually paid in by the stockholders.
- "CASH."—Usually means money on hand, as distinguished from money in banks, but sometimes includes both.
- "CERTIFIED BONDS."—Obligations issued under the seal of the corporation or company.
- "CERTIFICATE OF DEPOSIT."—An acknowledgment of the receipt of a certain sum of money and a promise to pay back the same on presentation of the certificate, with or without notice, and with or without interest, according to its terms.
- "CERTIFICATE OF INDEBTEDNESS."—A declaration that the corporation or company issuing it is indebted to the person to whom issued for the amount stated, with or without interest.

- "COMMISSION NOTES," "OR MORTGAGES."—Are notes given to the company for the accommodation of the loan, and in payment for obtaining it by the borrower. They may or may not be secured in the first mortgage, and may or may not bear interest. Usually they are liens subsequent to the principal mortgage and payable in installments without interest.
- "CURRENT EXPENSES."—Amount paid for running the business of the company not charged into profit and loss. This amount is usually charged into the profit and loss account at frequent intervals.
- "DEBENTURES."—"A writing acknowledging a debt." "An unsecured bond." As used in the reports debentures bonds are bonds issued in series of $100,000 usually, the payment of which is secured by the deposit of some person or corporation in trust of certain securities, which securities the trustees are empowered to sell and use the proceeds to pay the debenture according to its terms in case the company issuing it fails to do so.
- "DEFICIT."—The excess of liabilities over assets.
- "DEPOSITS AWAITING INVESTMENT."—Money left with the company to invest, and for the use of which until invested a stipulated rate of interest is usually given.
- "DISCOUNTS."—Notes or other promises to pay purchased by, or for which the company has advanced, less than their matured value.
- "DIVIDENDS UNPAID."—Dividends declared but not yet actually paid out to the stockholders.
- "DUE BORROWERS ON LOANS MADE."—In some companies the money loaned is paid to the borrower as improvements progress in installments; where a loan is made on the site of a building and a building to be erected; for example, the money is paid to the borrower only as the erection of the building progresses, and when such a loan is carried in first liens at its face value, the balance to be paid to the borrower is carried as due borrowers on loans made.
- "DUE FROM BANKS AND BANKERS."—Deposits in banks and with bankers to the credit of the company.
- "DUE FROM BRANCH OFFICES AND AGENTS."—Difference between securities sent and remittances made and paid to the credit of the company.
- "DUE FROM SUNDRY PERSONS."—Miscellaneous credits from individuals.
- "DUE ON UNCOMPLETED LOANS."—The advances made to borrowers to procure abstract of title, or pay off incumbrance, etc., before the execution of the mortgage.
- "DUE TO BANKS AND BANKERS."—Should represent the aggregate amount of money balances due by the company to banks and bankers. In some companies it is used to include borrowed money, which ought properly to be carried as bills payable.
- "DUE TO BRANCH OFFICE AND AGENTS."—Difference between securities sent and received and remittances made and paid. Business balances.

- “EARNED COMMISSIONS.”—The present worth of the aggregate difference between the interest paid by borrowers on mortgage securities deposited in trust to secure the payment of the debentures, and the rate paid by the debentures.
- “FORECLOSURE ACCOUNT.”—This account varies in the companies. Sometimes it is costs of foreclosure only, sometimes it includes tax certificates, commission mortgage, past due interest, and, occasionally, in addition to all these, the principal mortgage. Some companies, as soon as a foreclosure action is begun, charge the amount of that mortgage out of mortgage account and into foreclosure account. Some have no foreclosure account, but carry the mortgage foreclosed in mortgage account until they actually receive the deed on foreclosure, at the expiration of the period of redemption, and charge the amount direct from mortgage account on obtaining a deed into real estate account. In the various ways in which loans being foreclosed are carried in the different companies can be read quite clearly, whether the company is trying to conceal its real condition as to foreclosures or not.
- “FURNITURE AND FIXTURES.”—In some cases this represents the total cost of the furnishing of the office, together with stationery, plates, records, etc. In others a part is charged off to profit and loss each year.
- “GUARANTY FUND.”—In most cases this is a part of the surplus set aside voluntarily by the company and theoretically devoted to the payment of the obligations of the company, not to be used until such obligations are all extinguished; but practically it may be changed and used in dividends or otherwise, as the board of directors elect. In some cases it is an actual liability carried against some doubtful asset, and in rarer cases, only one in the companies licensed in New York this year, a specific amount of money is deposited with a trustee to be kept by them until all of the company's obligations are extinguished. But even this could probably be changed by proper resolution of the board of directors. Practically it is to be treated as part of the surplus except in the cases where it may be carried as an offset for a doubtful asset. Occasionally it represents the amount of discount from face value of commission notes.
- “INSTALLMENT NOTES.”—Commission notes, payable in installments, without interest.
- “INSURANCE ACCOUNT.”—Amount paid out for insuring property. An expense, but as, in case of change of title or otherwise, it might be rebated, it is usually allowed the same as taxes or costs in foreclosure.
- “INTEREST PAID IN ADVANCE BY BORROWER.”—Just what it appears to be; interest paid before due.
- “LAND CONTRACTS.”—Usually contracts taken by the company from a purchaser of their real estate, and carried in this account until, according to their terms, the time comes for the delivery of the deed.
- “LAND NOTES.”—Notes given for the purchase money of real estate sold by the company.

- “LOANS PAID BUT NOT REMITTED FOR.” — In this account is carried the money paid by borrowers in whole or partial payment of their mortgages until such time as the money is remitted to the owner of the mortgage. The delay may be occasioned by failure to get proper execution of release and other papers, etc.
- “LOANS ON PERSONAL SECURITY.” — Loans on unsecured promissory notes.
- “LOANS ON COLLATERAL SECURITY.” — Loans on promissory notes secured by the deposit of collateral.
- “LOANS SECURED BY FIRST LIENS ON REAL ESTATE.” — First mortgages, land notes, vendors’ liens.
- “LOANS SECURED BY SECOND LIENS ON REAL ESTATE.” — Second mortgages, taken as additional security or for commissions, and may be with or without interest before maturity.
- “OFFICE BUILDING.” — Defines itself. Sometimes it is carried at its estimated market value and sometimes at cost, which may be more or less than the market value.
- “OTHER ASSETS.” “OTHER DEPOSITS.” “OTHER LIABILITIES.” — Assets, deposits or liabilities accounts carried by the company, but not particularly enumerated on the blank.
- “OTHER REAL ESTATE.” — Real estate acquired either by foreclosure, purchase or voluntary deeding, other than the office building.
- “PAST-DUE INTEREST REMITTED FOR BUT NOT PAID TO US.” — It is a quite general custom of mortgage companies to advance money to meet maturing interest payments on the mortgages negotiated by them, whether guaranteed or unguaranteed. For that purpose it is necessary for them to have on deposit at the place in the east where the coupons are made payable money sufficient to meet such obligations, before they themselves receive interest from the mortgagor, the coupons being forwarded to the company to be kept until paid by the mortgagor (or charged into foreclosure or real estate account on foreclosure) and are carried in assets as advanced, or past-due interest.”
- “PAST-DUE LOANS REMITTED FOR BUT NOT PAID TO US.” — In the case of guaranteed loans the company has to pay the principal of the mortgage when due, even though the mortgagor may have defaulted. In such cases they are subrogated to the rights of the eastern purchaser, either because of their having paid the money or by formal assignment, the mortgages being forwarded and kept by the company until taken up by the mortgagor, or charged into foreclosure account sheet as past-due loans remitted for.
- “PREMIUMS.” — As a liability represents amount commission notes are discounted. For example, if company carried commission notes at eighty-five per cent they carry them in assets at their face value, and carry fifteen per cent of this face value as premium, or guaranty fund.
- “PREMIUMS PAID.” — Another item that appears in the statements of some of the companies is “premiums paid” or “premium account.” This represents the good-will account of some firm or corporation or business that the mortgage company has succeeded. For instance, in several cases the present corporation is an outgrowth of the business of a firm or individual engaged in loaning money. When the corporation was organized, that business was turned over to the corporation, and the firm or individual received as a consideration therefor a certain amount of the capital stock of the company, and the amount so paid is carried on the books of the company as a premium account. Sometimes it represents amount actually paid above par for stocks and bonds purchased.

“REDISCOUNTS.”—Discounted discounts. That is notes sold to another company or bank, which have first been discounted by the company reporting. But few of the mortgaged companies carry this amount.

“SHEEP NOTES.”—Property note taken for sheep sold, which note is the same as a chattel mortgage on the sheep and increase, until paid. Held by Dakota companies only.

“STOCKS AND BONDS.”—Defines itself, except that occasionally some of the companies carry in this amount any shares of its own capital stock on hand.

“TAX SALE CERTIFICATES.”—Generally represents the payment of taxes where the mortgagor fails to pay and the company obtaining information of that fact pay the taxes themselves and take a certificate of payment in order to preserve their lien intact, but sometimes they are purchased as an investment because of the high rates of interest they bear, being, in some States, two per cent a month.

“TOPOGRAPHICAL RECORDS.” “ABSTRACTS OF TITLE.”—This account, when carried, includes the books of record, abstracts of title, etc., obtained by the company in the course of its business. Where a company has been in business for a long time, these records show them the topography and character of the land upon which they receive applications for loans, and enable the officers to verify the estimated valuation of their appraisers in the field. They are of value to the company, and would be of value to another company intending to loan in the same fields, but would have no more than a nominal value at forced sale to other than mortgage companies.

“TRUST SAVINGS FUNDS.”—Deposits in trust, sometimes bearing interest and sometimes not.

“UNCERTIFIED DEBENTURES.”—Unsecured coupon bonds, issued by the company, in form of debenture, but having no deposit in trust to secure their payment.

“UNDIVIDED PROFITS.”—Profits not yet charged into another account. The balance of this account, after paying current expenses and dividends, is usually charged into surplus account.

“VENDORS' LIENS.”—Purchase money notes. Notes given for the purchase money of real estate, a first lien; usually the vendor waives homestead rights when necessary.

“WARRANTS.”—Evidence of debt issued by municipalities for improvements, payable on the collection of taxes assessed against the property improved.

CHAPTER 506.

AN ACT relating to the supervision of mortgage companies organized under the laws of another state.

APPROVED by the Governor June 5, 1890. Passed, three-fifths being present.

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. The superintendent of the banking department is hereby empowered and directed to issue a license under his hand and seal, in accordance with the conditions hereinafter mentioned, authorizing mortgage companies organized under the laws of another state to transact business within the limits of this state. The supervisory power granted under this act shall apply to associations, copartnerships, individuals, joint-stock companies, firms, or corporations organized under the laws of any other state, and known as mortgage, loan, investment or trust companies, who sell, offer for sale, or negotiate bonds or notes secured by deed or trust or mortgage of real estate, or choses in action, owned, issued, negotiated or guaranteed by it or them.

§ 2. The companies, associations and others described in section one of this act, shall make and furnish to the superintendent of the banking department a true and verified statement of their financial condition in detail on blanks furnished by the superintendent for that purpose, which statement shall show first, the amount of capital actually paid in, in cash; second, the amount of capital subscribed; third, the undivided profits or earnings on hand; fourth, the total liabilities itemized in such form as may be indicated in the blanks; fifth, the total amount of moneys loaned, invested or guaranteed; sixth, the number and amount of all mortgages in arrears of interest for a period exceeding six months prior to the date of said report; seventh, the number and amount of mortgages foreclosed during the past year; and eighth, the present cash value of all the real estate held or owned by foreclosure or otherwise, and such other and further information concerning their business affairs and methods as the superintendent shall require. The said statement shall be signed by such officers and others, and in such form as the superintendent may prescribe. The first statement under this act shall be made on the first day of July, eighteen hundred and ninety, and succeeding statements shall be made semi-annually on the first day of January and July respectively. The superintendent may, if he be of opinion that it is desirable, require that a like report from any company, either wholly or in part, as to the particulars aforesaid be made to him at any time and submitted, within such period as he may designate. Before the issuance of a license to, transact business, it shall be the further duty of the superintendent either personally, or by some competent person or persons appointed by him, to visit and examine thoroughly into the condition, business methods and affairs generally of any company, association, corporation, copartnership or individual proposed to be licensed by him; and the said superintendent is hereby empowered to make such examination as often thereafter as he deems necessary, but such examination shall be made at least once in every year. The superintendent and every such examiner shall have power to administer an oath to any person whose testimony may be required in any such examination and to compel the appearance and attendance of any such person for the purpose of such examination by summons, subpoena or attachment in the manner now authorized in respect to the attendance of persons as witnesses in the courts of record of this state; and all books and papers which it may be deemed necessary to examine by the superintendent or the examiner or examiners so appointed shall be produced and their production may be compelled within like manner. The expense of every such examination shall be paid by the corporation company, firm or association examined to such an amount as the superintendent shall determine. Whenever such examination shall be made by the superintendent personally, or by one or more of the regular clerks in his department, no charge shall be made in such examination but for the necessary traveling and other actual expenses. On every such examination inquiry shall be made as to the condition and resources of the company generally, the mode of conducting and managing its affairs, the advice of its directors or trustees, the investment of its funds, the safety and prudence of its management, the security afforded to those by whom its engagements are held, and whether the requirements of its charter and of law have been complied with in the administration of its affairs.

§ 3. Whenever it shall appear to the superintendent of the banking department from an examination made and the statement or report submitted by any such company, corporation, copartnership, firm or association, pursuant to the requirements of section two of this act, that it is conducting its affairs in a safe and authorized manner, he shall issue to said company, corporation, copartnership, firm or association, a certificate, under his hand and seal, permitting it to transact business in this state for the term of one year from the date thereof.

§ 4. No person, association, corporation, company or partnership shall, after the first day of October, eighteen hundred and ninety, act in this state as the agent or representative of any company, corporation or others described in section one of this act unless the same be duly licensed by the superintendent of the banking department, as hereinbefore provided. Every such company, corporation, or others described in section one of this act, shall, within thirty days after being authorized to transact business in this state, file in the office of the superintendent of the banking department a certificate stating the name and business address of every person, association, corporation, company, firm or others who act or propose to act in this state as the agent or representative of such company, and in case of any change in such representation, an amended certificate shall forthwith be filed as herein provided. Whoever shall offend against the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall also forfeit the sum of one thousand dollars. The penalties prescribed herein shall be recovered by suit in the name of the people of this state, to be prosecuted by the attorney-general.

§ 5. Licensees under the provisions of this act shall pay their proportionate share of the expenses of the banking department as is now required of banks and other corporations supervised by the superintendent of the banking department by section six of chapter four hundred and nine of the laws of eighteen hundred and eighty-two, and for such purpose said licensees shall be subject to the provisions of said section.

§ 6. Licensees under the provisions of this act shall be granted a limit of twenty days after January first and July first, respectively, in which to file the semi-annual statements in the office of the superintendent of the banking department, and upon failure to so report within the specified time or to otherwise comply with the requirements of this act the superintendent shall revoke the said license as provided in section seven of this act.

§ 7. Whenever it shall appear to the said superintendent from an examination made or report submitted by such licensee under this act, or from sufficient information otherwise obtained that such licensee is conducting its business and affairs in an unsafe or unauthorized manner he shall by an order under his hand and seal of office addressed to such licensee direct said licensee to discontinue such unsafe or illegal practices and to conform to the requirements of its charter and of law, and to provide for the safety and security of its transactions. If such licensee shall neglect or refuse to make any report as hereinbefore specified, or to comply with such order as aforesaid; or whenever it shall appear to the superintendent that it is unsafe or inexpedient for any such licensee to continue the transaction of business, he shall forthwith revoke the license of such company and serve a copy of the order of revocation on said company at its head office, a copy of said order shall also be served upon each agent or representative of said company named as prescribed by section four of this act, by depositing the same in the post-office directed to each of said agents at his place of business. The superintendent may also in his discretion publish such order with such other facts as he may deem proper for six successive days in the state paper published in the city of Albany.

§ 8. It shall be the duty of the superintendent of the banking department, on or before the first day of March in each year, to communicate to the legislature a statement of the condition of every company and others, described in section one, authorized to transact business in this state, or from which a report has been received for the preceding year, giving, in detail, the actual financial condition of every such company, together with such other facts as may, in his judgment, be right and proper to communicate for the public benefit. It shall be the duty of the superintendent to print the said report, as a separate document, the cost of same to be defrayed in like manner as other expenses incurred in and about the conducting of the business of the said department.

§ 9. Every corporation, company, firm or association, described in section one of this act, shall, before being authorized to transact business within this state, by an instrument in writing, duly executed, appoint the superintendent of the banking department of this state the true and lawful attorney of such corporation, company or association, upon whom all lawful process in any action or proceeding by any resident of this state against such corporation, company or association may be served with the same effect as if such corporation, company or association existed in this state and had been lawfully served with process therein. A certificate of such appointment, duly certified and authenticated, shall be filed in the office of the superintendent of the banking department, and copies certified by him or his deputy shall be deemed sufficient evidence in regard thereto. Service in favor of a resident of this state upon such attorney shall thereafter be deemed a personal service upon such corporation, company or association. Whenever lawful process against such corporation, company or association shall be served upon the superintendent of the banking department, under the provisions of this act, he shall forthwith forward a copy of the process served on him, by mail, pre-paid, and directed to the president or secretary of the corporation, company or association of the last-named post-office address of such corporation, company or association. For each copy of process the superintendent shall collect the sum of two dollars, which shall be paid by the plaintiff or moving party at the time of such service, the same to be recovered by him as part of his taxable disbursements, if he succeeds in his suit or proceeding. The term "process" in this act includes any writ, summons, petition or order, whereby any suit, action or proceeding shall be commenced by a resident of this state.

§ 10. The supervisory powers granted under this act shall also apply to associations, copartnerships, joint-stock companies or corporations organized under the laws of the state, who sell, or offer for sale, or negotiate bonds or notes secured by deed of trust or mortgage of real estate, situate outside of this state, owned, issued, negotiated or guaranteed by it or them.

§ 11. The provisions of this act shall not apply to trust, loan, mortgage, security, guarantee or indemnity companies or associations, organized under the laws of another state, which now do or hereafter may make the deposit of securities with the superintendent of the banking department required by section two hundred and twenty-four of chapter four hundred and nine of the laws of eighteen hundred and eighty-two.

§ 12. The sum of three thousand dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary is hereby appropriated out of any moneys in the treasury not otherwise appropriated to defray the expenses of carrying out the provisions of this act, to be paid from the treasury on the order of the superintendent of the banking department, said sum to be refunded to the treasury by the licensees under this act on assessment made by the said superintendent as provided by section five of this act.

§ 13. This act shall take effect July first, eighteen hundred and ninety.

RESOLUTION OF THE ASSEMBLY, RELATIVE TO THE APPROPRIATION OF MONEYS FOR THE CONSTRUCTION OR RECONSTRUCTION OF CANAL BRIDGES.

OFFICE OF THE SUPERINTENDENT OF PUBLIC WORKS, }
ALBANY, March 3, 1892. }

To the Honorable the Assembly of the State of New York :

On February seventeenth the Assembly adopted the following resolution:

“Resolved, That the Superintendent of Public Works be and he is hereby requested to report to the Assembly within ten days what appropriation should be made by this Legislature for the construction or reconstruction of canal bridges, under the limitations prescribed by chapter 366, Laws of 1891, specifying the kind and location of such bridges, if any, the probable expense thereof, and whether the same should be constructed in whole or in part by the State; also, as to what other special work in connection with the canals should be provided for by this Legislature, in order that they may be maintained in their present condition of usefulness, aside from the work which may be done out of the funds for ordinary maintenance."

In pursuance thereto, the Superintendent of Public Works reports as follows:

First, as to the inquiry, "What appropriation should be made by this Legislature for the construction or reconstruction of canal bridges, under the limitations prescribed by chapter 366, Laws of 1891, specifying the kind and location of such bridges, if any, the probable expense thereof, and whether the same should be constructed in whole or in part by this State?"

Chapter 366 of the Laws of 1891 provides that "Hereafter, no street or road bridges shall be constructed or reconstructed by the Superintendent of Public Works, over any canal in this State, except upon such street or roads as were laid out, worked and used, previous to the construction of the canal by which such streets or roads were obstructed."

There are no maps or other records on file in this department, to show what streets or roads were laid out, worked or used previous to the construction of the canals, and a reply to this inquiry involves a great deal of labor in searching the records in the offices of the different county clerks in the counties through which the canals pass, all of which could not be ascertained in the limited time prescribed by the resolution, and it is extremely doubtful if this information can be accurately ascertained. In reference to a similar resolution passed by the Senate of 1891, the State Engineer and Surveyor made similar answer, which can be found in Senate document No. 50 of that year. There are 967 bridges belonging to the State, which cross the canals now in operation, and 141 bridges belonging to various parties or corporations; these 967 bridges are kept in repair by the State, and the payments therefor are made from the fund for the ordinary repairs of the canals; all farm bridges and ordinary wooden bridges are repaired and, when necessary, are rebuilt, and the expense is also paid for the fund for ordinary repairs of the canals, but when new bridges are to be constructed (other than farm or ordinary wooden bridges), provision must be made for such construction by the Legislature.

In reply to that portion of the resolution which reads as follows: "Also, as to what other special work in connection with the canals should be provided for by this Legislature, in order that they may be maintained in their present condition of usefulness, aside from the work which may be done out of the funds for ordinary maintenance," I wish to state that now, for the fourth time, I renew my recommendation to the Legislature to make an appropriation for the repair of the two Mohawk aqueducts and the Schoharie creek aqueduct; these recommendations may be found in my report to the Legislature in 1891, and in a special communication transmitted to the Legislature by the State Engineer and Surveyor and myself, on March 20, 1891, and they are also contained in my report to the Legislature, January 5, 1892. I also recommend an appropriation for the completion of the Forestport dam, and for the completion of the vertical wall west of Schenectady; an appropriation to improve the canal level in the city of Buffalo (between Ferry and Commercial streets), by deepening the same so as to admit the passage of boats during periods of low water in Lake Erie. I recommend an appropriation to complete the improvements on Oak Orchard creek. Provision should also be made, without delay, for increasing the supply of water on the Champlain canal, which work involves the construction of one or more storage reservoirs. There are also considerable improvements necessary upon the Oswego canal, among which is that of building a stone wall, and repairing and restoring the apron on the dam, on Oswego river. The canal wall on the Cayuga and Seneca canal, at Seneca Falls, should be rebuilt at once. And, if the Black River canal is to be maintained in its former state of usefulness, a large number of the locks upon this canal should be rebuilt at once; reference to this matter has before been made, in my last annual report. The dam at Cohoes is very badly out of repair, and an appropriation for its repair is a great necessity.

All of which is respectfully submitted

STATE OF NEW YORK:

OFFICE OF FACTORY INSPECTORS, }
ALBANY, January 10, 1892. }

To the Legislature:

Pursuant to the requirements of chapter 409 of the Laws of 1886, as amended, we have the honor herewith to transmit complete information touching the operation of the laws which the factory inspectors are required to enforce, together with such comment and recommendations as may in our judgment conduce to the better observance and improvement of such statutes.

The past year has been a very important one to this department, inasmuch as the good results of our efforts in endeavoring to ameliorate the conditions of labor in many previously dangerous and unhealthy factories and workshops have become apparent, and the commendable spirit of friendliness on the part of employers towards the officers and purposes of the law has made it easier to obtain compliances with our orders, and has rendered much more agreeable a task, which, in the early days of our official experience, was oftentimes decidedly unpleasant.

In the following pages will be found in detail a condensed statement of the names and location of each manufactory and workshop which was inspected, together with the number, age and sex of the employes therein, their hours of labor, time for noonday meal, and the changes ordered in reference to such employes, or in the buildings or work-rooms which they occupy or the machinery operated by them, and whether such alterations have been complied with. Interesting statistics are also given concerning the accidents which have occurred in the various manufacturing establishments of the State, the circumstances attending the most important of which were especially investigated by officers of the department.

A number of recommendations are made with reference to desirable amendments and extensions of the law, and in offering these for the consideration of your honorable body it is respectfully urged that they be given due consideration, and, if approved, engrafted upon the existing statutes. Some of these recommendations, if adopted, will, of course, increase the duties of the inspectors, which concededly are already more than enough to keep them busy, but others are intended to simplify the law and remove causes of unnecessary friction.

Perhaps it is well to state in this connection that the duties of the inspectors at present are far more sweeping and onerous than when the factory inspection law was first passed. Originally, the inspectors were simply required to expel children under 13 years of age from a limited number of factories and mills, and to see that certain minors were not obliged to work more than a total of sixty hours a week. Nothing more was required of them under the law of 1886. Since then their functions have been added to by almost every Legislature, until now the law further requires that attention be given to sanitation, the better protection of machinery, providing of fire-escapes, inquiring as to the education of children employed, preventing minors of both sexes from working in factories between 9 P. M. and 6 A. M., compelling observance of certain rules of decency where persons of both sexes are employed, guarding of elevators and hoistways, compelling corporations to pay wages weekly, investigating accidents in manufacturing establishments, enforcing the apprenticeship law, prosecuting offenders (no attorney is allowed us), and in various other directions additional duties and responsibilities have been placed upon the inspectors. It is not our purpose in thus calling attention to these matters to object to them, because they are naturally within the province of the recognized duties of factory inspectors, but it is frankly submitted that the nature and importance of the work would warrant that men engaged in such service, and competent to perform it, should be paid at least as well as other servants of the State who, it is conceded, do not do as much work or bring into requisition any more extended ability. The deputy factory inspectors are required to travel long distances, be absent from their homes and families for considerable periods of time, and are subject to many legitimate expenses which can not be charged to the State, and yet they are paid only $1,000 a year — not as much as the average clerk receives for labor requiring no skill, tact, mechanical or technical knowledge. It is therefore urged that the salaries of the deputies be increased to a sum commensurate with the nature and importance of the duties required to be performed, and that in this respect this department be put at least on an equal footing with the other departments of the State.

It is not our desire to any way magnify the importance of the factory department, and therefore in this connection it may be said that while there is a lengthy catalogue of duties for the inspectors to observe, yet the law does not give them such extensive authority as many well-meaning persons imagine that they are clothed with. For this reason, perhaps, there are some people who are disappointed with the seemingly studied neglect of the inspectors to invade the premises of this or that disreputable workshop or "sweater's" den, and with a figurative whip of scorpions vindicate the outraged philanthropical impulses of these our critics. It is not long ago since a prominent New York newspaper in "scare" headlines and hysterical paragraphs denounced the inspectors for not preventing the overcrowding which undeniably exists in a thousand or more workshops of the metropolis, and kept the agitation up for over a week — no doubt until some one kindly pointed out the lack of law for such a proceeding; and again, we were the subject of severe public censure from the pen and mouth of a president of a great trade union (who ought to know better, anyway) because children under 16 years of age were not absolutely prohibited by the inspectors from working at the tobacco business in this State, giving as a reason that the inspector of a neighboring State had the power to and did issue such a proclamation. We are called upon by persons who suppose we have such authority to inspect boilers and to examine engineers of stationary engines; to provide school books and clothing for children; to inspect hotels and tenements; to analyze wells and tear down buildings; to enforce the Saturday half-holiday law and prohibit Sunday labor; to institute civil suits for damages where accidents have occurred; to compel employers to give cash instead of bank-checks for wages; to become collectors of debts where employers of labor had failed in business; to settle strikes; to make partnerships or individuals pay wages once a week, and to do many other things the not doing of which meant denunciatory resolutions, an unfriendly squib in a local paper, or a petition to the Governor for an immediate change of the incumbents of the offices. These things are mentioned, not because we desire to pose in historical niches as martyrs, but to demonstrate that no matter how earnestly the present factory laws are enforced, there are those who will carp at and condemn the inspectors because the Legislature has not established what is usually considered a thorough system of factory inspection.

Now, while some of the above-mentioned items of criticism are cranky and ridiculous, the frequent appearance of others would indicate that there is a strong public sentiment, backed by the logic of necessity and justice, in favor of such amendments as will make the factory laws conform to the legislation of other States and countries, and, in passing, it is well to say that in our recommendations we have endeavored to avoid a spirit of radicalism and fostered a desire to keep abreast of the progress of neighboring commonwealths and of the trend of public opinion in our own State—and in the arguments presented we believe there will be found ample justification for materially modifying our present factory laws.

It is believed that the commission on revision of the laws has been at work upon a codification of the existing factory acts and will present its report to the Legislature early in this session. While it is desirable that there be a condensation of the several somewhat conflicting and, at times, vague factory laws now on the statute books, it is also pertinent to say that there is more necessity for a thorough, simple factory act, embracing all matters which ought to be embraced therein, the terms of which should be plain and unequivocal. We believe that such an act can be drawn up and, with the light of past experience, can be made so as to require no important alteration in the future. No matter what may be said, it is certain that there will be no turning backward in factory reform laws. We might as well go to the front in such matters as be pestered by a constant agitation to keep up with some other and less important State. If the revisory commission has the authority, we hope it will handle the subject in the broadest possible manner.

THE FACTORY INSPECTION LAW.*

The law relating to the inspection of manufacturing establishments was amended by the Legislature of 1890 to read as follows:

Chapter 409, Laws of 1886 (as amended).

AN ACT to regulate the employment of women and children in manufacturing establishments, and to provide for the appointment of inspectors to enforce the same.

§ 3. Every person, firm or corporation employing any person under eighteen years of age, or any woman under twenty-one years of age in any manufacturing establishment, shall post and keep posted in a conspicuous place in every room where such help is employed, a printed notice stating the number of hours per day for each day of the week required of such persons, and in every room where children under sixteen years of age are employed, a list of their names with their ages respectively. [As amended by chapter 398, Laws of 1890.]

[As amended by chapter 560, Laws of 1889.]

§ 5. The words "manufacturing establishment" wherever used in this act, shall be construed to mean any place where goods or products are manufactured, repaired, cleaned or sorted, in whole or in part; but no other person or corporation employing less than five persons or children, excepting in any of the cities of this state, shall be deemed a manufacturing establishment within the meaning of this act.

§ 6. Upon the expiration of the term of office of the present factory inspector, and upon the expiration of the term of office of each of his successors, the governor shall, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, appoint a factory inspector; and upon the expiration of the term of office of the present assistant factory inspector, and upon the expiration of the term of office of each of his successors, the governor shall, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, appoint an assistant factory inspector. Each factory inspector and assistant factory inspector shall hold over and continue in office, after the expiration of his term of office, until his successor shall be appointed and qualified. The factory inspector is hereby authorized to appoint from time to time not exceeding eight men and not exceeding eight women to be deputy factory inspectors, and to remove the same at any time. The term of office of the factory inspector and of the assistant factory inspector shall be three years each. Annual salaries shall be paid in equal monthly installments, as follows: To the factory inspector, two thousand dollars; to the assistant factory inspector, fifteen hundred dollars; to each deputy factory inspector, one thousand dollars.

§ 7. All necessary expenses incurred by the factory inspector and assistant factory inspector in the discharge of their duties, not exceeding thirty-five hundred dollars in any one year, shall be paid by the treasurer upon the warrant of the comptroller, issued upon proper vouchers therefor. The reasonable necessary traveling and other expenses of the deputy factory inspectors, while engaged in the performance of their duties, shall be paid in like manner upon vouchers approved by the factory inspector and audited by the comptroller. All such expenses shall be payable monthly.

§ 8. It shall be the duty of the owner, agent or lessee of any manufacturing establishing where hoisting-shafts or well-holes are used, to cause the same to be properly and substantially inclosed or secured, if, in the opinion of the factory inspector, or of the assistant factory inspector, or a deputy factory inspector, unless disapproved by the factory inspector, it is necessary to protect the life or limbs of those employed in such establishment. It shall also be the duty of the owner, agent or lessee of each of such establishments to provide or cause to be provided such proper trap or automatic doors, so fastened in or at all elevator ways as to form a substantial surface when closed, and so constructed as to open and close by action of the elevator in its passage, either ascending or descending, but the requirements of this section shall not apply to passenger elevators that are inclosed on all sides.

§ 9. Proper and substantial hand-rails shall be provided on all stairways in manufacturing establishments, and where, in the opinion of the factory inspector, or of the assistant factory inspector, or a deputy factory inspector, unless disapproved by the factory inspector, it is necessary, the steps of said stairs in all such establishments shall be substantially covered with rubber, securely fastened thereon, for the better safety of persons employed in said establishments. The stairs shall be properly screened at the sides and bottom, and all doors leading in or to such factory shall be so constructed as to open outwardly where practicable, and shall be neither locked, bolted nor fastened during working hours.

§ 10. If, in the opinion of the factory inspector, it is necessary to insure the safety of the persons employed in any manufacturing establishment, three or more stories in height, one or more fire-escapes, as may be deemed by the factory inspector as necessary and sufficient therefor, shall be provided on the outside of such establishment, connecting with each floor above the first, well-fastened and secured and of sufficient strength, each of which fire-escapes shall have landings or balconies, not less than six feet in length and three feet in width, guarded by iron railings not less than three feet in height, and embracing at least two windows at each story and connecting with the interior by easily accessible and unobstructed openings, and the balconies or landings shall be connected by iron stairs, not less than twenty-four inches wide, the steps not to be less than six inches tread, placed at not more than an angle of forty-five degrees slant, and protected by a well secured hand-rail on both sides, with a twelve-inch wide drop-ladder from the lower platform reaching to the ground. Any fire-escape so constructed shall be sufficient. Any other plan or style of fire-escape shall be sufficient, if approved by the factory inspector; but if not so approved, the factory inspector may notify the owner, proprietor or lessee of such establishment or of the building in which such establishment is conducted, or the agent or superintendent or either of them, in writing, that any such other plan or style of fire-escape is not sufficient, and may by an order in writing, served in like manner, require one or more fire-escapes, as he shall deem necessary and sufficient, to be provided for such establishment, at such locations and of such plan and style as shall be specified in such written order. Within twenty days after the service of such order, the number of fire-escapes required in such order for such establishment shall be provided therefor, each of which shall be either of the plan and style and in accordance with the specifications in said order required, or of the plan and style in this section above described and declared to be sufficient. The windows or doors of each fire-escape shall be located as far as possible, consistent with accessibility, from the stairways and elevator hatchways or openings, and the ladder thereof shall extend to the roof. Stationary stairs or ladders shall be provided on the inside of each such establishment from the upper story to the roof, as a means of escape in case of fire.

§ 11. It shall be the duty of the owner, agent, superintendent or other person having charge of each manufacturing establishment, or of any floor or part thereof, to report in writing to the factory inspector all accidents or injury done to any person in such factory, within forty-eight hours of the time of the accident, stating as fully as possible the extent and cause of such injury, and the place where the injured person has been sent. The factory inspector or assistant factory inspector and any deputy factory inspector under the supervision of the factory inspector, are hereby authorized and empowered to fully investigate the causes of such accidents, and to require such precautions to be taken as will in their judgment prevent the occurrence of similar accidents thereafter.

§ 12. It shall be the duty of the owner of any manufacturing establishment, or his agent, superintendent or other person in charge of the same, to furnish and supply, or cause to be furnished and supplied therein, in the discretion of the factory inspector, or of the assistant factory inspector, or of a deputy factory inspector, where machinery is in use, belt shifters or other safe mechanical contrivances, for the purpose of throwing on or off belts or pulleys; and wherever possible machinery therein shall be provided with loose pulleys; all vats, pans, saws, planers, cogs, gearing and machinery of every description therein shall be properly guarded. Exhaust fans shall be provided for the purpose of carrying off dust from emery wheels and grindstones, and dust-creating machinery therein. No person under eighteen years of age and no woman under twenty-one years of age shall be allowed to clean machinery therein while in motion.

§ 13. A suitable and proper wash-room and water-closets shall be provided in each manufacturing establishment, and such water-closets shall be properly screened and ventilated and be kept at all times in a clean condition, and if women or girls are employed in any such establishment, the water-closets used by them shall be separate and apart from those used by men. A dressing-room shall be provided for women and girls, when required by the factory inspector, in any such establishment in which women and girls shall be employed.

§ 14. Not less than forty-five minutes shall be allowed for the noon-day meal, in any manufacturing establishment in this state. The factory inspector, the assistant factory inspector, or any deputy factory inspector shall have power to issue written permits in special cases, allowing shorter meal time at noon, and such permit must be conspicuously posted in the main entrance of the establishment, and such permit may be revoked at any time the factory inspector deems necessary, and shall only be given where good cause can be shown.

§ 15. It shall be the duty of the factory inspector and of the assistant factory inspector, and of each of the deputy factory inspectors under the supervision and direction of the factory inspector, to cause this act to be enforced, and to cause all violators of this act to be prosecuted, and for that purpose they and each of them are hereby empowered to visit and inspect at all reasonable hours and as often as shall be practicable and necessary, all manufacturing establishments in this state. The factory inspector may divide the state into districts and assign one or more deputy factory inspectors to each district, and transfer them from one district to another as the best interests of the state may, in his judgment, require. Any deputy factory inspector may be appointed to act as clerk in the main office of the factory inspector, which shall be furnished in the capitol and set apart for the use of the factory inspector. The assistant factory inspector and the deputy factory inspectors shall make reports to the factory inspector from time to time as may be required by the factory inspector, and the factory inspector shall make an annual report to the Legislature during the month of January. The factory inspector, assistant factory inspector and each deputy factory inspector shall have the same powers as a notary public to administer oaths and take affidavits in matters connected with the enforcement of the provisions of this act. [Sections 5 to 15, inclusive, amended by chapter 398, Laws of 1890.]

§ 16. The district attorney of any county of this state is hereby authorized upon the request of the factory inspector, or either of his deputies, or of any other person of full age, to commence and prosecute to termination before any recorder, police justice, or court of record, in the name of the people of the state, actions or proceedings against any persons or persons reported to him to have violated the provisions of this act. [As amended by chapter 462, Laws of 1887.]

§ 17. Any person who violates or omits to comply with any of the foregoing provisions of this act, or who suffers or permits any child to be employed in violation of its provisions, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction shall be punished by a fine of not less than twenty nor more than one hundred dollars, or by imprisonment for not less than thirty nor more than ninety days, or by both such fine and imprisonment. [As amended by chapter 462, Laws of 1889.]

§ 21.* A copy of this act shall be posted in each work-room of every manufacturing establishment in this state, where persons are employed who are affected by the provisions of this act.

§ 19. All acts or parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed.

§ 23.* This act shall take effect immediately.

CHILD LABOR.

So far as relates to their employment in manufacturing establishments, New York is in advance of any other State or country in absolutely prohibiting children under 14 years from working therein. The law is well obeyed. Perhaps, here and there, a child under that age may be hired, through a mistaken sense of pity for its poverty; or a parent's cupidity may lead to the making of a false affidavit concerning a child's age, and it be therefore put to work; or perhaps the carelessness of some foreman or overseer will result in letting a child slip in who would lawfully be ineligible for work; but there is comparatively little of this. There is no longer a disposition on the part of sensible employers to utilize child labor. Experience, since the passage of the act, has rendered practical demonstration showing that child labor is not cheap labor. Children may not, individually, look expensive on the pay-roll, but it is the opinion of careful and experienced observers that when the results of their efforts are figured out, it is proven to be a costly sort of labor at best. There is more damage to the product, inferior workmanship, disarrangement of machinery, loss of time, and a necessity for greater watchfulness where child labor is the rule than in those establishments wherein few or no children are employed. The risk of bodily injury to them is vastly greater, with the consequent costly suits and settlements for damages. Reluctant as were many employers to concede this when the age limit was at 14 years, we now rarely meet one who believes there is any financial or competitive advantage in employing children at any price, however small their wages may be.

We have done better in this State than simply prohibit the employment of children under 14 in manufactories. There has been a great diminution in the number of children between 14 and 16 years of age. Numerous proprietors of mills and workshops have voluntarily decided to employ no child under 16 years of age. By this they avoid all risk of unknowingly hiring a child under 14, and at the same time they are rid of the annoyance of obtaining affidavits of children's ages, of keeping a record book, and of having the names, etc., of the children posted in the various work-rooms. This policy on the part of so many employers of child labor has sensibly reduced the child-labor evil all over the State. To demonstrate this we give the following tabulated statement of the number of children and adults employed in the factories and workshops inspected by us, with the percentage of child labor each year:

Summary by districts, showing the number of factories and workshops inspected, the total number of employes, the relative number of women under 21, youths under 18 and children under 16, and the percentage of children under 16 years of age employed in such factories and workshops.

Notwithstanding this showing, there still remains a direction to which legislative action might be turned, in order to further protect and benefit the children. There are engaged in dangerous occupations in this State several hundreds of juveniles under 16 years of age, whose natural impulsiveness and tendency to thoughtless mischief very often lead them into risking their lives and limbs. The law ought to be amended so as to prohibit this. No child under 16 years of age should be employed to operate a dangerous machine, or required to put on or sew belts of rapidly revolving machinery, and from some classes of mills, as for instance, saw mills, planing mills, etc., they ought to be excluded absolutely. The number of harrowing injuries sustained by persons of tender years in the mills and workshops every year is very great; and when it is borne in mind that these accidents would not in the natural course of events have occurred to persons of greater years and consequent better discretion, it seems to us to be an imperative duty of the Legislature to prohibit the employment of children in such hazardous occupations. The following summary of accidents to children in the factories and workshops of this State is made up from the reports of accidents made to this department during the past five years. It is only a partial statement, however, for the reason that many employers have shamefacedly avoided sending in their reports; but even as it is, it shows the necessity of amending the law in the manner suggested:

In the neighboring State of Ohio the Legislature has recognized the importance of this subject, and in a lately-enacted statute put the power of abolishing child labor in and around dangerous and unhealthy places in the hands of its factory inspector. This was done by taking section 289 of the Penal Code of our own State, and by a few verbal changes it was transformed into a very strict and easily-enforceable law. We are told that this act has done more to root out the child labor evil in Ohio in one year than had been accomplished by years of effort under its old factory laws. It is not unreasonable to assume that if similarly applied in this State it would be equally as beneficial. However, if it is found that the present law as it stands in the code will sustain a construction permitting the factory inspectors to enforce it in connection with their other duties, a test will be made. The Ohio law is as follows :

AN OHIO CHILD LABOR LAW.

AN ACT to prevent the engagement of children at such employment whereby their lives and limbs may be endangered, or their health injured, or their morals likely to be impaired.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Ohio that no child under the age of sixteen years shall be employed by any person, firm or corporation in this state, at employment whereby its life or limb is endangered, or its health is likely to be injured, or its morals may be depraved by such employment.

§ 2. Any person, firm or corporation in this state who willfully causes or permits the life or limb of any child under the age of sixteen years to be endangered, or its health to be injured, or its morals to become depraved from and while actually in their employ, or who willfully permits such child to be placed in such a position or to engage in such employment that its life or limb is in danger, or its health likely to be injured, or its morals likely to be impaired by such position or employment, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof, shall be fined in any sum not less than ten dollars nor more than fifty dollars, or imprisonment not less than thirty days nor more than ninety days for each and every offense.

§ 3. It shall be the duty of the state inspector of workshops and factories to enforce the provisions of this act.

§ 4. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

In carrying out the provisions of the foregoing act the factory inspector of Ohio issued a circular which notified employers that children were debarred from employment in numerous lines of industry. Following is an extract from said circular:

Minors under the age of 16 years shall not be employed at sewing belts, nor shall they be permitted to assist in sewing belts in any capacity whatever; nor shall any such children adjust belts to any machinery; they shall not oil or assist in oiling, wiping or cleaning machinery; they shall not operate or assist in operating circular or band saws, wood-shapers, wood-jointers, planers, sand-paper or wood-polishing machinery, wood-turning or boring machinery, stamping machines in sheet metal and tin-ware manufacturing, stamping machines in washer and nut factories, operating corrugating rolls, such as are used in roofing or wash-board factories; they shall not operate or assist in operating dough brakes or cracker machinery of any description, wire or iron straightening machinery; nor shall they operate or assist in operating rolling-mill machinery, punches or shears, washing, grinding or mixing mills, or calendar rolls in rubber manufacturing or laundrying machinery; such children shall not be employed in any capacity in preparing composition for matches, or dipping, dyeing or packing matches; they shall not be employed in any capacity in the manufacture of paints, colors or white lead; nor shall such children be employed in any capacity whatever in operating or assisting to operate any passenger or freight elevator; nor shall such children be employed in any capacity whatever in the manufacture of goods for immoral purposes; and no females under 16 years of age shall be employed in any capacity where such employment compels them to remain standing constantly.

As heretofore stated, the law upon which Ohio's wise and vigorous action was based is section 289 of the Penal Code of this State, and is as follows:

Endangering the Life, Limbs, or Morals of a Child.

§ 289. A person who:

1. Willfully causes or permits the life or limb of any child actually or apparently under the age of sixteen years to be endangered, or its health to be injured, or its morals to become depraved; or

2. Willfully causes or permits such child to be placed in such a situation or to engage in such an occupation that its life or limb is endangered, or its health is likely to be injured, or its morals likely to be impaired; is guilty of a misdemeanor.— [As amended by chapter 145, Laws of 1888.]

While the duty of enforcing this section of the code does not specifically devolve upon the factory inspectors, there are instances of its violation constantly coming to our attention, and it has therefore been suggested that an assumption of such duty is warranted through the peculiar nature and extent of our opportunities for observation, especially in factories and workshops. It is our opinion that there are quite a number of industries in which children under 16 years of age are employed who are undoubtedly excluded from engaging in such occupations by the terms of the above section of the Penal Code. In view of this, and of the unlikelihood of any other officers of the law, State or local, assuming the responsibility of endeavoring to restrict the engagement of children in dangerous and unhealthy avenues of employment, it has become a mooted question as to whether it is advisable upon our part to bring proceedings against employers of children in such pursuits as experience has demonstrated to be unhealthful and physically disastrous. There can be no doubt that children should be rigidly excluded from certain employments. In previous reports attention has been called to this subject. In our report for 1888 we said, referring to the employment of children around machinery, which they should not be permitted to approach, much less control:

“Their bleeding, mangled arms, legs and bodies are terrible witnesses of the cruel system which makes their play-time the time of toil and danger. ‘Carelessness,’ say the manufacturers. Carelessness, not of the children, but of the law-makers to permit the helpless little ones to be dragged or driven into these grinding mills of destruction; worse than carelessness on the part of employers who see child after child crushed between the champing dies of their power presses, and yet take no step to prevent the recurrence of these accidents.

“What care they for the battalions of cripples turned loose upon the world? But the law, the government, should care. It is its most sacred duty to step in and save the weak and helpless from being deprived of their limbs. No child should be employed around a machine or factory where natural lack of foresight or caution will lead it into danger. * * * A child is not supposed to be endowed by nature with a cautious, discriminating disposition or a thorough knowledge of the dangerous qualities of machinery. When an employer, in order to obtain the benefit of a cheaper class of labor, hires children to do work which men alone should do, he ought to be made to pay dearly for whatever loss the child may suffer. * * * It is wrong from any standpoint, moral or legal, to employ a child at a machine where, should he turn his head to the right or left, or neglect to press his foot upon a lever, the loss of an arm or a finger is the penalty.”

It may again be mentioned here that children, especially young girls, should be prohibited from working in the tobacco trades. The damage to health which these occupations are responsible for has also been referred to in previous reports. Physicians are practically unanimous in their statements of the injurious effects of tobacco dust upon the growing system, and the statistics substantiating this are emphatic and easily accessible to all. The wisdom of properly restricting child labor in the various branches of the tobacco industry is so patent, that nothing further need be said upon the subject at this time.

Attention is again called to the anomalous condition of things which prohibits the employment of children under 14 years of age, and otherwise regulates the employment of minors in workshops and factories, and at the same time permits their unrestricted and unlimited employment in mercantile houses, and in the telephone and telegraph service. If the law is needed to restrict the evils of child labor in factories, its application to other pursuits is just as essential. In many of the mills and workshops of this State the conditions under which the people labor are far superior to those found in mercantile houses. There is better light, better air and ventilation, and the hours of labor are not any longer. As a rule the law requiring the furnishing of seats is obeyed in manufacturing establishments, while it is openly and notoriously violated in nearly every retail store in the State. True, seats for female employes may be found tucked away in some hidden recess in these stores, but to resurrect and utilize one is the occasion, if not the excuse, for instant dismissal. It is no uncommon thing to find children 9 or 10 years old in these mercantile houses. The claim is made, whenever the bill to include them within the scope of the factory law is pending, that children who are hired to do errands and serve as "cash boys" or "cash girls" in these places are of a superior intelligence as compared with "factory children"—that before they can be employed they must have some education. But the fact is plain that children of 8, 9, 10, 11 or 12 years of age who are forced into these places can not have garnered up so much of learning as will warrant the employer from stopping their further education and give him the right to make immediate use of its knowledge at small pay. There are no advantages in "store employment" equal to an attendance upon school, and the claim to the contrary is preposterous and made from interested motives. The conditions under which children are employed in these retail mercantile houses are no better, and in many respects and places not so good, as prevail in the factories and workshops where no child under 14 can be lawfully employed. The "cash boys" and "cash girls" are not looked upon by their employers as apprentices who are to be taught to be salesmen and saleswomen, but are utilized as temporary conveniences, and dismissed as soon as they wish a little better pay, as their advancing years and experience would warrant, and another generation of still younger children are put in their places. In mills the children are at least promoted as they grow up. During the holidays the mercantile houses keep their child employes far into the night, with little or no opportunity for rest. This brutality is inexcusable, and occurs frequently enough to be of itself sufficient reason for including mercantile houses within the provisions of the factory law. Where children are temporarily withdrawn from school to do service in these stores, it adds considerable to the difficulty of afterward compelling regular attendance at their studies, and in this way further demoralizes and defeats the purpose of our common school system.

The employment of children in telegraph and messenger service apparently calls for regulation, to some extent at least. The law prohibiting children under 16 from answering calls from, or carrying messages to, places of ill-repute, is said to be violated in nearly every city in the State. It is evident that further legislation is necessary if the purposes of this wholesome statute are to be carried out.

REGULATING THE HOURS OF LABOR.

Excepting in the clothing sweat-shops of New York and other cities and the saw and pulp mills in the northern part of the State, especially in and around the Adirondack mountains, the limit of ten hours is considered a full day's labor in this State. There are very few occasions in other trades where more than that amount of working time is exacted, and then only in cases of business pressure. The ten-hour law, however, applies only to boys under 18 and women under 21 years of age, and when persons older than these years labor more than ten hours a day or sixty hours a week, we have no jurisdiction whatever. The limit might with propriety be extended to include all women, for it is certain that they all are in favor of such limitation, although not often in circumstances independent enough to enforce their wishes.

In the sweat-shops there is no regular stipulated number of hours, though sixty-six and seventy-two per week seem to be the minimum, the lesser number in the better shops; but in all of them in busy times the hands are required to work as many more hours as exhausted nature will permit. It is not uncommon to see men and women who have worked from sixteen to nineteen hours a day for weeks in succession, and during seven days a week at that. They lose no time in going to and from their work for sleep or meals, because all nature's wants are supplied in the dens in which their work is done. The children in these sweat-shops, it is invariably alleged by the boss "sweater," do not work such long stretches. Perhaps they don't when the schools are open, because we insist upon their being able to read and write English, but no effective watch can be kept on these places under the circumstances with our present force of inspectors.

In the pulp and sawmills referred to twelve hours has nearly always been considered a day's work. Very rarely is there found a young man under 18 working in them, and consequently the present law is not often violated in this class of establishments.

The law preventing women under 21 years of age and boys under 18 from being employed between 9 p. m. and 6 a. m. has had a salutary effect in a number of industries. There has been no complaint from anyone that this clause of the factory statutes has been detrimental. It has given complete satisfaction to the persons whom it protects and at the same time meets the approval of employers.

It seems to us that the prohibition could wisely be extended so as to preclude any woman from being employed in workshops and factories after 9 P. M. Such an amendment to the law has been suggested by those most immediately concerned—the women themselves—it being their opinion that they could find employment at the same occupations in practically the same institutions during the day, and that all necessary night employment would consequently devolve upon men.

There seems to be some misunderstanding on the part of some employers as to the construction to be put upon that part of section 1 of the law which says that:

“No person under eighteen years of age and no woman under twenty-one years of age employed in any manufacturing establishment, shall work therein more than sixty hours in any one week, nor more than ten hours in any one day, unless for the purpose of making a shorter work day on the last day of the week, nor more hours in any one week than will make an average of ten hours per day for the whole number of days in which such person or such woman shall so work during such week.”

Some have come to the conclusion that this means they can employ their minor hands intermittently more than ten hours a day during the week, and if the total number of hours of labor do not exceed sixty during the week the law is not violated. This is a mistake. The law expressly stipulates that ten hours shall be the limit of a day's labor for the classes of persons mentioned, unless the excess over ten hours is intended to be deducted from the labor time usually exacted on the last day of the week. It is not a compliance with this law to work these minors thirteen hours on Monday and seven on Wednesday. The reduction must be made from Saturday. The law is intended to put a check on the long stretches of toil sometimes required of persons who are not as yet fully developed physically, and therefore it seeks to sensibly regulate their hours. Presumably, too, it is co-ordinate in its purposes with the Saturday half-holiday law. At all events, it is required by section 3, that a schedule stating the number of hours of labor required on each day of the week of such minors shall be posted in the room where they are employed. It is not reasonable to suppose that this schedule of working time is to be altered and the regularity of the working hours disturbed whenever the whim or interest of the employers shall dictate, and without notice to the persons most affected, who may have their meals or their families awaiting them at regular times. These labor-schedules should not be changed oftener than once a week, and must be strictly adhered to unless in cases of necessity where the best interests of all concerned would warrant a deviation from their terms. There can be no other construction put upon the law when it is read together.

THE SWEAT-SHOP SYSTEM.

No legislation having been enacted tending to eradicate the evils of the sweat-shop system, we feel called upon to once more direct public attention to the subject. In our report of last year considerable space was devoted to this matter, and as a result the newspapers in various parts of the State took it up and by independent investigations proved that the sweat-shop system was even worse than had been stated in our report. Very many of the goods made in New York city and Brooklyn were manufactured for Boston firms. This having become known to the Governor of Massachusetts, he sent a commission to this State for the purpose of finding out to what extent the clothing made here was sent to Massachusetts. At his request, a deputy of this department was detailed to aid the commission in its quest for information. It was found after a tour of several days that a large amount of cut cloth and trimmings was sent to this State from Boston and other cities to be made up in the sweaters' dens congregated in and around New York. In making the inspections desired by the Massachusetts gentlemen, a New York physician of repute accompanied the party during part of the time, and he summed up his impressions in the following affidavit:

Dr. Stiebeling's Sworn Statement.

The affiant, George C. Stiebeling, declares that he is 60 years of age, that he resides at No. 71 St. Mark's place, city, county and State of New York, and that he has been a practicing physician for the last thirty-seven years. He further declares that on the 17th day of February, 1891, between the hours of 10 A. M. and 1 P. M., he visited and examined certain workshops located in the tenement-houses Nos. 120, 118 and 116 Hester street, No. 14 Norfolk street, No. 198 and No. 162 Division street and No. 11 Ludlow street, New York city, in which clothing is manufactured and which serve at the same time as dwelling rooms to the bosses, their families and boarders, and that by said visits and examinations he has found that these compound working and dwelling places are overcrowded, ill ventilated, overheated, full of dirt, filth, vermin and stench, and that consequently they are in a most unwholesome, health destroying and disease breeding condition. In proof of this assertion affiant will detail two instances of his visits and examinations.

No. 116 Hester street is an old four-story and basement brick house, in which the two lower floors and the basement are used as dwellings, while the two upper floors are occupied by two tailor bosses, with their families, boarders and working hands. The third floor consists of four small rooms, which are filled to excess by seven sewing machines, heaps of boys' pants, nine working hands, boss, wife, six children, two beds and a mighty fireplace. On the fourth floor two small rooms are occupied by fifteen working hands, a number of sewing machines, heaps of jackets and a large fireplace. There are two cabinets in the rear of the basement, one of which was locked and the other open. As an old practicing physician and as surgeon in our late war of rebellion affiant has seen many bad places, but he confesses that he has never met a place in such an awful condition as this open cabinet in the basement of the house No. 116 Hester street. It beggars description.

No. 162 Division street is a brick tenement house. On the fourth floor affiant found four very small rooms, occupied by five sewing machines, twenty-four working hands and the family of the boss, consisting of himself, wife and five living children. The mother reported to affiant that within the last few years six of her children had died of various diseases here in this same place.

Relying on the facts above related affiant finally declares that, in his opinion, the dust, filth and dirt accumulated in the "sweating dens" he has visited and examined contain the germs of the prevailing infectious diseases, such as diphtheria, scarlatina, measles, erysipelas and small-pox, and that the clothing manufactured in these shops is impregnated with such germs and consequently may transmit and spread the aforesaid diseases to persons who handle and wear it.

GEORGE C. STIEBELING, M. D.

Sworn to before me, this 18th }

HENRY MURRAY, Police Justice.

It is no exaggeration to say that nine-tenths of the sweatshops of New York city are the equal in squalor, wretchedness and overcrowding with the two places mentioned in Dr. Stiebeling's sworn statement, and the vile state of affairs does not improve with time, but is becoming even worse. There is competition in the sweating business, as in all other lines of industry, and as the prices of work go down the bosses seek to curtail expenses by still further exactions from their brutalized employes, both as to hours and pay. The swarms of inferior if not utterly objectionable immigrants which have come to this country within the late few years have, to a large degree, settled in New York and vicinity, and by some strange attraction have numerously gone into the business of manufacturing clothing. They are banded to a great extent in colonies, and as a consequence rents have increased in these localities, which compels a further contraction of the available superficial area of working and living space. Again, the grewsome competition has been still further increased by one nationality of immigrants entering into strife for the work with another nationality.

The Russian Jews have had a practical monopoly of the sweating trade up to a year or so ago, at about which time the Italians commenced to bid for the privilege of making clothing, and they easily underbid the Russians. There are now hundreds of Italian sweater dens in New York, where a couple of years ago there was scarcely one. It is unnecessary to say that in the making of cheap clothing the bad sanitary conditions which now prevail are not likely to improve. These people are not to blame, however. They must obtain a living of some kind in some way. They can not be prohibited from competing, and they must accept such terms and working places as their shrewder compatriots, the boss sweaters, see fit to give them. The law might help them, but it hasn't done so as yet. The factory inspectors, as the law stands, have no power. They can only point to the evil as it appears to them.

Of course, the wholesale clothing houses and jobbers could put an end to the sweater system if they so desired, but they are not likely to do so. The system owes its existence to them. They have instituted it and fostered it. They profit by it. It relieves them of all responsibility as manufacturers and furnishes them with goods which, if they do contain the germs of contagious diseases they still seem to be well made, and the disease will not develop until some one wears the clothing, when the sickness is certain to be charged to some other cause. Inasmuch as the clothing is cheap and generally purchased by those whose environment is not of the best, no one will think that the sickness has been disseminated from a sweater's hovel in New York, perhaps then a thousand miles or more away. The simple determination on the part of the wholesalers and jobbers in cheap clothing, that they will handle no sweater-made goods, and advertise that fact, would end the evil system. But that will not be done, and, therefore, if it is abolished or regulated, it must be done by law. That is the way it was brought to an end in Massachusetts.

When the report of the investigation of the committee, sent from that State, was made to the Governor, he recommended that proper legal restrictions be placed upon the manufacture and sale of these goods. Accordingly the following act was passed:

[Chapter 357, Acts of 1891 — Laws of Mass.]

AN ACT to prevent the manufacture and sale of clothing made in unhealthy places.

SECTION 1. Whenever any house, room or place used as a dwelling, is also used for the purpose of carrying on any process of making, altering, repairing or finishing for sale any ready-made coats, vests, trousers or overcoats, it shall, within the meaning of this act, be deemed a workshop; provided, however, that the exercise of such work in a private house or private room, by the family dwelling therein or by any of them, shall not of itself constitute such house or room a workshop within this definition; every such workshop shall be kept in a cleanly state and shall be subject to the provisions of this section; and each of said garments made, altered, repaired or finished for sale in any of such workshops shall be subject to the inspection and examination of the inspectors of the district police, for the purpose of ascertaining whether said garments, or any of them, or any part or parts thereof, are in cleanly condition and free from vermin and every matter of an infectious and contagious nature; and every person so occupying or having control of any workshop as aforesaid shall, within fourteen days from the passage of this act or from the time of beginning work in any workshop as aforesaid, notify the chief of the district police or the special inspector appointed for that purpose, of the location of such workshop, the nature of the work there carried on and the number of persons therein employed.

§ 2. If said inspector finds evidence of infectious disease present in any workshop, or in goods manufactured or in process of manufacture therein, he shall report the same to the chief of the district police, who shall notify the state board of health to examine said workshop and the materials used therein, and if said board shall find said shop in an unhealthy condition, or the clothing and materials used therein to be unfit for use, said board shall issue such order or orders as the public safety may require.

§ 3. Whenever it shall be reported to said inspector, or to the chief of the district police, or to the state board of health, or either of them, that ready-made coats, vests, trousers or overcoats are being shipped to this commonwealth, having previously been manufactured in whole or in part under unhealthy conditions, said inspector shall examine said goods and the condition of their manufacture, and if upon such examination said goods or any of them are found to contain vermin, or to have been made in improper places or under unhealthy conditions, he shall make report thereof to the state board of health, which board shall thereupon make such order or orders as the safety of the public shall require.

§ 4. Whoever knowingly sells or exposes for sale any ready-made coats, vests, trousers or overcoats which have been made in a tenement house used as a workshop, as specified in section one of this act, shall have affixed to each of said garments a tag or label, not less than two inches in length and one inch in width upon which shall be legibly printed or written the name of the state and the city or town where said garment or garments were made.

§ 5. No person shall sell or expose for sale any of said garments without a tag or label, as aforesaid, affixed thereto, nor shall sell or expose for sale any of said garments with a tag or label in any manner false or fraudulent, nor shall willfully remove, alter or destroy any such tag or label upon any of said garments when exposed for sale.

§ 6. The governor of the commonwealth is hereby authorized to appoint two additional members of the inspection department of the district police force qualified to perform the duties of the members of such department.

§ 7. Whoever violates any of the provisions of this act shall forfeit for each offense not less than fifty dollars nor more than one hundred dollars. (Approved May 28, 1891.)

As soon as the above act went into effect there was an immediate cessation of tenement-house sweating in Massachusetts. Great wholesale manufacturers fairly fell over one another in assuring the chief inspector of that State that they would have no clothing made in such places, and asked to be relieved from the requirement of putting tags on their merchandise. However, the law, while it is better than the former unregulated system and may meet the conditions existing in Massachusetts, is not adequate to the necessities of this State. In our opinion an act should be passed prohibiting the use of living rooms for other than domestic purposes; and that no person should be employed to work at other than domestic duties in living rooms. Of course, the law should also provide for proper sanitary and ventilating regulations, and should require a certain number of cubic feet of air space for each person employed. Such a bill could be drawn, it seems to us, so as to avoid all conflict with the decision of the Court of Appeals in the tenement-house cigar-making case.

In addition to the detrimental effects of the sweating system upon the health and morals of a large number of people, there is another phase of its baneful workings which it may not be improper to mention in a report of the factory inspectors' department. Previous to the general adoption of the sweater system in the cheap-clothing industry, there were a large number of mechanics who earned a livelihood for themselves and dependents in well-lighted and clean workshops, and these were scattered all over the State. They were, as a rule, good citizens and good mechanics in their line. With the exception of a comparatively few, they seem to have totally passed away. The major part of these mechanics are now associated in the Garment Workers' Association of America and at a convention recently held in Boston an address was issued concerning the sweater system, from which we have taken a few extracts and herewith print them:

To all persons whom it may concern:

The United Garment Workers of America, in convention assembled in the city of Boston, desire to call the attention of the American people to the manner in which they believe the operative tailors can be assisted to overthrow the sweating system. All people should enlist in this fight against the most pernicious system of industry ever known to have existed. We do not need to tell you that it degrades men, women and children; that it perpetuates ignorance and breeds vice and throws thousands yearly into premature graves.

Moral suasion alone will not do the work. If moral suasion was of any benefit, mankind would long ago have had its conscience pricked so sharply that it would have wiped out this curse of the nineteenth century. If a contribution of dollars was all that was needed, the sweating system would not be alive to-day. Two men nor twelve men can kill this pestilential system of industry. Every one must come to the rescue of the operative tailors.

Chattel slavery was abolished because the public conscience revolted against it. This system is worse than chattel slavery, for, when one of its victims is exhausted with excessive hours of labor in improper workshops, and his person racked with disease, he is thrown out into the street to die like a dog by the wayside. This once noble trade of a tailor has become a horrible reproach to our so-called civilization. So low has this trade fallen that its "ready-made" product is a menace to the health of consumers. When such is the condition of one of the largest industries, is it not time that all persons united in a demand for the abolishment of the sweater's nefarious and life-destroying traffic?

ELEVATORS AND HOISTWAYS.

The law with reference to the guarding of hoistways and elevators is as follows:

It shall be the duty of the owner, agent or lessee of any manufacturing establishment where hoisting shafts or well-holes are used, to cause the same to be properly and substantially inclosed or secured, if, in the opinion of the factory inspector, or of the assistant factory inspector, or of a deputy factory inspector, unless disapproved by the factory inspector, it is necessary to protect the life or limbs of those employed in such establishment. It shall also be the duty of the owner, agent or lessee of each of such establishments to provide, or cause to be provided, such proper trap or automatic doors, so fastened in or at all elevator ways as to form a substantial surface when closed, and so constructed as to open and close by action of the elevator in its passage, either ascending or descending, but the requirements of this section shall not apply to passenger elevators that are inclosed on all sides. (Sec. 8, chap. 409, Laws of 1886, as amended)

This section ought to be amended so as to give the inspectors authority to prohibit the use of an elevator not in a safe condition. It ought also to set a limit to the speed at which an elevator may be run, whether for freight or passengers. It should give the inspectors some discretion as to the kind of automatic guards which may be put on elevators, if automatic guards are necessary. The authority to inspect the machinery and to require automatic stops to check the fall of an elevator car should also be given the inspectors.

With these suggested changes we would have an elevator law that could be enforced. As it reads now, it is crude and at times puts the inspectors in a ridiculous light. There are good elevators which it applies to, but which can not be made to conform to the law; and if they did conform to it, they would be neither better nor safer than they now are. Yet their owners can be prosecuted for misdemeanor. There are other elevators which are unsafe, and which it does not apply to, consequently their owners can ignore our recommendations, and they do, sometimes, too, because we couldn't bring the law to bear in the courts to enforce our views for the safety of persons using the elevators.

There is still another feature of danger about elevators, and that is the employment of young boys to operate them. No person under 18 years of age should be allowed to run an elevator. They are dangerous machines in the hands of the ignorant and careless, and many accidents are reported from just this cause. In one or two States boys under 15 years of age are prohibited from running elevators, but that age is certainly too low; it ought to be placed at 18 in this State.

The cables of elevators are oftentimes defective, and as they are rarely tested to discover flaws or broken strands, which are certain to appear from time to time, they become a menace to life and limb. The hoisting machinery is also allowed to become defective, especially where it is located in inaccessible places, which is the rule rather than the exception. Hemp and manilla ropes are also used to raise heavy weights on some elevators. These ropes are subject to a rot peculiar to themselves, and which is not readily discernible without careful inspection.

In New York city there are hundreds of elevators which descend directly in front of the stairways in the main entrances to the upper floors. A sharp lookout must be kept by those using these entrances to see that the elevator car does not descend and crush them; but anyone who is not familiar with the premises would not know of the danger until struck by the descending car. No elevator should be allowed to completely occupy the general passageway to a building.

The speed of elevators is also a matter of serious moment. There can be no question but that many elevators are run too fast, and the liability of injury to life and limb is surely greatly increased thereby. It is not in the cable alone that the danger lies, but in all parts of the machinery. There are quite a number of wheels, cogs and bolts about the mechanism which moves an elevator car, and an unfortunate break in any of them may rush the passengers in the car to destruction. Many lives have already been lost through the breaking of elevator machinery run at high speed, and these disasters provide convincing arguments in favor of regulating them. We concede that elevator makers take every precaution to make their elevators safe, as it is to their interest so to do; but there seems to have arisen a rivalry among them as to which can construct and sell the highest speeded elevator, and the thousands of uninterested persons who are compelled to use these conveyances daily are put in jeopardy to satisfy the mechanical pride or business avidity of the elevator manufacturers. There is a natural limit at which these common carriers can with safety be operated, and there is also a limit to the speed at which the public desire to ride in them. There is no need of an elevator running 600 feet per minute in a building only 100 feet high — a speed of 100 feet a minute would seem to be fast enough for safety and convenience. Aside from the unpleasant sensations which many experience at the starting and stopping of such swift elevators, there is a jar upon the machinery, a tendency towards the crystallization and consequent weakening of the cable as it rapidly winds and unwinds around the drum and pulleys, which may at any moment cause disaster. No elevator can be made absolutely safe, but the possibility of disaster should be reduced to a minimum. High-speeded elevators increase the danger and therefore should be prohibited.

During the year there have been reported to us sixty-six accidents, which occurred in and about elevators, hoistways and well-holes, as follows :

Falling down elevator way and killed	10
Crushed between elevator and floor and killed	2

GUARDING STAIRWAYS AND ENTRANCES.

The following section of the law, concerning the guarding and screening of stairways and the locking and swinging of doors is enforced and observed without controversy.

Proper and substantial hand rails shall be provided on all stairways in manufacturing establishments, and where, in the opinion of the factory inspector, or of the assistant factory inspector, or a deputy factory inspector, unless disapproved by the factory inspector, it is necessary, the steps of said stairs in all such establishments shall be substantially covered with rubber, securely fastened thereon, for the better safety of persons employed in said establishments. The stairs shall be properly screened at the sides and bottom, and all doors leading in or to such factory shall be so constructed as to open outwardly where practicable, and shall be neither locked, bolted nor fastened during working hours.— (Sec. 9.)

FIRE-ESCAPES.

The present fire-escape law is adequate and simple, and comparatively easy to enforce. It permits a reasonable degree of discretion upon matters which under the old inflexible law gave rise to controversy between the owners or occupiers of property and the inspectors. Many additional escapes have been erected this year, and where fire occurred during working hours their efficiency as life-savers was proven. There is no loss of life to record during the past year in manufacturing establishments on account of lack of fire-escapes, although if such escapes had not been in position, in several instances there might have been.

FIRE-ESCAPES ON SCHOOL BUILDINGS.

We are constantly in receipt of complaints with reference to the lack of fire-escapes on theaters, halls, tenements and school-houses, with which we have nothing to do under the law, but our informants turn to us to remedy the evil, for the reason possibly that there are no other officers who have charge of such matters in a general sense. For instance, we lately received the following letter from the head of the fire department in a small town in the interior of the State, where we know positively that fire-escapes are needed on the school-houses :

CHIEF ENGINEER'S OFFICE, DEPARTMENT BUILDING, }
 _____, N. Y., Nov. 16, 1891.

HON. JAMES CONNOLLY, Factory Inspector :

DEAR SIR — I wrote a communication to you some time ago which must have been delayed somewhere, in regard to the public school buildings of this city. We have three or four over two stories in height without fire-escapes. I have been before the board of school commissioners. I want them to put up fire-escapes. I also had an architect draw up plans and specifications for the fire-escapes; also went to the schools and had fire drills. The commissioners promised that they would erect them last year, but they have done nothing whatever towards having them put up. They won't even put stair railings on the stairs.

Now, will you please be kind enough to send me the laws on fire-escapes and tell what can be done about it. Have I any authority over the schools? Please let me know as soon as possible, and oblige,

Your obedient servant,

Chief, Fire Department.

Now the law with reference to fire escapes on school-houses is clear, short and emphatic. It is a misdemeanor under the Penal Code to refuse to comply with its provisions, but no doubt the school trustees of the place above referred to are influential enough to defy the local authorities and consequently ignore the statute with impunity. We quote the law for information of all interested :

SECTION 1. All school buildings which are more than two stories shall have properly constructed stairways on the outside thereof with suitable doorways leading thereto from each story above the first, for use in case of fire. Such stairways shall be kept in good order and free from obstruction. It shall be the duty of the board of education or the trustees having charge of such school-houses, to cause such stairways to be constructed and maintained, and the reasonable and proper cost thereof, shall in each case be a legal charge upon the city or district, and shall be raised by tax, as other moneys are raised for school purposes. This act shall not apply to the cities of New York and Brooklyn.

§ 2. This act shall take effect immediately.— (Chap. 431, Laws of 1890.)

The laws requiring sufficient means of egress and escape from hotels, halls, theaters, etc., are also violated in nearly every locality, if the communications we receive state the facts, and the lives of many people are therefore endangered in direct violation of law. Some means should be determined upon by which these laws for the protection of human life can be rigidly enforced uniformly throughout the State.

ACCIDENTS.

A larger number of accidents are reported this year than last year, not because of any increase in the actual number of accidents, but because employers are better acquainted with the requirements of the law and the inspectors are careful that they shall obey it. We believe that our orders for guarding machinery, which are usually promptly obeyed, have necessarily reduced the number of preventable accidents; but as to what extent we can, of course, only speculate. It is not easy to compile statistics as to what has not happened, if we base them upon what might have happened. In order to reduce the number of accidents on power presses or tin stamping machines, we have had the services of an expert in such matters, and he reports that the only way that he knows of to reduce the number of accidents on such machines is to employ older people, and also to so arrange the levers that the machine will be put in motion by action of the hands instead of the feet. This will compel the removal of the hand before the die drops. Inasmuch as this will increase the cost of labor and reduce the productive capacity of the machines, it is not likely that the recommendations will meet with the approval of their owners. Certainly something should be done about this matter, however, but the law will not sustain us in going as far as the circumstances attending the operation of these machines would warrant.

It appears, however, that there has been invented and applied to these presses in England a guard which, it is said, will prevent accidents on them. We quote from the report of her majesty's inspector for 1890:

I have again to deplore the numerous accidents at tinware stamping presses, notwithstanding the system of guards, invented by Mr. Shaw, which are attached to the under or female dies in such machines. The danger is obvious, and to my mind calls for some legislative enactment restricting the employment of young persons and women to those processes only whereat guards can be fixed on Mr. Shaw's system, by which the feeding of these stamping presses has been made perfectly safe; but other parts of the manufacture, such as cutting up large pieces and scrap tin, in the first instance, can not be rendered free from danger.

These stamping presses being thrown in and out of gear by a treadle and a somewhat sensitive action, the foot and hand, both of which work together, sometimes fail in accord, and the heavy top die comes down on the fingers before they are clear of the lower die. Now, such an employment as this is the most dangerous within my experience, and not fit for such persons as factory legislation seeks to protect.

It would please us to see this guard tried on the stamping machines in this State.

Wood-working machinery is productive of many serious and painful injuries, some of which might be avoided by proper safeguards. It must be admitted that guards upon buzz and rip saws, frizzers and shapers are not always popular with the persons whose safety it is our purpose to insure, and not infrequently we have found the guards taken off and put away by the operatives after employers have had them put on. In previous reports this subject has been discussed in detail and specific recommendations made with respect to the most practical way to guard all of the dangerous machines in general use.

GUARDING MACHINERY, VATS, PANS, ETC.

The subject of protecting the exposed parts of dangerous machinery has been gone over again and again in these reports, and there is but little new to add to what has already been said with reference to it. We find, however, that manufacturers of machinery in this State have become alive to the necessity of placing such protection as is possible around those parts which are considered liable to cause injury, a policy which has been adopted because of the determination of this department to prosecute the users of machinery which is not properly guarded. The task of ordering these changes upon the vast amount of mechanism in the factories of this State, and following up these orders to see that they are complied with, is no slight one. Men are conservative, and as we have stated before, it is not alone the prejudices or parsimony of employers with which we have to contend, but it is a strange fact that the persons in whose direct personal interest the alterations are ordered, resent the required change, and obstruct as far as they can the objects of the law. We have found on reinspecting machinery to learn what had been done about guarding it, that while the employer had obeyed orders at considerable trouble and expense, his employe had nullified the improvement by removing the guard on his own responsibility and gone on with his work in the old way. The law should be amended making it a misdemeanor for any person to remove or alter any guard ordered by an inspector without first obtaining the consent of the employer. In this way the responsibility could be definitely placed.

A number of accidents are reported from persons falling into vats or pans in chemical works, tanneries, and salt works, which might have been avoided had proper rails been in position. These accidents are of too frequent occurrence, especially when the simple means of avoiding them is known. The platforms or gangways around these vats have rarely more than one rail, and are usually slippery from constant absorption of steam and liquids. A man may readily lose his footing and slip under the guard rail into the boiling liquid, to be removed only to suffer tortures too excruciating to be depicted. Some have no rails at all; although these latter are now not very numerous. All platforms and gangways around these vats should have a double rail. Following is a statement of the accidents reported to us as having occurred through persons falling into vats, tanks, etc, during the past year:

Attention is again called to the careless manner in which emery wheels are operated in many establishments. It is certain that if reasonable amount of caution and judgment were exercised in hanging and speeding emery wheels — and grindstones also — that there would be fewer deaths and injuries to record as being caused by them. We have pointed out in these reports, from time to time, how the danger from them could to a large extent be mitigated, and the subject is important enough to warrant another reference to it. We have already suggested that every emery wheel should have a collar or washer snugly fastened on each side and extending from the shaft to within an inch of the outside edge of the wheel. When the wheel becomes worn down to this collar, put on another collar an inch smaller, and so on until the emery wheel is worn out. This is a simple, cheap and efficient safeguard, because the wheel can not fly to pieces with such a wide collar securely holding it. It may crack if it is defective, but it can't burst. In addition to this, we would again urge that no emery wheel be speeded beyond the rate specified in the printed table which every manufacturer of emery wheels issues. A copy of this should be posted on the wall in the immediate vicinity of the wheel, and the workman instructed to follow it closely. If the maker guarantees a wheel to make a certain number of revolutions safely, it may usually be accepted as a sure guide. No manufacturer can afford to ruin his reputation by overstating the capacity of his emery wheels. There ought to be a meter in every workshop where emery wheels are used, to test the speed at which they are run. We believe these meters pay for themselves in a very short time—at all events they may save a suit for damages for injuries or death inflicted. As a further precaution, employers should keep a register setting forth the maximum speeds up to which the wheels they use are guaranteed as being safe by the makers, and the inspectors should be empowered to test the speed at each visit.

The following is a statement of the serious and fatal accidents reported to us as having occurred because of the bursting of emery wheels and grindstones in this State during the past year:

Persons seriously injured by bursting of emery wheels	4
Person killed by bursting of grindstone	1

EXHAUST FANS AND DUSTY WORK.

The law empowers us to require that exhaust fans shall be provided where dust arises from emery wheels, grindstones and dust-creating machinery in sufficient quantity to injure the health. This is a somewhat expensive alteration to require, and there naturally arises a difference of opinion as to what amount of dust is actually required to injure the health. In some of the places where exhaust fans were ordered it became necessary to put in an extra engine to propel them, which is a burden of expense that all manufacturers can not conveniently bear. However, the law is enforceable, and has done much good, as will be attested by thousands who are now working in comparatively clean and healthy atmospheres, where before they breathed the dust-laden air until their lungs became clogged and diseased. This was one of the most essential amendments to the law, and has met the expectations of its advocates and the approval of nearly every one.

The matter of rag dust must soon engage the attention of the law-making body. The business of sorting and dealing in rags is becoming an extensive one. A visit to one of these rag-sorting shops will quickly satisfy anyone that it is an occupation which must of necessity be damaging to the health. The air is laden with particles of pungent dust that irritate the nostrils and tonsils as no other dust can, and which is felt by the casual visitor many hours after the pure air has been regained. Women and children are the principal persons working at the trade, and their begrimed faces and the grey-black dust which accumulates on the head, eye-brows and eye-lashes after an hour's labor, serve as an indication of the quantity of fine particles of deleterious matter which, perforce, has gone into the respiratory organs. Everyone knows where these rags come from. When you visit one of these work-shops you instantly recall the everyday picture of the ill-favored man with a long iron hook, probing into the mass of garbage in the barrel on the street curb, dragging out a foul and bad-smelling piece of sodden cloth, which he carelessly tosses into a bag containing similar pollution, and then passes on to repeat the act at the next receptacle for refuse; you imagine the poverty-stricken family, where disease has visited, selling the noxious clothing or bedding to the rag-man for a few tempting pennies; you are reminded how the rags are shoveled out in viscid chunks at the garbage dumping docks, and you know that all this vileness is here—dried, it is true, but charging the air with its compounded foulness in fine unfumigated atoms of dust. The law does not permit us to order fans or blowers in these rag shops, and possibly so far as a guarantee of absolute health is concerned exhaust fans would not avail much, but at least they would to some extent keep the air pure and change it frequently. However, the person engaged at sorting would breathe some of the dust as it arose after each piece is disturbed, because the sorting boxes are so situated that one must bend over them to work to advantage. The remedy for this, in our opinion, is to compel the washing and cleansing of all rags, then place them in a disinfecting chamber and subject them to at least 250 degrees of heat before they are passed to the hands of the sorter. The subject is important enough to warrant careful legislative action.

SEPARATE WATER-CLOSETS AND DRESSING ROOMS.

The provision requiring that suitable and proper water-closets shall be provided for the use of each sex in workshops and factories is recognized by all as a commendable feature of our factory laws, and is rigorously enforced. It is surprising, however, how careless many employers have been with reference to this matter, for one would naturally suppose that a sense of ordinary decency would be sufficient to remind an employer of mixed hands that he should provide proper toilet facilities for the separate use of women. It must be said, also, that the difficulty as to this was found not only in those places where the buildings had been transformed from some other use into workshops, but it existed in some new buildings erected expressly for factory purposes. State supervision of factories, whether erected or to be erected, is justified by this surprising neglect of the demands of morality and modesty. As rapidly as possible we are insisting upon such alterations in this respect as the law and circumstances will permit. The law is somewhat defective in that it does not give us authority to insist upon the removal of all water-closets and urinals from the work-room.

Wherever the nature of the work or other circumstances require it, we notify employers to provide dressing-rooms for their female employes. This is an improvement over old conditions in a good many places which is appreciated by the women and such orders are cheerfully complied with by employers.

SANITATION, VENTILATION, ETC.

It is imperatively necessary, if the factory laws of this State are to produce the best results that the inspectors be empowered to compel employers to properly ventilate their work-rooms. It is unnecessary to go into any description of the bad physical results which follow from working in badly-ventilated rooms, for the subject has been fully discussed heretofore in these reports, and every grown person has an adequate conception of the matter. As previously recommended, there ought to be from 250 to 400 cubic feet of air space for each person, with a system of ventilation which would remove the foul air and supply fresh air as fast as it is needed. Complaints are constantly being made to us with reference to this, and it is difficult to convince the complainants that the law gives the factory inspectors no power whatever in the premises. If we had such power, some of the evils of the sweating system could be quickly abated, and the unhealthy conditions of hundreds of other factories materially improved.

An evil which is assuming importance, and will grow greater in the cities of the State unless prevented by legislation, is that of using cellars and basements as workshops and crowding them with people, old and young. The conditions which prevail in these underground factories are always such as prove deleterious to health, and they ought to be regulated by stringent laws, or put under a legal ban. A case in point is that of a large tobacco works in New York, where the business developed so that more room was required. Instead of obtaining other property the company fitted up the cellar and put about seventy-five young girls to work there. Rheumatism quickly developed in some of them, and others became ailing otherwise. Complaint was made, but the company insisted that it was really a nice work-room, and "they kept everything perfectly clean." The fact is, the place is so damp that every evening all the tobacco must be carried out of the room, for, if left, it would become damp and moldy over night.

Sickness must result, as a matter of course, to those compelled to stay in this place ten hours a day, especially when the workers are nearly all young and half-developed girls. We suggest that the factory law be amended to cover such cases as this.

UNSAFE BUILDINGS.

Another subject to which our attention is called from time to time, is that of unsafe buildings. There are many old or carelessly erected structures in this State, which bear open witness of their own instability, yet they are filled with many work people, and the jarring machinery may at any moment cause the floors to sink and the walls to collapse, bringing death and disaster to all in or about the premises. The factory law does not cover these places, and outside of the cities of New York, Brooklyn and Buffalo, we believe that no law directly applies to them. A sample case is illustrated in the following, relative to an old building in Clyde, which had been turned into a workshop, and which for years had been considered very dangerous. Deputy Inspector Schaubert visited the place and reported that the walls of the building seemed to him to be unsafe, and gave a description of its defects. Thereupon a letter was addressed to the president of the board of health, who seemed to be the only person who had authority in such cases, calling attention to the building. Following is the letter:

LETTER TO BOARD OF HEALTH.

OFFICE OF FACTORY INSPECTOR,
ALBANY, September, 29, 1891. }

J. L. HOWARD, President of Board of Health, Clyde, N. Y.:

DEAR SIR:—From the fact that I believe your board is the only tribunal which has authority in the premises, I beg leave to call your attention to the following extract from a report made to this office by Deputy Factory Inspector Schaubert, with reference to a building occupied by George A. Brown in your village:

“The dangerous wall referred to is on the southwest corner of the building. Mr. Brown occupies the first and second floor, and the basement has been vacant for over a year because people are afraid to occupy it. The building stands on the corner of Glasgow street and the canal, making the basement floor level with the tow-path; the second floor is the work-room.

“There has been some patching done to make the building safe, but it is a poor job. The south wall has sprung two and one-half inches away from the floor of the first floor inside; the wall from the first floor to the basement floor bulges four inches away; the joists of the first floor do not rest on the basement wall as they were intended to do; they are drawn off the wall entirely, and to prevent their coming down they put a sleeper along the wall three inches away from the wall, and the joists that once rested on the wall now rest on this sleeper. They also put three iron rods through the basement from the outside of the wall that bulges out to the outside of the next wall in the basement. These rods are one and one-half inches thick and about twenty feet long, and they have washers on the outside of the two walls about twelve inches square. The rods were put there to prevent the wall from spreading any further, but Mr. Brown showed me by the mark he made in the crack that it has spread one-half an inch within a month. This crack is on the front of the building on the west side. It is two feet from the corner of the building and extends to the second story of the building. There is another crack on the rear of the building, or the east side, two and one-half feet from the corner of the building, showing that the wall is affected from the front to the rear of the building and from the basement to the second story. In my opinion, there should be props put under the second story and a new wall built from the foundation to the second story of the south side of the building. Mrs. ———— is the owner of the building and her son-in-law, Mr. ———— manages the property for her and collects the rent. They both live in ———— N. Y., a few miles from Clyde.”

I beg leave to say with reference to the foregoing that there is no authority vested in the factory inspector to make this building safe, and if you do not deem it within your province please let me know at your earliest convenience.

Respectfully yours,

JAMES CONNOLLY,

Factory Inspector.

The following reply to the foregoing was received:

REPLY.

CLYDE, September, 30, 1891.

JAMES CONNOLLY, Factory Inspector, Albany, N. Y.:

DEAR SIR:—Yours of the twenty-ninth in relation to the Thorn block, so called, now occupied by George A. Brown was duly received. Have examined the statutes pretty thoroughly and do not find anything which vests any authority in the board of health to act in the matter. Have also consulted counsel who gives the opinion that we have no such authority in the matter.

However, if you know of any such authority and will kindly cite it to me the board will cheerfully perform any duty required of it.

Respectfully, etc.,

J. L. HOWARD,

Pres't Board of Health, Clyde.

For the purpose of learning just what was the law concerning such unsafe buildings, the Attorney-General was communicated with, and the following, together with the foregoing letter of the president of the board of health of Clyde and a statement of the facts, was sent him.

LETTER ASKING ATTORNEY-GENERAL'S OPINION.

OFFICE OF FACTORY INSPECTOR, }

HON. CHARLES F. TABOR, Attorney-General, Albany, N. Y.:

DEAR SIR:—I have received a report of an inspection of a building in the town of Clyde, N. Y., which shows said building to be in a very dangerous condition: one wall is settled and is badly cracked; the first tier of beams has been drawn from the wall and now rests upon a girder support instead of in the wall itself. Iron rods or braces have been put through to prevent the falling of the building. The upper story is not let, and no one will occupy it in its present condition, feeling that it is too unsafe. The manufacturer occupying the lower floor deems that the building is in a dangerous condition and is very desirous to have it made secure. The neighbors complain that they are afraid of the building falling; but the owner refuses to make it more secure.

I have notified the president of the board of health, believing him to be the only person who has any authority in the matter, and have received the inclosed reply. I am now anxious to know what course to pursue in this matter; what power there is given to the factory inspector in such cases; and what power the board of health or any other local authority has in such matters.

An early reply is awaited by all parties interested.

Very respectfully yours,
(Signed.) JAMES CONNOLLY,
Factory Inspector.

In answer to which the following opinion was rendered:

ATTORNEY-GENERAL'S OPINION.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL'S OFFICE, }

Hon. JAMES CONNOLLY, Factory Inspector:

DEAR SIR — I am in receipt of your letter of the second instant, requesting to be advised what power, in my opinion, the factory inspector may have, and what power the board of health or any other local authority may have, with respect to a building used as a manufactory in the town of Clyde, N. Y., which is shown to be in a dangerous condition.

In reply, I beg leave to say that I am unable to find any law which confers any power upon the factory inspector in such cases, unless an accident has occurred in the building. Section 11 of chapter 409 of the Laws of 1886, as amended by section 9 of chapter 398 of the Laws of 1890, requires the owner or person in charge of any manufacturing establishment, or of any floor or part thereof, to make a written report to the factory inspector within forty-eight hours after the happening of an accident to any person in such factory; and the factory inspector is then authorized to fully investigate the cause of the accident and to require such precautions to be taken as will in his judgment prevent similar accidents thereafter. It will thus be seen that the power of the factory inspector in such cases is limited to cases where an accident has occurred; and the object of the statute seems to have been to confer upon him authority to take such steps as might be necessary to prevent a recurrence of the accident. But the Legislature has omitted to invest the inspector with the power to take action to prevent the happening of an accident in the first instance.

It would appear, however, from your statement, that the building is in such a condition as to render the lives of persons employed therein, or who may happen to be in or about the same, insecure; and that it is, therefore, a public nuisance, and may be abated as such.

Section 8 of chapter 330 of the Laws of 1880 authorizes the State Board of Health, when required by the Governor, to examine into nuisances or questions affecting the security of life and health in any locality; and, anything found, as certified by the State Board of Health, to be a nuisance, may be abated or removed by order of the Governor.

Subdivision 4 of section 3 of chapter 270 of the Laws of 1885 also confers power upon and makes it the duty of the local board of health to "receive and examine into the nature of complaints made by any of the inhabitants concerning nuisances or causes of danger or injury to life and health within the limits of its jurisdiction," etc.; and the statute invests the local board with ample power "to order the suppression and removal of nuisances and conditions detrimental to life and health found to exist within the limits of its jurisdiction."

By section 8 of the same act it is provided that the State Board, its president, secretary, or any member thereof, may cause any duty enjoined upon the local board to be enforced and performed by mandamus, in case the local board fails in the discharge thereof.

I am, therefore, of the opinion that the State Board of Health, if required by the Governor, and that the local board of health, whenever complaint is made to it, may cause this building to be abated as a public nuisance, and to be removed if the owner thereof fails to put it in a secure condition.

Very truly yours,

CHARLES F. TABOR,

Attorney-General.

I have embodied the Attorney-General's opinion in the shape of a circular, and send the same in answer to all complaints concerning buildings in an unsafe condition structurally, inasmuch as it points out the only way in which they can be lawfully removed or strengthened.

It is obvious that the course to be followed in order to insure the safety of persons employed in dangerous buildings is somewhat tedious and roundabout, and the harm might be done before the final steps could be taken.

CONSTRUCTION OF FACTORY BUILDINGS.

It is a matter of prime importance that when buildings to be used for manufacturing purposes are to be constructed, that the plans be prepared with due care and consideration for the health of the employes, who will in time occupy them. It is no uncommon thing for the owners of such buildings to call upon the factory inspectors to look over such buildings after they have been completed, with a view of learning whether they conform to the provisions of the factory law, but it would be much better if the inspectors were invited to look at the architect's plans before building operations had commenced. We are often told, too, when officially visiting a new factory, that the building was built expressly for the business carried on, and there is a good deal of grumbling when it is pointed out that elevators do not comply with the law, or that the water-closets are not as the statute directs they should be. Such controversies could be avoided and expense saved if the architect's plans were required to be submitted for approval to the factory inspector before the building is commenced, as is the law in neighboring States. When buildings not previously used as factories or workshops are to be converted to such use, the inspector should be notified and should require that, before starting up, the factory law must be complied with in all respects.

Hereafter no elevators or hoistways should be constructed in a building unless they be inclosed in brick shafts, as the building laws of New York city provide, for instance. Certainly these very necessary adjuncts of a factory building have about them enough elements of danger to life and property without making them flues to spread fire and smoke to terrify or suffocate the work people, as they surely are when put into open well-holes or wooden shafts.

BOILER INSPECTION.

A system of boiler inspection should be adopted in this State. The placing of stationary steam boilers and engines in charge of incompetent or ignorant men is a custom altogether too prevalent. We have referred to this subject repeatedly in these reports and again urge it upon the attention of the Legislature. In our report of last year we said:

We are aware that there are insurance companies organized for the purpose of taking risks on steam boilers, and for regularly inspecting those which are insured, and believe that a certificate from one of the inspectors of such companies stating that a boiler has been examined and found a good insurance risk, is a sufficient guarantee that such boiler is as near sound as human knowledge can estimate; but suppose after an inspection the company refuses to insure it on the ground that the boiler is unsafe, who or what is to prevent the owner from ignoring the warning and using the boiler the same as before? No one. Such cases occur repeatedly. The very boilers, therefore, that are not insured in a responsible company are the ones which need governmental supervision, and we would therefore recommend that at least four inspectors of steam boilers be empowered to investigate and inspect all uninsured boilers in this State. Such inspectors should be practical men of at least ten years' experience in such work, and given power to prohibit the use of any boiler not deemed by them to be safe.

EXAMINING STATIONARY ENGINEERS.

There should also be a competent and experienced engineer in every senatorial district to examine and pass upon the qualifications of those who desire to have charge of stationary steam engines. As is well known, there is nothing to prevent the most ignorant man from hiring out as an engineer, outside of the three largest cities of the State. In addition to the duties of engineer, a large majority of the persons so engaged also have charge of the boilers where they are employed, and it is safe to say that over one-third of these so-called engineers would be rejected as incompetent were they required to pass an examination to test their fitness for the responsible positions they hold. The fee of the examining engineer or board of engineers need not be large, and the work could be done without material expense to the State.

INSPECTION OF SCHOOL AND OTHER PUBLIC BUILDINGS.

On a preceding page of this report we reproduce a letter from the chief of the fire department of an important city of this State, showing the refusal of the school authorities of that place to comply with the law requiring the erection of fire-escapes on all schools three or more stories high. That this is not an isolated case is proven by the experience of the Superintendent of Public Instruction, who in his report for last year, says:

In this connection I deem it proper to call the attention of the Legislature to the fact that the department stands in need of additional assistance in order to effectually carry out the provisions of chapter 538 of the Laws of 1887, entitled "An act in relation to health and decency in the school districts of this state." Soon after the passage of this act, a most vigorous movement was inaugurated in order to exact a general compliance with it, and not a little was accomplished, but experience shows that the act can only be effectually executed by unceasing diligence. The department is daily in receipt of complaints on the part of persons interested in the health of pupils, against nuisances in and about school-houses which are highly detrimental to the health and comfort of the inmates. We can only refer such complaints to the board of education or the school commissioner having jurisdiction. In some cases this is all that is necessary; in others it produces no result. It seems imperative that we should have the assistance of one or two persons whose time shall be devoted to the inspection of school buildings in order to ascertain whether they are constructed and maintained in compliance with the provisions of the health and decency act. One or two officers who are competent to discharge this duty, would be more effective in bringing about the results aimed at in the statute referred to, than all the other agencies and instrumentalities now at our command.—(Report of Superintendent of Public Instruction for 1890, p. xviii.)

In other States the laws with reference to schools, public buildings and places of amusement and entertainment are enforced by the factory inspectors, with satisfactory results. No matter in what department the authority is vested, it is certain that these laws will not be obeyed, essential] as they are indisputably to public health and safety, until the responsibility for their enforcement is placed somewhere.

THE APPRENTICESHIP LAW.

Following is a copy of the apprenticeship law of this State :

AN ACT in reference to apprentices and employers.

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows :

SECTION 1. On and after the passage of this act, it shall not be lawful for any person or persons in this state to employ or take as an apprentice any minor person to learn the art or mystery of any trade or craft without first having obtained the consent of such person's legal guardian or guardians; nor shall any minor person be taken as an apprentice aforesaid unless an agreement or indenture be drawn up in writing, in accordance with the provisions of this act, and duly executed under seal by the person or persons employing said apprentice, and also by the parents or parent, if any be living, or by the guardian or guardians of said apprentice, and likewise by said minor persons so becoming an apprentice.

§ 2. Said agreement or indenture, in order to make the law valid, shall contain the following covenants and provisions:

1. That said minor person shall be bound to serve his employer or employers for a term of not less than three nor more than five years.

2. That said minor person so indentured shall not leave his said employer or employers during the term for which he shall be indentured, and if any said apprentice so indentured as aforesaid shall leave his said employer or employers, except as hereinafter provided, the said employer or employers may compel the return of the said apprentice under the penalties of this act.

3. That said employer or employers shall covenant and agree in said indenture to provide, at all times during the continuance of the same, suitable and proper board, lodging and medical attendance for said apprentice, and said employer or employers shall also further covenant and agree to teach or cause to be carefully and skillfully taught to his or their said apprentice every branch of his or their business to which said apprentice may be indentured, and said employer or employers shall be further bound, at the expiration of said apprenticeship, to give to said apprentice a certificate in writing, stating that said apprentice has served a full term of apprenticeship of not less than three nor more than five years at such trade or craft as may be specified in said indenture.

§ 3. Any person or persons taking an apprentice without complying with the provisions of this act shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof before any magistrate or court having jurisdiction, held in the county in which the business of said employer or employers may be conducted, shall be subject to a fine of not less than $500, the fine to be paid to the treasurer of the said county, for the use and benefit of said county. It shall be the duty of the factory inspector and the deputy factory inspectors to see to it that the duties and obligations of employers to their apprentices are observed and enforced, to enforce this act, and to prosecute such employers for a failure to perform such duties and obligations, or any violation of this act.

§ 4. Any and all indentures made under and in pursuance of the provisions of this act shall not be canceled or annulled before the expiration of the term of said indentures, except in case of death; or by the order of or judgment of the county or supreme court of this state for good cause, and any apprentice so indentured who shall leave his employer or employers without his or their consent, or without sufficient cause, and shall refuse to return, may be arrested upon the complaint of said employer or employers and taken before any magistrate having jurisdiction of misdemeanors, who may cancel said indentures, and on conviction may commit said apprentice to the house of correction, house of refuge or county jail, in and for said county, for such length of time as such magistrate may deem just, or until said apprentice shall have attained the age of twenty-one years, and in case said apprentice, so indentured, shall willfully neglect or refuse to perform his portion of the contract as specified in said indenture, then said indenture may be canceled in the manner aforesaid, and said apprentice so violating said indentures shall forfeit all back pay and all claims against said employer or employers, and said indentures shall be canceled.

§ 5. Should any employer or employers neglect or refuse to teach, or cause to be taught to said apprentice the art or mystery of the trade or craft to which said apprentice has been indentured, or fail at any time to provide suitable and proper board, lodging and medical attendance, said apprentice, individually, or his parent or parents, guardian or guardians, may bring an action against said employer or employers, to recover damages sustained by reason of said neglect or refusal; and if proved to the satisfaction of the court, said court shall direct said indentures to be canceled, and may impose a fine on said employer or employers not exceeding $1,000, and not less than $100, and said fine shall be collected and paid over to said apprentice or his parent or guardian, for his sole use and benefit.

§ 6. Any indenture made and executed, wherein parts conflict with, or are not in accordance with the provisions of this act, shall be invalid, and without any binding effect.

§ 7. All acts or parts of acts inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed.—(Chap. 934, Laws of 1871, as amended by chap. 437, Laws of 1888.)

Not a single complaint or reference to this law has come to us during the past year. The industrial world seems to have entirely drifted away from the apprenticeship system, which once was so universal. New machinery and new methods are responsible for this, no doubt, but it is certainly singular that there is no desire on the part of either employers or employes to have this law tested.

COMPULSORY EDUCATION.

This subject will doubtless engage the attention of the Legislature this year. The factory inspectors, in the course of their inspections, have probably the best opportunities to note the necessity for a thorough enforcement of a vigorous compulsory education law. We are compelled to see that all children under 16 years of age employed in factories, are able to read and write simple sentences in the English language, and we have caused the discharge of thousands of unfortunate children because of their inability to qualify in this respect. It is not alone the little immigrant from countries speaking strange tongues that finds himself excluded or dismissed from work, because of his illiteracy, but many children, born in this State, who have been reared in the vicinity of school-houses, are without the rudiments of an education and hang their heads as they shamefacedly acknowledge their misfortune. We are also forcibly reminded from time to time that there is not school-room enough, especially in the larger and growing cities, where the foreign-speaking element and poorer classes of children are usually congregated. It does not seem right that we should exclude children from the factories because of a lack of schooling, and then, when they attempt to enter a school, have the doors shut in their faces because there is not room for them. Again, it is of doubtful benefit to the child or to society to expel a child from a factory on account of illiteracy or juvenility and allow it to roam the streets because of the want of compulsory education officers to insist on its attendance at school. We find that there is little or no attempt to enforce the present compulsory education law, which, though insufficient, is certainly better than nothing—if it were enforced. From the report of the Superintendent of Public Instruction the following extracts have been taken at random from the reports of school commissioners and superintendents, and will serve to show the unanimity of sentiment in favor of a sweeping compulsory education law:

JOSIAH GAILEY, School Commissioner, Weedsport: “Make some practical compulsory education law.”

EMMONS J. SWIFT, School Commissioner, Forestville: “Not until we have a practical compulsory education law, can these schools do the work that is demanded of them.”

LEROY C. HAYES, School Commissioner, Norwich: “Of the 5,382 children residing in the district, only 4,936 attended school during the year. Four hundred and twenty did not avail themselves of the privileges of the schools, which fact pleads the necessity of a compulsory law that will be effectual in requiring and enforcing attendance at school. Such a law would aid in bringing intelligence and virtue to the masses and greater safety to the State.”

EZRA J. DAY, School Commissioner, Valcour: “One of the greatest obstacles with which teachers have to contend is the irregular attendance of pupils. It is a fact to be seriously regretted that there are many children growing up in Clinton county who, when they shall have arrived at the age of maturity, will not be able to read and write the English language, and yet most of them live in sight, or within a reasonable distance, of a school-house, where a good school is maintained thirty-two weeks in the year. The people are awakening to this important matter and can reasonably request that something be done in the way of legislation to compel their attendance at school for a certain length of time each year. This condition of affairs exists in the larger towns as well as in the rural districts, and should receive the thoughtful attention of every citizen who is interested in the success of our schools and the future welfare of the children of this State."

JOHN A. VANDERWATER, School Commissioner, New Hamburg: "No argument is needed to convince those friendly to the interests of the public schools that a compulsory education law is essential to the furtherance of the best interests of the free school system."

ROBERT R. STEVENSON, School Commissioner, Ticonderoga: "I am in favor of a compulsory education law that can be enforced."

WILLIAM J. BARR, School Commissioner, Batavia: "Pass a compulsory education law that will compel."

ELBERT R. PARSONS, School Commissioner, Hunter: "One great source of difficulty in many of our schools is the irregular attendance of pupils. The fault lies not so much with the child as the parent. Indifference, avariciousness or stubbornness will cause the parent to send the child to school one day and keep him at home the next, or perhaps send him one week, then keep him home three. As a consequence of this course the child is the greatest sufferer, but his classmates, teacher and the taxable inhabitants all share the loss. When we take into consideration the fact, as shown by my statistical report, that there are 4,845 children of school age in this commissioner district, and the average daily attendance is but 1,955, we see at once how serious is the evil. Another difficulty is non-attendance. Of the children of school age in this district 1,292 attend no school whatever; and when I think of the multitudes in our State who roam the streets, growing up in vice and ignorance, I say, let us have a compulsory law that can be enforced."

DANIEL COCHRAN, School Commissioner, Wells: "A number of trustees have applied to me for aid in the matter of compelling parents to send their children to school. I have tried in several cases to do this, but I have failed to do much good. There should be some more direct and efficient method of proceeding in such cases. With power to compel children who are not otherwise being educated to attend school, with text-books provided by the State, our schools could be made much more efficient."

S. WHITFORD MAXSON, School Commissioner, Adams Centre: "It is unfortunate that all efforts to secure a practical compulsory law have so far been unsuccessful, but there ought to be earnest and thoughtful attention given to this work till such a law is enacted and enforced."

CHARLES E. WHITNEY, School Commissioner, Cape Vincent: "The irregular attendance of pupils is, perhaps, the greatest hindrance to good progress in the schools of the rural districts, and I believe the most practical means of bringing parents to realize the importance of regular attendance, would be the enactment of an effective compulsory law."

ROLLIN C. FRANCIS, School Commissioner, Georgetown: "I am in favor of the enactment of a more effective compulsory education law."

H. D. NOTTINGHAM, School Commissioner, Manlius: "I am in favor of a compulsory law which can be enforced without difficulty."

ALBERT C. ALDRIDGE, School Commissioner, Victor: "I am in favor of a law compelling school attendance."

WILLIAM A. BALDWIN, School Commissioner, Volney: "I continue to be impressed with our need of a compulsory education law."

SETH S. SURDAM, School Commissioner, Oyster Bay: "An earnest effort has been made during the year to secure more regularity in attendance and I am pleased to note an increase of two per cent in the average. But sixty-one per cent. is not what it should be."

LEON O. WISWALL, School Commissioner, Nichols: "I am in favor of compulsory attendance of pupils."

EDWARD C. DOUGLAS, School Commissioner, Ellenville: "One of the greatest drawbacks to our rural schools is the irregularity of attendance on the part of the pupils. I am glad to see by the reports of the various trustees that there has been a decided gain in this respect in nearly every town of the district. Still there is need of a compulsory education act."

J. FREEMAN WELLS, School Commissioner, Adirondack: "I believe some practical compulsory attendance law should be enacted by the Legislature, as too many children are allowed to run the streets and grow up in idleness."

MARK C. FINLEY, School Commissioner, Palmyra: "The irregular attendance of the pupils, caused undoubtedly by the meager interest taken by the parents, is a great hindrance to the work. This should be overcome by some means — compulsory or otherwise."

JAMES B. LOCKWOOD, School Commissioner, White Plains: "In the matter of needed legislation a compulsory education law and a free text-book law are foremost in the catalogue of our wants."

C. HERBERT FOSTER, School Commissioner, Warsaw: "The compulsory education law should be so revised that it may be enforced."

JAMES A. THAYER, School Commissioner, Penn Yan: "I again wish to express myself in favor of a practical compulsory attendance law. It is certainly time something is done in this line. When we consider the amount of treasure expended by the great State of New York for educational purposes and then observe the large number of children out of school, receiving no instruction, is it not time that representative men in council should devise some way to reach the great mass of humanity growing up in degradation and ignorance?"

J. W. KIMBALL, Superintendent, Amsterdam, District No. 8: "With us, as with all other schools in similar localities, our greatest hindrance to successful work is irregular attendance. After vainly trying every plan, it seems, that human ingenuity can devise, I am fully persuaded that nothing short of a rigorous statute, vigorously enforced, will ever remedy this great evil."

B. B. SNOW, Superintendent, Auburn: "My experience in the schools of this city and my observations of similar systems elsewhere, lead me to suggest that an indispensable aid to secure what is contemplated, by a free school system, is an effective requirement that every child shall acquire at least a satisfactory elementary education, a requirement that has thus far proved so repugnant to many active opponents, and of so little interest to those not immediately engaged in school work, that all efforts to secure legislation to that end have proved futile."

M. W. SCOTT, Superintendent, Binghamton: "A stringent compulsory education act, with proper provisions for its enforcement, and within proper limitations and restrictions, together with schools of detention so located as to be accessible, will do much toward the amelioration of the condition of the children of our great commonwealth."

WM. H. MAXWELL, Superintendent, Brooklyn: "It is something to have rescued 1,068 waifs from the streets of a great city; it is something to have returned 2,666 truants to their regular schools; it is something to have placed 250 boys, apparently incorrigible, in schools where they will have a chance for reformation, but all this is very small compared with what might be done, had we a compulsory law such as that outlined in your last annual report." [Brooklyn has compulsory education officers.]

E. J. BEARDSLEY, Superintendent, Elmira: "The greatest need of our school system at the present time, in this city, is some form of a compulsory education law that can be put in force. I hope the day is not far distant when our legislators will give us such a law."

WM. R. PRENTICE, Superintendent, Hornellsville: "But there is always hope of an American boy who is regularly employed in some respectable calling. The danger is in that ever-increasing army of idle vagrants who are not in school, are not restrained by parental authority, and are not engaged in any useful occupation. The number of these, even in our town, is large and increasing."

ROVILLUS R. ROGERS, Superintendent, Jamestown: "The experience of the Jamestown schools affords no exception to the need of an efficient compulsory education law, a need so generally referred to in the reports of supervising officers and in teachers' associations. It would seem that so general an agreement among school men must result in removing all obstacles to the enactment of such a law. A law is needed not only to compel attendance, but also to provide for the care of a large class of children, many of them already in the schools, to whose characters and habits the ordinary discipline of the school-room is entirely unsuited. It is an open question whether a compulsory law that did not carefully provide suitable places for the care of these children would not work more harm than good."

CHARLES M. RYON, Superintendent, Kingston: "There has been no attempt to enforce the Compulsory Education Act. Something more is needed."

EMMET BELKNAP, Superintendent, Lockport: "Young children in all cities meet death by accident, participate in crime and lead others to follow their example, whose lives could be saved, and, what is still better, could be made worth saving, by an efficient compulsory school attendance law, whose enforcement could be made by adequate penalties, obligatory upon proper officers. When will the State awake to its duty and daily gather up those unfortunate children and place them in schools, in special schools, if need be, and by receiving them exalt its own citizenship and further help the public schools to more fully realize the high purpose for which they have been established?"

JOHN JASPER, Superintendent, New York: "The city of New York is fortunate in the possession of an efficiently organized truancy department, with a corps of twelve agents. For this reason the Compulsory Education Act is not, as is asserted of many other places, a dead letter. The beneficial effects of the enforcement of this law are shown most clearly by the police statistics, from which can be seen the remarkable decrease in the arrests of the juvenile offenders, notwithstanding the very large increase in population during the last twenty years. If the law could be so amended that all unemployed children of school age, found loitering in the streets or other public places, should be obliged to attend school, a further improvement would be effected."

DAVID BEATTIE, Superintendent, Troy: "There is a growing tendency to withdraw children from school at too early an age to place them at work in manufactories and elsewhere, besides a great tendency of a large portion of our immigrant population to disregard the splendid opportunities for the education of their children extended to them by the liberality of the State. It will prove a serious matter to the commonwealth if this tendency is not overcome by wise measures, and that, too, before many years. There can be no doubt that the school of the street continues to exert an undue influence in shaping the intelligence and the morals of the rising generation. Compulsory attendance at school may not be palatable to many of our people, but it is the necessity of the hour, and efforts in that direction ought to continue until success crowns the work already done to secure needed legislation looking to this end."

CHARLES E. GORTON, Superintendent, Yonkers: "We have not, however, tried so much to exact penalties as to secure the attendance of children in school. The truant officers employed by the board of education serves the parochial as well as the public schools. From this city the past year thirty-two truants have been committed to either the Protestant Home, St. Joseph's Home or the Catholic Protector, all institutions in this county."

JOHN S. MCKAY, Superintendent, Malone: "A compulsory education law which shall put a stop to truancy, and which shall insist that every child shall at least acquire the rudiments of an education, is needed."

NATHANIEL L. BENHAM, Superintendent, Niagara Falls: "It is to be regretted that the bill respecting compulsory education failed to become a law. It is sincerely hoped that the measure will be further agitated until something of the nature will be granted."

GEORGE J. McANDREW, Superintendent, Plattsburgh: "There is a considerable number every year who are not registered in any school, and who, through the negligence and indifference of parents, are allowed to roam the streets in idleness. Nothing but compulsion can ever reach this class. It may be said that even this is not wholly effective, but it should be remembered that the wholesome fear inspired by a strictly and wisely enforced truant law has indirectly a powerful effect in reducing this evil. Such a law is needed here. There can be no question about the right and the duty of the authorities to interfere with what constitutes a preparation for every kind of vice and poverty, wretchedness, pauperism and crime."

A. C. McLACHLAN, Superintendent, Seneca Falls: "There are many children of school age in our village that do not attend school, and we are not able to enforce their attendance. We hope that the time is not far distant when means sufficient will be afforded here to accomplish this."

J. IRVING GORTON, Superintendent, Sing Sing: "While we have comparatively little to complain of, as regards non-attendance, truancy or irregularity, we still think that a compulsory education law is needed, and hope that efforts to secure a satisfactory one will not be relaxed."

HARLOW H. LOOMIS, Superintendent, Waterford: "We would hail with enthusiasm a law that would compel attendance."

FRED. SEYMOUR, Superintendent, Watertown: "As the prospects that the law will be soon so amended as to meet our needs are not very encouraging, it has been decided by our board not to wait any longer. There is always quite a large number of boys on the streets not attending school of any kind, public or private or parochial; in other words, incorrigible truants. Under authority from the board, I have published a notice that after November first I shall cause the arrest of all children, between 6 and 14 years of age, found roaming the streets, not attending school of any kind, and shall bring them before City Recorder McConnell, under the law relating to vagrants. Upon consultation with him it has been agreed that should the parent or guardian then refuse to give bonds to keep the child in school, he will send such child to the State Industrial School. It would be better if the law read 6 and 16 years, instead of 14, but even as it is I believe that the 'moral influence' of a few arrests will go a long way toward abating what is getting to be quite a deplorable state of things in this city."

These quotations could be added to at any length from interviews with leading citizens and educators, articles from newspapers, etc. In fact rarely if ever is there such unanimity about any public question. There is hardly any difference of opinion as to what should be the law in detail, for the experience of the large cities of the State with local laws would serve as a guide to frame a general bill. It is to be hoped that this year will see a satisfactory compulsory education law enacted.

THE WEEKLY PAYMENT OF WAGES.

The law requiring the weekly payment of wages by corporations is as follows:

AN ACT to provide for the weekly payment of wages by corporations.

APPROVED by the Governor, May 21, 1890. Passed, three-fifths being present.

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. Every manufacturing, mining or quarrying, lumbering, mercantile, railroad, surface, street, electric and elevated railway (except steam surface railroads), steamboat, telegraph, telephone and muniincipal corporation, and every incorporated express company and water company shall pay weekly, each and every employe engaged in its business, the wages earned by such employe to within six days of the date of such payment, provided, however, that if at any time of payment any employe shall be absent from his regular place of labor, he shall be entitled to said payment at any time thereafter upon demand.

§ 2. Any corporation violating any of the provisions of this act shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding fifty dollars and not less than ten dollars for each violation, to be paid to the people of the state and which may be recovered in a civil action; provided an action for such violation is commenced within thirty days from the date thereof. The factory inspectors of this state, their assistants or deputies may bring an action in the name of the people of the state as plaintiff against any corporation which neglects to comply with the provisions of this act for a period of two weeks, after having been notified in writing by such inspectors, assistants or deputies, that such action will be brought. On the trial of such action, such corporation shall not be allowed to set up any defense for a failure to pay weekly any employe engaged in its business the wages earned by such employe to within six days of the date of such payment other than a valid assignment of such wages or a valid set-off against the same, or, the absence of such employe from his regular place of labor at the time of payment, or an actual tender to such employe at the time of payment of the wages so earned by him, or a breach of contract by such employe, or a denial of the employment. No assignment of future wages, payable weekly, under the provisions of this act shall be valid if made to the corporation from whom such wages are to become due, or to any person on behalf of such corporation, or if made or procured to be made to any person for the purpose of relieving such corporation from the obligation to pay weekly under the provisions of this act. Nor shall any of said corporations require any agreement from any employe to accept wages at other periods than as provided in section one of this act as a condition of employment.

§ 3. The provisions of section two hundred and sixty-three, and three hundred and eighty-four of the Code of Civil Procedure shall apply to and govern any proceedings brought to enforce the provisions of this act, and it is hereby made the duty of the attorney-general of this state to appear in behalf of such proceedings brought hereunder by the factory inspectors of this state, their assistants or deputies.

§ 4. This act shall take effect on the first day of July, eighteen hundred and ninety.—(Chapter 388, Laws of 1890.)

While there probably is here and there a corporation which may evade or violate this law, the information of which has not reached us, we can safely assert that the law is obeyed with these few isolated exceptions. Occasionally during the past year we have learned of instances where corporations had not complied with its provisions, but an official letter to the officers of their companies promptly brought obedience to its mandates.

A great variety of inquiries are made concerning the import of the weekly payment law, and many of them come from persons who want to know why private firms and copartnerships are not made to pay wages once a week. A few samples of letters received are herewith given. It is not alone the workmen, for these business firms who complain that the law does not affect them, but the officers of incorporated concerns also complain that the law does not affect them, but the officers of incorporated concerns also complain that they are compelled to conduct their business at a disadvantage with competing concerns not incorporated.

WANT THE BENEFITS OF WEEKLY PAY.

_____, N. Y.

To Mr. CONNOLLY, Factory Inspector:

DEAR SIR:—We the undersigned employes of _____ [copartnership], _____, Broome county, N. Y., being desirous of deriving benefit from the weekly payment law recently enacted, most respectfully invite you to take the necessary steps in our behalf, so that thereby this end for which we pray may be obtained.

MUST WAIT SIX WEEKS FOR THEIR WAGES.

To the Factory Inspector, Albany, N. Y.:

DEAR SIR:—Now we have failed to see any of the weekly payment system here thus far, in fact the proprietors are making their brags that as this is an out of the way place, they will not be obliged to conform to it.

At these ——— works [copartnerships] a man can commence work on the first day of the month with a promise of one dollar and twenty-five cents per day, and in six weeks time he gets pay from the first. I don't think such a system is fair for a poor man.

The men here would be satisfied if they were paid twice a month, but they dare not protest as they would be discharged at once, and were it known that I am writing you, my place would be vacant as well.

Is the law a "dead letter" or, is it to be enforced? I have a large family, and if I had my money every week I could do much better with it as I could pay cash.

Will there be a remedy, or must we grin and bear it?

Yours respectfully,

CONTRACTORS GET TEN PER CENT.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y.

JAMES CONNOLLY, Esq., State Factory Inspector :

DEAR SIR:— I am instructed to write you concerning a grievance of the employes of the ——— [contractors, not incorporated] of this place. This company, instead of paying its men off in lawful money, issues orders for them to trade at the different stores. These orders are not received by anybody for their face value, but are discounted from ten to twenty per cent. In fact, these employes only realize about eighty cents on the dollar of their earnings.

I am informed that you have the authority to compel this company to pay their men off in lawful money.

Anything that you can do for them in this matter will be highly appreciated by all lovers of justice.

Yours respectfully,

WILL HAVE TO SUE.

WATERTOWN, N. Y.

JAMES CONNOLLY, Esq., Factory Inspector :

DEAR SIR:— Last year I worked for ——— [private individual] at ———, N. Y., and can not get all my pay for the work I did. He now owes me seventeen dollars and seventy-five cents, and is perfectly good, only don't pay, and gives me no reason for not paying. We settled the books and he had no fault to find.

Does the law touch his case in compelling payment of wages, or will I have to sue?

Yours truly,

A UNION'S POSITION.

_____, N. Y., *April 21.*JAMES CONNOLLY, Esq., State Factory Inspector:

SIR:—At a meeting of local union No. —, held April seventeenth, the firm of — [copartnership], were reported to us as paying every two weeks, and I was requested to notify you of the fact and ask you to help us to make them pay weekly, the same as other firms do in the city, they being a scab shop.

A WOMAN'S PROTEST.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., *March 18.*Mr. CONNOLLY, Factory Inspector:

DEAR SIR:—I understand that you are the gentleman that compels all employers to pay all those employed by them their weekly wages. I would like to call your attention to the firm of — [copartnership], contractors, of this city. They would only pay every two weeks last summer, and last fall made their hands wait four weeks at all times. They have just resumed work and they want their men to work until the fifteenth of April without pay. As it concerns a good many in this city, I entreat you to do something in the matter. Poor people can not afford to work so long without money. Any one can tell you the same thing that works for this person. I sign myself,

A WOMAN LOOKING FOR JUSTICE.

A FIRM WHICH WON'T PAY WEEKLY.

_____, N. Y.

Mr. JAMES CONNOLLY, Factory Inspector:

SIR:—You will please note the fact that the firm of — [not incorporated] stone dealers at —, N. Y., do not comply with the law in regard to paying the men.

Please notify them and oblige, yours truly,

THREE COMPLAINTS.

_____, N. Y., *June 21.*Mr. CONNOLLY, Factory Inspector:

SIR:—Once more we wish to call your attention to the fact that the firm of — [copartnership, same firm as above], blue stone dealers at ———, N. Y., are not complying with the law in regard to the weekly payment of wages.

This is the third complaint made against them, and we hope some action will be taken in the matter this time.

Please oblige,

A FRIEND OF JUSTICE.

NEVER BEEN PAID UP IN TWO YEARS.

————— CREEK, December 23.

Factory Inspector CONNOLLY:

DEAR SIR:— Seeing by the "Buffalo Times" that you were going to enforce the weekly payment law on some, I wish to ask you if you will also kindly take our little matter in hand.

I am head man in ——— [private individual] saw mill here. Now he is holding every one of his men's pay back from one to three months, and is putting up large buildings and increasing his business.

Does not this new law give us a chance to make him have a regular pay-day? I have been with him two years and I have never been paid up yet.

Please let me know if you will see to this, or whose business it is to do so and I will be greatly obliged.

Yours respectfully,

HOLDING BACK SIX AND SEVEN WEEKS' PAY.

—————, N. Y., July 28th.

JAMES CONNOLLY, Esq., Factory Inspector :

DEAR SIR:— In behalf of the employes of ——— [copartnership] leather manufacturers (sheep skins). If we are entitled to weekly pay we would like it; if not well and good. We get paid from the fifteenth to the twenty-fifth of the month for the month previous.

If the law affects such firms we would like to know it. I do not want my name divulged to the firm in any way for fear of losing my position.

Hoping to hear from you soon,

WANTED THE INSPECTORS TO COLLECT.

_____, N. Y., July 30.

Mr. JAMES CONNOLLY, Factory Inspector :

DEAR SIR:—Please take notice that a company known as the _____ Pulp Company, situated on the _____ river three miles north of _____ station, are indebted to me for the amount of thirty-eight dollars for labor, earned during a part of the month of June and July, 1891, and refuse to pay the same.

Please collect as soon as possible and oblige,

A DISPUTE ABOUT FIVE DOLLARS.

BUFFALO, _____.

Mr. JAMES CONNOLLY, Factory Inspector :

DEAR SIR:—At our last regular meeting I was instructed to write you in regard to this case:

Henry _____, a stonecutter, working for _____ Bros., at East Buffalo, was not present on pay-day, and his pay was given to one Mr. ———, who keeps a saloon, and when _____ got his pay he was five dollars short, and the said saloon-keeper took the five dollars, saying that he owed him for a bar bill.

Hoping that you will attend to this and send early reply, I remain,

Fraternally yours,

BOTH SATISFACTORY AND UNSATISFACTORY.

YONKERS, N. Y., July 22.

JAMES CONNOLLY, Esq., Factory Inspector :

DEAR SIR:—I received your circular concerning the weekly payment law some time ago, and I must say that I gladly co-operate towards making the law effective and giving all the information I can gather.

As regards my employers, the firm of _____, manufacturers of _____, in Yonkers, I have to state that they complied with the law. In this particular case the enforcement of the law was, even to a certain degree, disagreeable to the men, because the firm used to pay every alternate Saturday the wages earned, inclusive of the last Friday. So that formerly only one day was kept back, whereas the new law allows to keep a whole week back. But I think they will soon become used to it and will like it better soon.

The new law is certainly a boon for thousands of people here in Yonkers, because the shops of ————— used to pay only once a month and to take ten days for making out the pay-roll. They began the weekly payments in May, not waiting until July.

Yours very truly,

WILLING TO COMPLY IF THE LAW SO REQUIRES.

PORT —————, N. Y., August 25.

JAMES CONNOLLY, Esq., Factory Inspector :

DEAR SIR:—Will you please send us a copy of the law in relation to weekly payments? We find considerable difference of opinion as to its requirements. One of the largest manufacturing concerns in our place claim they have investigated the matter and find it does not apply to them; and if not to them, it would not appear to apply to us. We are ready and willing to pay weekly if the law so requires, but upon consultation with our hands, they express not only a willingness, but a preference, that we should pay them fortnightly, as heretofore. We do not hesitate to say we should prefer to pay as we have heretofore done, once in two weeks (and we have never failed to do so), on account of the saving in clerical labor; but we propose to conform to the requirements in the matter of payments, as in all other matters, and shall be pleased to hear from you.

Yours truly,

————— [copartnership.]

REFUSING TO PAY WEEKLY.

FORT —————, N. Y., July 9.

Inspector CONNOLLY:

DEAR SIR:—There are about twenty employes in the employ of ————— [copartnership] paper manufacturers in this place, the said employes have wages due them for the month of June and thus far in July. Mr. ———— has said that unless he was actually obliged to do so, he would not comply with the weekly pay law. Are we, employes of the aforesaid firm, to request them to pay us weekly, or will you, as chief inspector, notify them that they are to pay weekly? We have usually received our wages on or about the fourteenth of each month, for the month previous leaving about two weeks wages at the office.

Now we want them to comply with the law; will you assist us? If so, please notify them or instruct us what course to pursue.

Please withhold my name, unless it should be necessary to use it.

Respectfully yours,

AN EMPLOYEE.

A COMPANY STORE'S CHARGES.

_____, July 30th.

Mr. CONNOLLY, Factory Inspector :

DEAR SIR:— Please permit me to trouble you with this one more question. I received your kind answer to my inquiry concerning the weekly pay law; now the question I wish to ask you is this: What is an incorporated company? And what is meant by municipal company? What is a steam surface railroad? Is the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad what they call a steam surface railroad?

I will explain to you about this company I am working for and then you can tell me better what I wish to know. It is like this : _____ & Sons have quarries and manufacture cement, but they claim that they do not come under that law, because they are individuals. Now take for example:—suppose I owned a large saw mill, all alone, and employed twenty or thirty men, would I not come under that law, or would I be at the pleasure of paying my men as I pleased?

When I get so that I understand and know what companies that law excepts, I will report to you all the companies that do not try to abide by the law. This company that I work for has a store and charges exorbitant prices for their goods, and that is why I am trying to find out if I can not bring them to terms.

Very truly yours,

(Confidential.)

A WORKMAN'S QUERIES.

ROSENDALE, ULSTER CO., N. Y.

Mr. CONNOLLY, Factory Inspector:

DEAR SIR:— I wish to trouble you with a few questions concerning the weekly pay law.

Does it compel or oblige individual public works to pay weekly, or is it just stock companies brought under that obligation? Please let me know the whole status of the law and to whom must we make complaint for our rights? I think if it is only for incorporated public works that it has not dealt fairly with the laboring class at all.

But if individual works come under that law I will apply for my money every week; if not, then I will have to wait forty-five days as usual. I remain,

Very truly,

A LAWYER WANTS INFORMATION.

_____, N. Y., July 28.

JAMES CONNOLLY, Esq., Factory Inspector:

DEAR SIR:— Will you kindly send me a slip of weekly payment law? Also please give me your opinion as to whether law applies to joint stock companies and associations?

Yours very truly,

A FIRM WHICH REFUSED TO PAY WEEKLY.

_____, N. Y.

JAMES CONNOLLY, Esq., Factory Inspector:

DEAR SIR:— We would like to know if this weekly pay bill has anything to do with _____'s [copartnership] sash, door and blind shop.

They employ about 100 men. We have asked for our pay, and they say they will not give it to us.

Please let me know at once, and oblige,

Yours truly,

ANOTHER QUERY.

_____, July 17.

Mr. CONNOLLY, Factory Inspector:

DEAR SIR:— I am a contractor in the sash department for _____ & Co. I employ twenty men. Does this new law requiring men to be paid weekly apply to me; or, in other words, does it only mean corporations working under a charter from the State?

An early reply is requested.

Yours truly,

WHERE THE LAW IS OPPORTUNE.

————— FALLS, N. Y., July 2.

Mr. CONNOLLY, Chief Factory Inspector:

DEAR SIR:— Will you kindly forward us by return mail copy of new weekly payment bill? We should also like to be advised if there is anything in this bill which should prohibit a manufacturer from honoring, if he chose, his employes' orders to tradesmen, etc.?

We have always paid semi-monthly cash in full, yet have been unable to restrain our hands from drawing orders upon us. It has been a first-class nuisance, to speak frankly, and one which we should like to abate, and think now is a good time.

We should appreciate any suggestion and information you can tender us.

Yours truly,

BANK CHECKS NOT AS GOOD AS CURRENCY.

————— LAKE, N. Y., October 20.

Mr. JAMES CONNOLLY, Factory Inspector:

DEAR SIR:— Is there not some way that you can compel Mr. ——— to pay weekly the mechanics employed in the erection of his saw mill here at ——— Lake? At present we are four weeks without pay, and when he does pay he sends his check, and there being no bank here it is hard to get the money on them.

We have refused his checks several times, but he sends them just the same.

There are about fifty or sixty men employed in the mill and we would like your opinion in regard to this matter.

You will greatly oblige by giving this your prompt attention. Hoping to receive a reply soon, I remain,

Yours respectfully,

SEVERAL GRIEVANCES.

—————, N. Y., August 30.

State Inspector CONNOLLY:

DEAR SIR:— I think for my own and the benefit of others it is my duty to give you a few facts regarding business in ———.

I am in the employ of ——— [private firm], and for the sake of my situation I beg you not to let my name out.

In the first place, we are ground to the earth by a "pluck-me" store, which is owned by Mr. ———, who charges the employes twenty cents per dollar more for goods than cash customers who work elsewhere. The average wages for a man with a family is one dollar per day, although the "back" men get one dollar and twenty-five cents.

If you get hurt in the factory you must lose your time and pay your own doctor.

In regard to weekly payments, no such thing is heard of; if you have anything to your credit at the end of the month you can draw some cash on the first, but after that you are allowed none for no purpose whatever.

I also think you would find the factory in a very unsafe condition.

Furthermore we work from 6.30 A. M. to 12 M. and then from 12.50 P. M. to 5.45 making a total of 10 hours and 25 minutes each day except Saturday when we are allowed to stop at 5 P. M.

Now I would ask if such is liberty for the employes who number, about seventy-five, and also what is to be done to stop this state of affairs? As we have not the capital to fight, can the State not show respect for the workingmen in regard to these facts?

Please send me an early reply regarding the above, but I beg of you not to let my name be public. If you want more information will send it at once. Hoping to hear from you soon, I remain,

PAYING AT PLEASURE.

POUGHKEEPSIE, August 18.

JAMES CONNOLLY, Factory Inspector:

DEAR SIR:—I write to you in behalf of the laboring men who are employed in ——— [corpartnership] Poughkeepsie; they are partners, or a company, doing business here.

The question is, are they supposed to pay the men weekly or not? If they are please send them notice at once, and oblige neighbors and business men of Poughkeepsie.

If for references any business firm in Poughkeepsie can vouch for these few lines. Remember a patient worker and oblige.

If there is any law compelling them to pay weekly send your agents here or notify them at an early date.

They pay semi-monthly or whenever they feel like it. I think it about time they are looked after. I say they pay semi-monthly, it is not so, they pay whenever they feel like it. Please send them notice and do what the law requires. Remaining,

Yours truly,

Co-LABORER.

DISCHARGED FOR PROTESTING.

BROOKLYN, *September 10.*Mr. JAMES CONNOLLY, Factory Inspector :

DEAR SIR: — I write to inform you that the _____, [a religious corporation] of New York has commenced to pay weekly, by first keeping back one week's pay, and because one man, an old employe, made a louder stand against it than the rest, he was discharged.

The _____ Society [another] of New York has not attempted to comply with the law up to last Monday, September eighth; to-day, the tenth, the employes were notified that the week ended and will end in future on Tuesday mornings, when all bills are to be given in and payments will be made on the following Monday at 4 P. M. Formerly the work done from Friday morning to Monday was due at time of payment; now it is from Tuesday to Monday.

This arrangement has given great dissatisfaction. You were kind enough to send me a copy of the law, for which I thank you, and send you these facts in strict confidence.

Yours truly,

A CASE THAT THE LAW DOES NOT REACH.

_____ BRIDGE, *July 7.*Mr. CONNOLLY, Factory Inspector :

DEAR SIR: — I am one of a number of men employed by _____ [copartnership], on the Harlem canal at _____ Bridge. We heard all along when the weekly pay law was mentioned, that they did not intend to comply with the law, and we have heard the same thing from the office since.

We have now waited a week since the law went into effect and as there is evidently no intention of paying us weekly, I decided to make this complaint to you.

It is an outrage the way we are treated. The company is in debt to every man for five weeks' pay up to the present time; our next monthly pay day is the twenty-sixth of this month, and then we will have one month and twenty-six days pay due us, but we will be paid only for one month and there will be twenty-six days kept back.

An Italian padrone keeps the shanties here for the Italians and Hungarians and the company keeps the money out of the men's envelopes to pay the padrone his bills.

When we are in need of money we have to get an order from the office and get it cashed by giving a percentage of ten cents on the dollar; some men have to draw orders to pay their rent every month and it costs them from two to three dollars extra, including the percentage. The company claims that the new law does not affect them.

I hope you will give this matter your kindly attention and help us as soon as possible. Do not mention my name in connection with this letter as it would cost me dear. I remain,

Yours truly,

ADVOCATES FRIDAY AS PAY-DAY.

HON. JAMES CONNOLLY, Factory Inspector:

DEAR SIR:—The system under which we pay is, I think, the best. It is framed after twenty-five years' devotion to the development of high-class labor.

Bums, drunkards and occasional laborers are not considered, and the saloon interest is antagonized wherever I can, as the one great enemy of the workingman.

A Saturday pay-night gives the wife her money too late to take advantage of a cheap and open Saturday market, and keeps the family at home Saturday afternoon, where a sea-shore breeze and bath would add life and tone for the week.

Friday also gives time-keepers, clerks and cashiers, who are equally entitled to consideration, a chance to make up accounts carefully, and not be kept a slave to pay-roll later on Saturday night than any night in the week.

It also gives the boss a chance to get a Saturday off, and bosses as a rule work harder than their employes.

The wages paid on Friday are for the full previous week ending Saturday night.

Nothing would do more to keep Saturday half-holidays than absence of pay-roll that day.

Very truly,

AS TO A MONDAY PAY-DAY.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., *July 21.*JAMES CONNOLLY, Esq., Factory Inspector:

DEAR SIR: — In regard to the weekly payment bill, I would like to ask your opinion on the following question:

Do firms fully comply with the law when they pay off every Monday, or are they not required to pay their men every Saturday evening?

With best wishes, I am very truly yours,

A WIFE'S APPEAL.

_____, ONEIDA COUNTY, N. Y., October 27.

MR. INSPECTOR:

DEAR SIR: — Not knowing your name, I address you in this way hoping this will reach the right person.

Having read the weekly payment law, I would like very much to know if it applies to this case.

My husband is in the employ of _____ [copartnership] of this place, manufacturers of chairs, lumber and shingles; they have not paid him anything for three weeks; they are owing him for work done in July and since to the amount of seventy dollars.

I would ask your advice and assistance, if in your power to give it in this matter, as we are in need, having a family of four small children.

Please give this your kind attention and excuse me if I have been too bold in troubling you with this.

Respectfully,

NOT INCLUDED IN THE LAW.

OSWEGO, N. Y., *August 23.*JAMES CONNOLLY, Esq., Factory Inspector:

DEAR SIR: — I was instructed by the K. of L. assembly to write to you for information in regard to a contractor, who has a job of building a trestle here for the N. Y., O. and W. railroad, to see if he comes under the weekly payment act or not.

This man has made his boast that he would not pay his help weekly until he was obliged to, and as some of our members are employed on his work, we wish to know what can be done about making him live up to the law.

Some of the brothers think that his work does not come under the weekly payment act, while others think that it does.

Please advise us by return mail, and oblige.

Yours sincerely,

FORCING TRADE AT THE STORE.

_____, December 10.

To the Factory Inspector :

Could you tell why the _____ mines are allowed to go three months before they pay, and then only pay one month at that?

Where is the inspector of the district; is he or she living or dead? What is the matter with the laws of the State of New York?

By this long waiting for a pay to come makes families very needy. I suppose they want men to trade at the little store at the mines.

You have done much good for working men, see if you can't bring the _____ mines so men can get some money for their labor at least once a month.

To the Factory Inspector :

DEAR SIR:—I hope you will excuse me for troubling you, but I would like to know from you if the _____ Company are under the weekly payment bill or not? We have to wait over three months sometimes for our money.

You need not be afraid to publish my letter to the world. I do not care anything about the company.

A SYMPATHIZING FRIEND.

Mr. CONNOLLY, Chief Factory Inspector :

SIR:—I wish to call your attention to the firm of———, of———, Saratoga county, who are violating the weekly payment law in not paying weekly.

The party in behalf of whom I am writing has been working for them five weeks and has not received enough to pay his board bill of four dollars a week. He intended to move his family up there when he went to work for the firm, but can't get money enough to move them, so you can see plainly that it puts him to an expense of four dollars a week for board that he might save for his family, and it would go a long ways toward their support, as he is very poor, and the family is in a destitute condition, and many is the day they do not know where they are to get their meals, as he has five children.

Now, Mr. Inspector, if you will give this your attention, I know you will relieve a great want, and you will have the prayers of a family in want of your worthy attention.

Yours respectfully,

ONE WHO KNOWS ABOUT IT.

A number of complaints have been made against corporations, every one of which was promptly investigated. Notice of suit was served wherever the officers of a company did not agree to promptly comply with the law, and this course usually brought about immediate obedience to its mandates. Appended are a few sample letters illustrative of the character of our correspondence with reference to corporations :

NOT A PLEASANT FEELING.

———, September 22.

Mr. JAMES CONNOLLY, Factory Inspector :

DEAR SIR:—The —— Slate Company, still refuse to comply with the weekly payment law. We demanded our pay last Saturday and were told we would receive our monthly pay next Saturday. It is needless to say that the general feeling is not very pleasant.

If anything can be done to advance our cause we would be greatly obliged to hear from it.

Yours respectfully,

TOO MUCH TROUBLE TO PAY WEEKLY.

JAMES CONNOLLY, Esq., Factory Inspector :

DEAR SIR:— I wish to call your attention to the ——— Co. [joint stock company] of this place. Are they not obliged to pay their men once a week? They do not, but pay once a month.

They employ about seventy-five men, and the men want and need the money weekly. The firm is well-to-do and could pay weekly just as well as not. They say it is too much trouble.

The men are dissatisfied with the way they get their pay, but many are obliged to stay on account of their families, and because they want work and can't get it at every place.

I work for them and have a family and need my money every week. For God's sake don't let them know who informed you for they would discharge me, and I don't know what I would do then.

Will you see to this and let me know if they come under the head of the weekly payment bill?

Yours,

NEW YORK, December, 9.

Mr. JAMES CONNOLLY, Factory Inspector :

DEAR SIR:— I wish you would be kind enough to send me a copy of the weekly payment bill, and if you could give the following information: Do hotels that are run by a corporation come under the weekly payment law? In a place where employes are compelled to work Sundays is it right for employes to get paid every Saturday for seven days work? Or ought they to get paid for the preceding six days — that is, one week to get paid Saturday, the next Sunday and the next Monday, and so on?

If you can give me the information I shall be very thankful.

Respectfully yours,

NOW PAYS WEEKLY.

_____, N. Y., March 10.

JAMES CONNOLLY, Esq., Factory Inspector:

DEAR SIR:—I received your letter of February sixteenth, and showed it to a few in the factory, and failed to find anyone that knew that the _____ Company were willing to pay all who would ask for it once a week.

In answer to yours of the fourth, it is a prevailing opinion that about the third time we asked for pay we would be informed that our services would not be needed any longer.

If they are willing to comply with the law, why do they not put a notice on the board as is their custom in other matters? It would do away with all timidity and fill the bill completely, and if we did not get our pay once a week it would be our own fault.

I did find that some men had to borrow money to buy coal with when they had a week's pay due them; said parties are not drinking men either.

Please receive my thanks for your courteous and prompt attention.

A BAD CASE — NOTICE OF SUIT FOR PENALTY SERVED.

ST. _____ FALLS, N. Y., December 11.

Mr. CONNOLLY, Factory Inspector:

DEAR SIR:—I inclose you the following statement in regard to Mr. _____ violating the weekly payment law:

I understand that you were in our town looking up that matter; furthermore, you called on Mr. _____ and asked him if he paid promptly, he made the reply that he did. My friend, I can inform you that he does not pay according to law, and that they always wait until they are sued. This fall they were sued by Charlie _____, and a judgment rendered in his favor of eighty-seven dollars.

I have worked for him about one year and my pay dragged all summer. I would demand my pay two or three times a month but would be refused, and to-day they owe me over $100 and they refuse to pay it. I did them good service; my work was filing saws.

My brother works in the woods. When he came out and demanded his pay he was refused. He went back and found his family in a starving condition.

Charlie ——— quit last September and got a balance of sixteen dollars; they made him out a due bill; after a long time he came to the Falls and presented it for pay, and got ten dollars in money.

My friend, this latter I can prove to be a fact. There are families there to-day who have worked there for years, and they are handled in the same way. When they give checks half of them are protested, so that makes it very inconvenient. Last summer, on Saturday nights, the boys would ask Mr. ——— for some money to get shaved. He would say, "I have not got a cent," but would give them some postage stamps to pay their bill.

Such has been the way all summer. My friend, it is high time that this matter should be looked into, and if proper I ask you to see to it at once, for the laboring classes are worse than the slaves were down south before the last rebellion.

If further information is required, please let me know at once,

Yours truly,

HIS WAGES REFUSED.

————— FORKS, N. Y., February 8.

To the Chief Factory Inspector :

DEAR SIR:—For many years past I have been an employe of the ——— Company, at this place, as a laborer, and to-day was by them discharged from their service and employ. I desire to bring to your notice the facts that at no time since the enactment of the weekly payment law (chapter 388, Laws of 1890) has that company complied with its provisions; that to-day there is a balance my due which they refuse to pay, applying it on a debt claimed to be due from me for trade at their store.

I have never been paid by the week in cash as the law provides, but took trade at the store, and the account for same was carried into office and charged to my account, and I have been paid in this way. All their men are paid in trade, and there is no regular weekly pay-day or settlement day as contemplated by the bill referred to.

I bring this to your notice, that the manner in which their business is conducted may be investigated, and they be made to comply with the law and establish a weekly pay-day.

Very truly yours,

JAMES CONNOLLY, Factory Inspector:

FRIEND SIR:—I wish to appeal to you in regard to ——— Company, which was incorporated last April, and is known as the ——— Lake Grape Company. They bought a farm of about 230 acres in the town of ———, Seneca county, N. Y., paying seventy-five dollars per acre; they commenced work on this farm in May, and have employed from five to fifteen teams, and from ten to thirty men. When they commenced they were to pay the first of every month. At the time of the first payment they did not pay, but said they would pay them the first of the next month, and when time arrived they did not pay them, but made some excuse that they would pay in a few days.

They have been putting them off from time to time and have not paid one cent yet. I understand that it is an incorporated company of $45,000 capital. The company's main office is at Rochester, N. Y. I am not interested only in this way, that I have furnished provisions for the boarding house and other families where the men have been employed. I appeal to you at the request of many of the men.

The said petitioners ask you, the honorable inspector of factories, to inquire and demand of said corporation the reason why they have delayed to pay said laborers. We humbly pray,

WANT TO PAY SEMI-MONTHLY.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., September 10.

Mr. JAMES CONNOLLY, Factory Inspector:

DEAR SIR:— Allow us to ask your advice and direction in regard to our paying weekly. We are importuned so earnestly by our men without an exception, to go back to our original practice of paying semi-monthly, that we ask if there is any way we can do this, and not place ourselves liable to the law. They have asked if they can not sign a petition, requesting and agreeing to this semi-monthly pay. We are aware that the law prohibits any contracts, but where the men are so earnest in wishing it, why is it not possible for us to comply?

We find that the weekly payment works very injuriously to us in our foundry. The habits of the men in this trade are not of the best, and where they get their money so often, and in small amounts, they lay off from dissipation from one to three days.

We have watched this closely in this department, and find that it is very demoralizing. Please advise us if it is possible for us to make some arrangement as above.

Very truly yours,

AS TO STATE EMPLOYEES.

A SAMPLE PREFACE FROM A WORKMAN'S "PASS-BOOK."

THE ——— BRICK Co., ———, P. O., }
 ORANGE Co., N. Y. }

Workmen may draw money at any time by giving two days' notice to the bookkeeper. One week's pay will be kept back until settlement, for which one week's notice will be required. Full board will be charged unless you get a ticket at the office, and report there upon return. No money will be paid to a man while under the influence of liquor. Employes occupy company's houses, not as tenants, but as employes, and houses must be vacated when employment ceases.

 IMPORTANT QUESTIONS FROM A CORPORATION.

————, N. Y., July 17.

Hon. J. CONNOLLY, Esq., State Inspector of Factories :

DEAR SIR: — Some questions have come up about the working of the "weekly pay bill" about which we would like to have your opinion.

Heretofore the men working at our mines have been settled with on the first Tuesday of every month. To comply with the law we notified the men that we would settle with them every Tuesday for the previous week. On last Tuesday the men generally came to the office and were settled with. There is no bank in this village and we ran out of small change and could not get it. When the men settled we told them that if they would call the following Friday we would pay them in full and offered them any even money they wanted on account. To illustrate: If there was six dollars and twenty-five cents due a man we gave him a five dollar bill and told him that the one dollar and twenty-five cents would be ready for him on Friday. The men were perfectly satisfied, and since the mine is a mile away from the office, the men generally will not come here after their balance until the next Tuesday. If the accounts are settled and the money in the office ready for the men within the time specified by law, do we comply with our legal obligations, or is it necessary for us to take the money to the mines and tender it to the men there if they do not call for it?

Some of the men, generally those who are saving their money, complain of coming to the office every week to settle, they say that they would much rather "hoe their potatoes" and settle once a month. If we give notice to the men that we are ready to settle and pay on Tuesday and keep our office open from 8 A. M. to 8 P. M. for that purpose, do we fully comply with the law whether all the men come for their settlement and pay or not?

Since there is no bank here, a number of men have been in the habit of leaving their money or wages with us on deposit, and upon these deposits when of considerable amount we pay a low rate of interest. Is it objectionable to keep the men's wages at their request for this purpose?

In the case of single men who are boarding, we have been in the habit of retaining their board bill from their wages as a protection to the keeper of the boarding-house. It seems to us that this is now wrong under the law; are we correct in this?

Many of the men have been in the habit of sending their butcher, doctor, druggist, etc., to us for their pay, and we have paid their bills as a convenience to the men, and charged the same to their account. If we continue to do this, would the payment of these bills be a "valid offset" when the men come to settle?

We have a store, but for some time we have not asked any of our men to buy goods of us, we being willing to take our chances in open competition with our neighbors. Sometimes we make advances to our men in the store, and we understand that these advances are "valid offsets." To illustrate: One of our men who has been with us for many years, and who is a reliable man, was taken sick a few weeks ago. He has lived up to his means, and we owed him nothing. Since his sickness we have let him have about fifteen dollars in goods from the store, and fifteen dollars in cash. Will this be a "valid offset" when he gets well and returns to work?

Our bookkeepers, clerks, and some of our foremen, have a yearly salary. These men draw money from time to time as they want it, and settle the first of January. Does the "weekly pay" apply to these men?

Some of these questions may seem trivial, but they have all been seriously brought up either by ourselves or our men, and we shall be greatly obliged if you will favor us with your opinion upon them.

Yours truly,

THE ANSWER.

The foregoing covers so many points that are constantly being asked about, that the reply thereto may be of interest to others who are similarly situated:

OFFICE OF FACTORY INSPECTOR, }
ALBANY, July 20, 1891. }

DEAR SIR:—Yours of the seventeenth inst. has come to hand and contents noted. You state that in paying your men on last Tuesday you ran out of small change, and there is no bank in your village where you could obtain it. You then paid your men in "even money," for instance, if six dollars and twenty-five cents were due you gave them five dollars and told them they could call the next Friday for the balance. "The men were perfectly satisfied, and, since your works are a mile from the office, they would not come after the balance and consequently allowed it to stand until the next pay-day." You ask if this meets the requirements of the weekly payment law. In reply I beg leave to say that I do not think it does. The law contemplates that payment shall be made in full up to the time set as the end of the working or fiscal week. To withhold any part of the wages of such week, no matter how small, conflicts with the law. It is obvious that if it were legal to withhold a small portion of the wages, because of the inconvenience in obtaining the necessary fractional currency, it would be just as legal to withhold a major portion of the earnings, because of alleged stringency of the money market, or because other debts pressed the company, etc. The fact that some or all of the men were satisfied with partial payment when the fault lay with you, would not relieve me from the necessity of bringing suit against you in case complaint was made. The law requires you to make an actual offer of the earnings, in full.

Replying to your next question, asking that "if the money is in the office within the time specified by law, and the men notified thereof, the office being kept open from 8 A. M. to 8 P. M. to pay them, do you comply with the legal obligation, or is it necessary for you to take the money to the mines and tender it to the men if they do not call for it?" In answering this question I am at a disadvantage in not knowing from personal observation the circumstances of the case, and therefore do not commit myself absolutely to the reply herein made. It is important, however, I presume, that some answer should be made, and consequently I may state generally that if the office was the place of payment under the monthly payment system, it would not appear improper that the payments should continue to be made there under the weekly payment system, although the law seems to contemplate payment at the "regular place of labor," inasmuch as absence therefrom on the regular pay day, entitles a man to "payment at any time thereafter on demand." I take it, however, that your company does not desire to embarrass your employes through spleen at the enactment of the law, and I judge from the tone of your communication that it is your intention to comply with its provisions both in letter and spirit, and consequently it is not your purpose in paying at the office to make it inconvenient for your men to obtain their wages weekly. I think, therefore, that the matter can safely be left to your judgment.

Your next query as to whether it is objectionable in the eye of the law for you to "accept for deposit the money or wages of the men, at their request, on which deposit, when in sufficient amounts, you pay interest, there being no bank in your vicinity for that purpose." In reply I beg leave to say that I can see no objection to it. It rests entirely with your men what they shall do with their money after they get it.

As to the system of "retaining out of the wages of unmarried men money sufficient to pay their indebtedness to boarding-house keepers," I am firmly of the opinion that you have no right to do so. It is a business matter entirely foreign to their employment with you, and in which you have no right to interfere without a valid assignment of wages to the boarding-house keepers. My position is based on the well-defined principle of law that "stoppage is not payment."

If your men "send their butcher, doctor, druggist, etc." to you for payment, I can see no reason why you should not pay them if they produce proper assignments, and the amount of these assignments would seem to be a "valid offset" under the law.

In reply to your further question, asking if payment for the goods obtained at your company's store can be legally deducted from the wages of the men, I have to say respectfully that if the store is properly a part of your company's plant, and you have a lawful right under your charter to run such a store in connection with your other business, and it is therefore a part of your corporate property, the value of any goods obtained therein constitute a "valid offset," and could be deducted from the wage-money due. But if the store, as is sometimes the case, is not properly a part of your property under your charter, then the value of the goods could not be legally deducted from the earnings of your employes, and such indebtedness would simply have the same legal footing as the indebtedness to the butcher, doctor or druggist, even if all of your stockholders were interested in the ownership of the store.

In answer to your final question, I am of the opinion that the weekly payment law applies to your bookkeepers, clerks and foreman, the same as to your other employes.

Respectfully yours,

JAMES CONNOLLY,

Factory Inspector.

The "truck system" prevails to some extent in quite a number of places in this State. It may not now be carried on with all its old repulsive features, but it exists to a sufficient degree to become a serious grievance to several thousand people. The goods obtained in the stores of these corporations are sold at a considerable percentage beyond their market value, but the poor people who purchase them have no recourse but to submit to the unjust exactions without a murmur. If legislation can be so framed as to abolish this evil, it would relieve several communities of a thralldom which bears a likeness to some of the most galling features of slavery and highway robbery combined. The weekly payment law is not sufficiently broad for the purpose.

It may not be out of place here to print the decision of an Ohio court upon the question of more frequent settlement of wages by corporations. The suit was brought under the law of Ohio providing for the payment of wages twice a month. The opinion of the judge is as follows:

IN THE POLICE COURT OF THE CITY OF CLEVELAND.

KELLY, Judge.—The information in this case charges in substance that the Lake Erie Iron Company is an incorporated manufacturing company, under the laws of Ohio, and that by C. W. Schofield, its president, has, in the said county and State, during the month of June during this year, 1890, failed and refused to pay the employes of the same; and especially failed and refused to pay Thomas M. Mott, an employe of said manufacturing company, twice in each month, and especially in said month of June, 1890.

This information is predicated upon an act entitled "An act to amend 'an act to secure the prompt payment of wages of certain employes twice in each month,'" passed March 20, 1890, and to be found on page 78, volume 87 of the Ohio laws; it is as follows :

tion companies, or contractors building railroads, shall pay in lawful money, or by check, draft or order payable in lawful money, at sight or on demand, on a bank located at a distance not greater than eight miles from the place where said labor was performed, twice in each month, each and every employe engaged in its business, the wages earned by such employe to within ten days of the date of said payment; provided, however, that if at any time of payment any employe shall be absent from his regular place of labor, he shall be entitled to said payment at any time thereafter during the regular business hours, upon demand; and provided further, that said employer may retain at each payment, any amount said employe may order withheld from his or her wages for rent, powder, tool-sharpening or oil due said employer."

The second section provides how corporations are to be prosecuted for a violation of this act and the penalty for a violation thereof.

To the information a demurrer is interposed upon the ground that the statute violates section 1, article 11, of the bill of rights of the State Constitution, and also the fourteenth amendment of the Constitution of the United States. With respect to the bill of rights it is claimed that it infringed upon the liberty and the property rights of the citizen by denying to him the right to make such contracts with regard to his labor as he might see fit.

With regard to the fourteenth amendment, it is urged, and that clause provides, that no State shall deprive any person of life, liberty or property without due process of law, nor deny any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the law, are likewise contravened by these provisions.

Before examining in detail these several grounds of the demurrer it is proper to remark that courts in determining questions of the character involved are guided by long used and well-defined rules. Whenever the constitutional validity of a statute is questioned, the courts are bound to sustain it by every reasonable intendment; the presumption always being in favor of its constitutionality unless it is the result of a manifest assumption of authority on the part of the enacting power, and there is a clear incompatibility between it and the Constitution.

Nothing but a clear violation of the Constitution, a palpable usurpation of power prohibited, will justify the judicial department in pronouncing an act of the legislative department void.

would justify a court in declaring the act in question void upon the ground that it interferes with both corporate and individual rights, or with either? It will be observed that the act operates solely upon a certain class of corporations which are organized under the laws passed in pursuance of the Constitution of this State. In the very nature of things, corporations can in no sense be regarded as belonging to the class referred to in article 1, section 2, of the bill of rights. That section says all men are by nature free and independent and have certain inalienable rights, among which are those of enjoying and defending life and liberty and acquiring, possessing and protecting property, etc.; that only persons and their rights are meant and referred to and protected in this section is evident, not only from the language used, but also from the fact that corporations and their rights are made the subject of another and distinct article of the Constitution, namely, article 13, sections 1 and 2 of the same instrument, and it is clear that the rights of the one and the powers and franchises of the other, so far as the Constitution of this State is concerned, although in many respects similar, are by no means identical; neither are these corporations citizens of the United States, as they derive their existence solely from the State; but that they are persons, too, who are protected by the fourteenth amendment is undoubtedly true.

In regard to the rights of the individual citizen, if the act in question undertook to control them, unless those rights were clothed with public interest, there would be no doubt of its being a clear violation of both the article and the amendment referred to; as it is well settled by the Supreme Court of the United States and this State, that, unless a private right is clothed with a public interest, any legislative interference with it is unwarrantable and void. (Munn v. Ill., vol. 94 U. S., 113 Supreme Court Rep.; and the State ex rel. v. The Columbus Gas Company, 34 O. S., page 582.) And the same rule would undoubtedly apply to corporations or artificial persons acting within the scope of their powers, and not being otherwise subject to legislative control. But the language of the act and its specific character precludes its application to private individuals, as it in no respect undertakes to control an employer in any other or different manner than other individuals are controlled in making contracts with corporations generally; and that is, that they can make no valid contract with them unless the same is clearly within the scope of their corporate powers. This doctrine is so firmly established that it has become a fundamental principle governing the business relations and dealings of corporations with individuals and with each other. Unless, therefore, the vested rights of the class of corporations mentioned in the act are seriously interfered with, without authority on the part of the Legislature, there can, in our opinion, be no reason for saying that because individuals are prevented by the want of power upon the part of a corporation from making such contracts with them with respect to the sale of their labor, or of any other species of property they may possess, their constitutional rights are violated. It must be borne in mind that the corporations affected were organized in pursuance of the laws of this State, and in no particular derive their existence from the Constitution or the laws of the United States. They were organized since the adoption of the present Constitution and in compliance with the laws made in pursuance thereof, both of which reserve to the General Assembly the power to alter, amend and even repeal the same.

Such being the case the General Assembly, in the exercise of that power, may require a corporation so organized to comply with additional regulations and impose upon them additional burdens as a condition, even to their further corporate existence, so long as that power is not exercised in a spirit of sheer wantonness or deprives them of their vested rights. The principles are recognized both by the Supreme Court of this State and the United States.

The case of Shields v. The State (26 O. S. Reports, and also reported in the 95th United States Reports, page 319), was a case wherein an act of the Legislature of this State fixing the maximum rate of fares upon all railroads within the State was claimed to violate a vested right of a railroad corporation to charge what is deemed reasonable for the transportation of passengers, thus directly controlling and limiting in a marked degree the earnings of the road when derived from a certain source, which right, until the passage of the act, was clearly within the scope of its corporate power. But the court nevertheless held that it did not, and also that it was a proper and legitimate exercise of the reserved power.

The act in question in this case when compared with the one in that is far less comprehensive in its operations upon corporations affected by it; it in no way interferes with any vested rights or curtails or limits their legitimate gains or revenues; but only requires that they pay at stated times, out of their earnings and revenues, the wages when earned, to those whose labor has materially contributed to their accumulations. Authorities, viz., The Louisiana R. R. Co. v. R. R. Com., Tenn., (190 Fed. Reps., 699); and San Mateo Co. v. Southern

R. R. Co., (8th Sawyer, C. C. Rep. 238), referred to by counsel, in no way questions the doctrine contained in the case of Shields v. The State.

The case of the Louisiana Railroad Company v. The Railroad Commissioners of Tennessee was one where the exercise of the police power of the State was in controversy; while that of the San Mateo County v. The Southern Railroad Company distinctly recognizes the reserve power in the following language: "Under the reserved power the State can alter or repeal the laws under which private corporations are formed; the State can not exercise any control over the property of a corporation except as may be exercised through control over its franchises and over like property of any person engaged in a similar business; it can not divest property or rights which have become vested; in other words, it can, in the exercise of its power, control the franchises that permit them to acquire their property, but not the property itself, unless they do so in the same way that they can control the property or individuals engaged in the same business."

In view of this well-established doctrine the Legislature in the passage of this act only exercised its reserved power over a corporation of the class affected by it.

As to the claim that the act contravenes those clauses of the fourteenth amendment to the Constitution of the United States, which provides that no law shall deprive any person of life, liberty or property without the due process of law, nor deny any person within its jurisdiction equal protection of the law, it seems to us likewise not maintainable. The operation of those clauses in no particular affects the exercise by the State Legislature of the reserved power to alter, repeal or amend within the limits we have defined, as the authorities we have referred to, and the reasoning deduced from them, when considering the nature, extent and proper exercise of that power, clearly indicates.

As the State Legislature, in the passage of this statute, undeniably acted within those limitations, it is manifest that their requirements are not in any respect violated. It is further urged that the statute is special legislation. We can not agree with this proposition. In our opinion the law applies equally to all of the classes intended to be affected by it and has uniform operation throughout the State. Our Supreme Court has repeatedly held such legislation to be constitutional. The demurrer is accordingly overruled.

CASH PAYMENT OF WAGES.

It is not generally known that there is a law providing for the payment of wages in cash by corporations. The act is chapter 381 of the Laws of 1889, and is as follows:

AN ACT to provide for the cash payment of wages by corporations.

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. Every manufacturing, mining or quarrying, mercantile, railroad, street railway, canal, steamboat, telegraph and telephone corporation, and every incorporated express company, and water company not municipal, shall pay to each and every employe engaged in its business the wages earned by such employe, in cash; and it shall not be lawful for any of the above-named companies or corporations to pay their employes in their own scrip or that of others commonly known as store money orders.

§ 2. Any corporation violating any of the provisions of this act shall be punished by a fine not exceeding fifty, and not less than ten dollars, on each complaint on which it is convicted, providing complaint for such violation is made within thirty days from the date thereof.

§ 3. This act shall take effect upon the first day of July, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-nine.

SUITS INSTITUTED FOR VIOLATING THE WEEKLY PAYMENT LAW.

Wallace T. Foote, Jr., who was designated as counsel for this department in prosecuting suits for violation of the provisions of chapter 388 of the Laws of 1890, was relieved from further service because of dilatoriness in bringing the cases into court, and consequently no progress can be reported at this time in compelling certain delinquent corporations to comply with the weekly payment law. Other counsel will shortly be selected for this duty and test cases will be instituted. Notices of suit have been served on the following-named corporations:

Crown Point Ore and Iron Company, of Port Henry and Hammondville.

Chateaugay Ore and Iron Company, of Plattsburg and and Lyon Mountain.

St. Regis Leather Company, of St. Regis Falls.

Arnold Hill Ore and Iron Company, of Ferrona.

WOMEN FACTORY INSPECTORS.

The novelty of having women factory inspectors has now about worn off, and a sufficient time has elapsed since their appointment in this state to permit of an opinion being formed based on the actual value of their services. Some of the insincere advocates of the innovation who wished, or pretended to wish, a law passed creating women factory inspectors, but at the same time detaching them from all connection with and responsibility to the department itself, have endeavored to create the impression and foster the false notion that the inspectors in office at the time the bill was pending, were utterly opposed to having women inspectors. Because in this report last year the new departure was not pronounced an unqualified success after a few months trial it was again proclaimed that the chief of the department was still opposed to women inspectors. Perhaps it is time now to put these misstatements to rest, in view of the wide publicity which their disseminators have given to the detractions. The fact is that the inspectors were not opposed to women factory inspectors at the time or before the bill became a law providing for women factory inspectors. They worked with those who were conscientiously in favor of a proper bill and against the erratic measure fathered by a lately defeated candidate for a high State office, the only purpose of which was to disorganize the department and to defeat the beneficial purposes of factory legislation. After the law was passed it was determined to give it a fair trial.

The women appointees who have so far proven themselves equal to the task of inspecting factories properly, are now in office about a year and a half. Some removals were made and resignations sent in by request, in order that their places might be filled with the women who were better qualified by disposition to perform the required duties, and who would act in harmony with the other officers of the department. It may be remembered that when the bill to create the offices of women factory inspectors was pending, it was falsely claimed by some of the advocates of the women's bill which was rejected, that great and outrageous abuses existed in the factories of this State, which would and could only be unearthed by women inspectors. These sensationalists, chagrined at their defeat, could see nothing good in the enforcement of a measure which they had opposed. To some extent we are indebted to these people for a share of unfavorable comment in the newspapers. Disappointed in their aims in the Legislature, they then wanted the department conducted in a manner to suit them, after the Legislature had adjourned. This has not been done.

Taking into consideration certain defects in the law, the women inspectors, as a general rule, have satisfactorily performed the duties required by the statute. They have not discovered or heard of the gross immoralities in factories which it was claimed would be brought to light. They found matters pretty much as the men inspectors found them. They visited practically the same factories, investigated complaints, issued orders, required changes to be made in machinery and in the internal arrangements of many workshops, just as the men would do, and they have been restricted in no manner whatever beyond their instructions to keep within the law. I can therefore say that if we allow a certain latitude in the matter of protecting machinery, inspecting plumbing, fire escapes and elevators, that women inspectors can do and have done excellent service in this department.

It is not to be expected that they will have either the confidence in their own judgment or the desire to seemingly act officious with reference to protecting machinery or doing the other things which might be considered more in the line of a man's duty. It may be acknowledged that they can know all this, and no doubt some of our women inspectors do, but unless it is a case of emergency—they are apt to ignore the masculine feature of the factory inspection business, knowing that the deputies of the other sex will see it or attend to it by request from them.

The work of the department has been so arranged that the women are not required to inspect those places where men are exclusively employed, which makes the work somewhat pleasanter for the lady inspectors. However, the sphere of their usefulness could be greatly extended were they given supervision over those matters in mercantile establishments which are especially connected with the welfare of the women employed therein—such as enforcing the law relative to providing suitable seats, which is practically a dead letter because there is no one to compel compliance with it. The act in question is as follows:

SECTION 1. It shall be the duty of all employers in any mercantile or manufacturing business or occupation to provide and maintain suitable seats for the use of such female employes, and to permit the use of such seats by such employes, to such an extent as may be reasonable for the preservation of their health.

§ 2. Any violation of this act by any employer shall be deemed a misdemeanor.—(Chap. 298, Laws of 1881.)

No doubt there are many other directions in mercantile establishments where the visits of women inspectors would result in benefit to the persons employed therein, and at the same time no right of the proprietors of such places would be infringed upon. We believe that the owners of stores would find that the systematic inspection of their premises would result in benefiting themselves as well as their employes, just as experience has demonstrated to be the fact in the case of manufacturing establishments.

CASE OF HORACE INMAN, AMSTERDAM.

November 11, 1890.—Horace Inman, of the Inman Manufacturing Company, Amsterdam, and manager and superintendent of the American Box Machine Company, Amsterdam, was arrested on a warrant sworn out by Deputy Inspector Bertha L. Aschoff, for violating section 124 of the Penal Code in refusing her admittance to his factory and workshop. He was tried before Recorder Putnam, convicted and fined thirty dollars. Inman appealed on the following grounds:

1. That the defendant was arrested herein on a warrant issued upon an information charging him of being guilty of the misdemeanor and crime specified in section 124 of the Penal Code of the State of New York, to-wit, in willfully resisting, delaying or obstructing a public officer, a deputy factory inspector of this State, in discharging the duties of her office.

2. That the action was tried in said court, held by Howard Putnam, recorder of said city, on the 6th day of December, 1890, at which trial deponent acted, and tried the cause on behalf of the defendant.

3. That upon said trial the defendant was convicted of said offense and a judgment upon the same was thereupon rendered against the defendant that he pay a fine of thirty dollars, and be imprisoned until it be paid, not exceeding thirty days.

4. That the defendant desires to appeal from said judgment to the court of sessions of the county of Montgomery, and hereby makes application for an allowance of such appeal.

5. That the facts showing the errors alleged to have been made and committed in the proceedings herein and on the trial hereof, and complained of by the defendant, are as follows:

(a.) That on the day of said trial and before the defendant had pleaded herein he moved for his discharge on the ground that the information does not allege that any crime was committed by him, which motion was denied and the defendant excepted.

(b.) That on the trial the complainant and witness Bertha L. Aschoff was allowed to state what one George Simpson said in answer to a question of said witness put to said Simpson, "if the proprietor was in?" "He said yes." To which statement defendant objected and moved to strike out "on the ground that it is incompetent and does not bind the defendant and is not evidence against him," which objection was overruled and the motion was denied and defendant excepted.

And thereupon witness was further allowed to testify: "I asked him if I could see the proprietor; Mr. Simpson led the way to an inner office or room."

(c.) Upon said trial said witness Aschoff, was asked and allowed to answer the following question under objection:

"Q. Is that a duplicate and fac simile of card you handed defendant?"

"Objected to on the ground that the original should be produced. Objection overruled."

"A. It is."

(d.) That thereupon said card was marked "Ex. 1., H. P., Recorder," and offered in evidence by the people, to which the defendant objected to as incompetent proof, and that a copy is not competent, and that it is not the best evidence. Which objection was overruled and defendant duly excepted.

(e.) On the trial the following took place while said witness was on the witness stand:

"Q. (By People.) Did you on this occasion state to Mr. Inman that you were a deputy factory inspector?"

"Objected to by defendant as leading."

"Objection overruled and defendant excepted."

"A. I did."

(f.) After the people had rested their case, the defendant made the following motion, which was denied, and exception taken by the defendant, as follows:

Defendant moves for his discharge on the ground:

“First. That there is no proof that this alleged box factory is a factory within the definition given in the Laws of 1886, chapter 409, as amended by Laws of 1890.

“Second. There is no proof that Mr. Inman was the proprietor or manager of the alleged box factory or had any supervision or control over it in any way.

“Third. There is no proof that Mr. Inman willfully prevented, obstructed, delayed or resisted a public officer in discharging a duty of her office.

“Fourth. That the oral declarations of Mr. Inman are not sufficient to constitute the crime alleged in the information, and that there is no evidence to show that she (witness Aschoff) presented to Mr. Inman any evidence of her authority to go through the factory as a factory inspector.

“Motion denied and defendant excepts.”

Which motion defendant claims should have been granted and defendant discharged.

(g.) On cross-examination of the defendant, who was sworn and examined in his own behalf, was asked, by the district attorney of Montgomery county, who conducted the examination on the part of the people, this question:

“Q. What, if any, connection have you with the Inman Manufacturing Company?”

To which the defendant objected as incompetent and irrelevant; which objection was overruled and defendant excepted.

The witness then answered:

“I am manager and superintendent of the machine shop and foundry, under a salary; am manager and vice-president of the American Box Machine Company.”

(h.) On such examination the defendant was also asked the following question by the district attorney:

“Q. What was your objection when you told her she could not go through?”

Defendant objected to the same which was overruled and defendant excepted, and the defendant was allowed to answer as follows:

“A. My object was to tell her she could not go through because I thought she had no business to go through my machine shop or premises; she had asked to go through my premises.”

(i.) On such examination defendant was also asked by the district-attorney the following question:

“Q. Had she asked to go through your machine shop?”

To which the defendant objected as calling for a conclusion, and incompetent, and the people seek by the question to contradict and impeach the people's witness, which is not proper, and seeks to prove an entirely different offense sought to be proved by the people's witness, and that charged in the information.

Which objection was overruled and the defendant excepts and the witness allowed to answer as follows:

“A. She did not mention the machine shop. The machine shop and foundry were in my charge; she asked to inspect my premises.

(j.) That at the close of the evidence a motion was made and denied as follows:

“Defendant moves for his discharge on the grounds,

“That there is no evidence that any crime or the crime alleged (against defendant) has been committed; and,

“That mere oral statements as proved are not enough to constitute the crime alleged (or laid) in the information; and,

“Lastly, that it appears that Mr. Inman was not the proprietor or manager or had any control or authority over the premises or factory demanded to be inspected.

“Motion denied, and defendant excepts.”

6. Defendant further says, that the said conviction and judgment are unsupported by the evidence given on said trial; and,

7. That the said conviction and judgment are against the decided weight of the entire evidence given on the said trial; and,

8. Also that the fine adjudged to be paid by the defendant by said judgment is excessive.

That the defendant claims that each and every one of the above rulings made by the court in the proceedings herein and on the trial of this action are erroneous, and that said conviction and judgment entered thereon are wrong for each of the several reasons above set forth, and that the defendant will urge each and every one of them as grounds for the reversal of the said judgment.

Dated FULTONVILLE, N. Y., December 15, 1890.

The appeal was allowed by Hon. Frothingham Fish, Justice of the Supreme Court, for the following stated reasons:

First. The complainant did not at the time she called upon the defendant furnish him any evidence that she was a person in authority. For aught he knew she may have been an usurper.

Second. The defendant did not resist, delay or obstruct complainant. If she had the lawful right to go through defendants' premises she did not need to ask permission. She made no attempt to go into the factory or to inspect it. He simply refused permission or consent that she go in. He left her to take the chance of her right to enter without his permission. There was nothing done to delay or obstruct her movements if she chose to rely upon the law and enter. He was not bound to give her permission.

Third. It does not appear that defendant was in control of the factory, so that his permission was of any moment.

Judge Fish said: "I do not decide these questions one way or the other; but think there is sufficient gravity about them for review in a criminal case where, upon doubtful premises, a defendant is entitled to acquittal."

The appeal was argued before Judge Wendell of Montgomery county, who reversed the recorder's decision and dismissed the defendant.

RECOMMENDATIONS.

The recommendations made in this report, are summarized as follows:

First. That children under 14 years of age be prohibited from employment in mercantile houses, telegraph, telephone and messenger service.

Fourth. That the women deputy factory inspectors be authorized to enforce the law requiring the placing of seats for the use of females employed in mercantile houses.

Fifth. That the salaries of the deputy factory inspectors be increased to adequately compensate them for their services.

Seventh. That the "sweat-shop" system be regulated.

Eighth. That the law be amended requiring the examination of all elevators and elevator cables, and that power be given the inspectors to prohibit the use of dangerous elevators, and that discretion be vested in the inspectors as to how elevator wells may be guarded.

Ninth. That some system be devised by which the laws relative to fire escapes, and means of egress from hotels, theaters, halls, tenements and school-houses be rigidly and uniformly enforced.

Tenth. That uninsured steam boilers be inspected by competent men of at least ten years' experience; and that persons in charge of stationary engines be required to pass a qualifying examination.

ON DEFECTIVE MACHINERY.

Read by Chief Factory Inspector McDONALD, of Ohio.

MR. PRESIDENT, LADIES AND GENTLEMEN OF THE ASSOCIATION.—It is but comparatively few years since machinery first made its appearance. Prior to that time everything manufactured was hewed and shaped by hand. It was a slow way of production, and the mind of the mechanic set to work to devise a more perfect and speedy method. As a result there has been perfected a complex construction of simple mechanical elements, such as wheels, levers, etc., with such success that to-day every manufactured article of necessity is a production of this world-wonder known as the machine. It has been so perfected that each little part automatically performs its duty as though it were inspired with a human mind, and, in many instances, a machine is now doing the work formerly requiring the services of many men. Does any one cry a halt to this state of mechanical progress? Emphatically, no, with all the meaning the word implies. It is one of the greatest illustrations of the advancement of civilization, and we could not exist without it. We might as well try to prosper without our railroads as without machinery. There have, it is true, been some wonders accomplished in mechanical inventions, yet machinery is still in its infancy, and ere another century I predict that almost every branch of manual labor will be performed by a machine.

The introduction of machinery has proven itself to be an everlasting benefit to the community, but with it came hazardous employment, and while the machine is competent to turn out perfect work it is also able to maim its operator. The inventors of machinery do not seem to look beyond the perfection of production, and the important matter of safety to life and limb has been entirely ignored. It must be admitted that it is an impossibility to make machinery absolutely safe, and while I believe the machine is destined to remain in use so long as the civilized world stands, just so long will the lives and limbs of the people who come in contact with it be subjected to more or less danger. Yet machinery can be made reasonably safe, and it was the intention of laws creating inspection of workshops and factories to, so far as practicable, securely guard dangerous machinery.

As the demand for machinery increases, competition and unskilled construction, the two greatest obstacles impeding scientific construction, have presented themselves in alarming proportions, and with such rapidity that I feel safe in declaring that perfection in construction of machinery seldom predominates, and, as a matter of fact, defective machinery is the result.

In using the term defective machinery as I do it applies to machinery of every description, and does not mean a defect in any one particular, but defective in general,—machinery and parts of machinery, etc. If the gearing of machinery is so constructed and exposed as to be likely to cause an accident, the machine is defective in that one particular just as much as though its shafting or other details had been designed of insufficient strength, and, in fact, it is these little details that are the most important.

The enormity of this subject is comprehensive, as our entire industrial prosperity is based upon perfection of machinery in production; and many times engineers, eager to succeed in this one capacity, entirely overlook perfection in construction, which, in my opinion, is many times equally as important.

When an industrial plant is to be established, the cost of its erection and equipment is the first thing considered, and generally from a standpoint of economy, to such an extent that the engineers frequently reduce strength and material in various details, notwithstanding the fact that they are well aware that such reductions will cause the strength to fall far below a recognized safety factor. However, this delusion of economy presents a temptation to lessen expense, which is frequently and freely indulged in until, in many cases, we find our machinery, after being put in operation, defective and weak, breaking down under the most peculiar circumstances, which, when investigated invariably show evidence of unskilled engineering. It would be unjust to lay the entire stress of this evil upon the engineer, for in many cases he simply produces what is required of him, or, in other words, he is given a maximum price and must conform his designs in accordance. This practice is the most glaring false economy. What has been apparently saved in the design must necessarily be expended many times in repairs, not considering the danger to human life and limb which is caused by endeavoring to operate an unguarded or faultily constructed piece of machinery. From close observation and years of experience in the construction of machinery, and later in the inspection of factories, it is demonstrated to me, and very clearly too, that this is the true status of affairs, and I dare say a very large percentage of the accidents that occur in the industrial establishments yearly are due almost entirely to the direct carelessness on the part of some person, and with ample and proper ingenuity could have been prevented. It requires but little reflection on my part to recall case after case of horrible accidents causing serious loss of life, limb or property,—the fruits of defective construction and inferior workmanship. While this is true concerning general machinery it is more apparent in special machinery.

The most dangerous class of machinery now in use — if the number of accidents which occur is to be taken as a criterion — seems to be machinery intended for wood-working purposes. Many valuable devices have been invented to prevent accident in its operation, the major portion of which would be but a slight additional expense to supply, and in many instances could be added when the machine is under construction with scarcely any additional expense whatever and certainly in a more mechanical manner, but invariably we find these machines sold, day after day, and put into operation without these life-saving attachments.

I have referred to but this one class of machinery, but it will be found so in machinery of any character, no matter for what purpose intended, from the very crude to the finest and most complicated. It is of frequent occurrence to find a beautiful and costly engine, highly finished, with exposed gear-wheels or protruding set screws, rendering it very dangerous for the engineer, and very difficult to remedy; but had the proper attention been given these details when the machinery was under construction, they could have been easily and well obviated. It is of almost daily occurrence to read of a damage suit being filed against some manufacturer by one of his employes who had been employed to operate a certain piece of machinery. In all probability the machinery was just as turned out of the factory of its maker, yet the person who purchased it became personally liable for damage caused by any of its defects or otherwise. It seems to me that it would be more in harmony with the golden rule of justice were the manufacturer of the machine compelled to give the public a construction supplied with all known safeguards for its kind, or practically speaking, that the builders should assume some responsibility for the damage caused by their own defective productions; and could such a condition of affairs be brought about, I predict that we would then have removed the cause for a very large percentage of the accidents that now occur in our manufacturing industries, which course, in fact, would have a tendency to reduce the liability of accidents in such places to a minimum.

It may not be possible to attain such a position as I have pictured in our production of machinery, but it should be the aim of all employers to secure a uniform system of perfect construction of machinery, and to accomplish this the word "cheap" must be cast aside. There can be nothing good that is cheap; as the term is generally used it implies something common and of small value. In the construction of machinery we should look for two results, and two only — durability and perfection, both in production and construction. We should start from the very bottom, as we would with an immense and costly building, by laying a good and solid foundation, and each part in detail should be systematically carried to completion, with but one grand end in view — safe and perfect construction.

ON CHILD LABOR.

Read by Deputy Inspector Mrs. FANNY B. AMES, of Massachusetts.

A recent number of the "Contemporary Magazine" contains a short and earnest plea from Cardinal Manning for raising the minimum age of employment of children in England, under the new factory act, from 10 to 12, in the course of which he says, "Nations take rank in civilization according as they legislate for women and children."

Judged by this standard, the whole world and, notably, parts of our nation have at least registered progress in right social organization; for they have steadily grown in appreciation of the momentous need for protecting children from the harm of being too early pushed into the struggle for daily bread, as well as the need of protecting the State itself from the growth of a stunted, half-educated, physically incompetent "peasant" class, out of all relation to a republic and a shame to a nation with a Christian standard of a common brotherhood.

A glance at the history of this legislation shows a tendency to the raising the minimum age of employment, the shortening the hours of labor and more strict educational requirements. At the beginning of this century in New England there were children of 5 and even 3 years working in factories and brickyards, with thirteen, fourteen and fifteen hours of daily labor. At present the minimum age in Massachusetts and Connecticut is 13, in Maine 12, while New Hampshire, Rhode Island and Vermont still linger at the old mark of 10. Connecticut alone make eight hours a day's work, all the other New England States having ten.

In England, the story of child-factory legislation is romantically interesting. It is full of pathos and political economy. Lord Shaftsbury gave his best energies to it, and many of England's statesmen have pushed and urged upon a reluctant parliament, and in defiance of a greedy manufacturing class, measures for the protection of children in factories that will serve us as models.

But whether in England or this country such legislation has been not only for the bettering of the laboring people but also for the greater prosperity of manufactures and trade. Just as the shortening of the hours of labor has not, in spite of what seemed the natural consequence, decreased the amount of work done, so the driving of thousands of children from the factories and mines of England by her act of 1878 did not abate her industrial growth or her prosperity.

There never was an age when child labor could be so well spared as now. Improved machinery has given every adult worker more than double his productive capacity, in some cases it has been trebled and quintupled, so that the increased demands of growing commerce in manufactures is kept pace with by this increased power. Legislation, then, has only registered the changed situation. We need, however, not only legislation but an intelligent public opinion to make our laws effective. We need that every workingman and every clerk in the country shall see the suicidal policy of sending his children into the factory or workshop or store, whether he does it by evasion of law or by full legal right. We need that apparent exception to the wisdom or justice of the law shall not make the public nor the press blind to the larger bearings of it.

To a superficial observer the preventing children from working for wages when the opportunity offers, and there is apparent necessity for such earnings in the family to which they belong, seems like a sentimental and mistaken tenderness for the child, and a wrong to the parents or those upon whom he is dependent. And there are cases of exceptionally strong and vigorous children, or of exceptionally severe penury and need, where the law works hardship. But for one such case there are thousands where it works welfare; and as the law raises the minimum employment age above actual childhood, it helps create a higher industrial condition, because it helps to make it possible for more intelligent, more moral and healthier men and women to grow up engaged in manual work.

Childhood is especially the plastic period. All work or employment should, at such time, be educational; and while education by work is the very ideal of training, all work is by no means educational. In my duty as inspectress I am continually struck by the "sad mechanic exercise," the paucity of training there is in most of the work assigned to children. With rare exceptions it is of the most mechanical nature, calling for very few muscular movements and still fewer mind movements. There is not much more training as the result than falls to the wood and steel that do the larger share of the intelligent work. That such children are not more dulled than they are, is because nature is strong, and in all sorts of by-play and stolen ways their bodies and souls escape the cramped ways and find other outlets for play of faculty.

Massachusetts has done well to include mercantile establishments in the same interdicted list, for all children under 13, as factories and mechanical shops. In the larger shops, especially, the heavy strain upon the childish strength, or more especially, nerve power, exercised for ten hours, is, in my opinion, greater than in most factories, the air generally less pure, and the temptations too lax morality, though different quite as great. The better the business habits of any establishment the greater the order, and the higher the tone of mercantile life the less the moral exposure. But, in general, the economic and moral reasons for excluding children from factories and workshops are quite as urgent for their exclusion from mercantile houses.

For a child to enter as a competitor into the world of labor means a strain of long hours and severe restraint, destructive alike to body and mind. The same thing happens which happens to a colt put too early into harness and the drawing of loads. It stops growing in size and ages rapidly. That is, there is a fixity of immaturity, a hardening into a condition of half-growth. He can never attain the physical proportions or the capacity for work that really belonged to him. Mr. Wade (who, by the way, has never failed since 1880 to utter his word annually to Massachusetts in favor of keeping child-labor out of factories and workshops and stores) has, in his report for 1890, called attention to the fact that the physical and mental harm done the child is a more serious fact with us than it can possibly be in European countries, from the fact "that here there is no fixity of social condition or class, so that to cut off the chance for individual development would work a wrong greater in proportion to the child's opportunities of rising." It would be the creation, as I have said, of a peasant class of the most degraded and inferior type, since it would have no orderly relation to our political or social system. So the law does well to put the age of employment beyond the years of proper childhood.

At 14, though a higher age might well be substituted, most children have reached the second period of growth, have more fixed tendencies, a firmer physical fiber, and, though still in the golden time for training and culture, are more ready to begin work with less harm to body and mind.

In commenting on the new English factory act which proposes to raise the age from 10 to 12, a newspaper writer quotes English authority for the fact that this law will, in three counties alone, remove 39,000 children from the right to labor, whose aggregate earnings are $1,390,000. He says England does not need this legislation for her civilization or her prosperity, for she has attained her present enviable position without it. It would, perhaps, be safer to say that what she has of prosperity she has in spite of having had such an army of children employed. What she has besides that is not prosperity nor civilization, and is closely related to her past wrongs done her laboring classes, let Mr. Charles Booth's "Life and Labor of the English People" tell, as well as General Booth's tale of "Darkest England."

It is not at all improbable that the workmen of England will find the wages hitherto paid their little children making its way into their pockets by the more legitimate method of their own increased earnings.

The same writer calls this act a "fanaticism for education," "an exaggerated notion of the value of that kind of education which is given in the public schools." It may be that we often overrate our present school training, and that we shall not adequately provide for the children of the country until we add to the book training of an industrial element; but other considerations than "a fanaticism for education" — "a fanaticism," by the way, that one would like to see more widely spread — have doubtless affected legislation, of which the most important one is that child labor is a serious factor in lowering wages of adults, if not of driving them entirely out of many employments.

Boys and girls often become as expert as grown people in certain lines of work, but they never receive adults' wages. They, at best, receive wages only a little better than ordinary child wages. If, for example, children are found running card machines in factories, they will probably receive wages slightly above ordinary children's pay, good wages for a boy but poor for a man. It follows, naturally, that an employer will seek such labor where he can easily substitute it for the higher priced. Then, while children are employed, grown people will be idle. Thus, often the support of the family will fall on its weaker members while the men of the family are idle. What that idleness means, in discontent, drunkenness and the death of domesticity, is too apparent. Thus the employment of children tends directly to the degradation of the whole labor world; to the lowering of wages, the fixing of idle and vicious habits in adults, and the breaking up of proper family relations. I am told that in one town in Massachusetts the women and children are employed to the almost complete exclusion of men. The latter constitute a leisure class, supporting themselves and the saloons from the wages of their wives and children. And just here let me say that the earnings of children are not always a contribution to the income of the family. The child from the mere fact of being an earner has a semi-independence of parental control; is impatient of restraint and disposed to take his own way. If he does not claim all, he claims at least a large share of his own earnings, and with seeming justice. He becomes a spender as well as an earner; but he is still a child and tempted by what tempts a child. If a boy, tobacco and beer, as marking his new independence, rank as coveted objects; the theater, circus, cheap and doubtful shows, rides, and all that seem desirable to the young, crude and coarsened masculine nature; while the girl lets slip all the small moneys of her small pay that she can keep from the parental clutch for candy, dress and the thousand attractions of the shop windows. It is often a small part of the small pay that goes to swell the family purse. The influence on the parent is to relax his own effort to support his family. He also easily yields to temptations to spend — generally in drink — because Tommy and Katie can earn their own living and are no longer dependent on him. It follows, then, that for the welfare of child and family, as well as of State, there should be no entering the labor world until the period of actual childhood is passed.

Some very practical aspects of the actual workings of the law which forbids the employment of children under 13, and requires of all under 16 a certificate which shows them to have properly complied with the school law before going to work, present themselves to an inspector in Massachusetts. In the "old times" a boy "helped" his father at the store morning and evenings and Saturdays. This same boy, now a man, and having inherited the old business, grown much larger, employs a small crowd of boys and girls; and when he remembers how much of his own early training in business and in good habits came from this happy opportunity of learning good habits in early boyhood, as well as of being inured to endurance and persistence, he is disposed to be impatient with a law that requires him to show his right to hire children in his business. He forgets how different is the whole system. How, instead of working, as he did, under one who had an interest in his learning every step of his business, and who had a parental sympathy with his boyish play and prank, and tire and shirk, the child employed to-day is in for ten continuous hours, under an employer who is himself driven by competition to strain every nerve, and must of necessity exact every minute and every capacity for work from those whom he hires. He must get the worth of every dollar he pays out in wages or fall behind other employers in the race for trade and profit. In most cases the child never comes in contact with his employer. A series of middlemen, themselves harassed by the strain of our modern mercantile organization, comes between. There can not, in the nature of the case, be any personal oversight or consideration. He forgets how mechanical and limited is the nature of the work given children, and how little real training there is in it, under the present systemization and almost military organization of the modern mercantile house.

A large proportion of children leave school at graduation from the grammar school; and not so large a number, as ordinarily supposed, from actual need. The old American traditions made many a poor family send its sons to college where now the children do not go beyond the grammar school. I know that there is a great increase of the number that go to colleges, and I believe the proportion kept in school might be greater were there some adequate training for the hand and body; something that satisfied the restlessness of boys especially, and removed the irksomeness of purely book training. The old apprentice system partly did this, but it is gone, and we must replace it by something suited to the present need. Training of an adequate kind can not be found in the factories or shops. Mere tending a machine or doing up bundles, or running back and forth from one counter to another will not develop faculty. If we had manual training in connection with our public schools I believe it would satisfy this craving for active use of other than the purely literary faculties, and fit our boys and girls for any place in life that should fall to them.

The Baldwin Locomotive Works of Philadelphia have for many years fostered a school of hand and bench work in Spring Garden Institute, just opposite their great shops. Their chief interest in it was that from it they got their best shopworkers. One of the firm told me that they would rather a boy served his apprenticeship as pupil in the school than as learner in their shop.

There can be no adequate regulation of the employment of children that is not related to provisions for education. Massachusetts has just raised the employment age from 14 to 15 in towns where there is industrial education. That is to say, if the schools will train by work and for work it will be better for the child to remain longer out of the labor world. When time sufficient has passed to properly determine and establish such education, it will go largely toward creating the ideal education and the ideal industry. It will put another kind of life into what is too often the dull routine of the school, and raise labor to its true dignity. Not a peasant-laborer, dull, obstinate, sullen and envious, but a prince-laborer, quick, willing, glad, self-respecting and self-governing.

The question of vacation employment is one worthy of consideration. At present the law of Massachusetts forbids the employment of children under 13 at any time in factory, workshop or mercantile establishment, and it requires at all times from children under 16 a legal certificate of age and of proper school attendance. It has been thought by some that to forbid children almost 13 from such employment during vacation of the schools was a foolish restriction if not a positive hardship. There are many children who would have nothing to do but run the streets, exposed to temptations, to vagrancy and other evil habits, who, it is contended, would be better off in factories or stores, where they could earn a bit and be kept out of mischief. Now the streets may not be good for them, nor is the confinement and restriction of the shop or store for 10 long hours of each day during the summer a good preparation for the school year that must follow when September comes. In the smaller stores where there are fewer employes and where there are exceptional conditions of care from the employers there would be less objection (always provided the law permitted); but the law can not pick and choose among employers; and I confidently affirm that to allow children under the legal age to be employed would be sheer cruelty in a majority of cases and open to great abuse. It would result in unscrupulous parents pushing their little ones into all sorts of unhealthy and severe workshops, and completely break down the growing and orderly obedience to the law that is fast coming to be general. All good citizens ought to help sustain such wise and humane legislation, even when it produces temporary vexation in their own cases. There are light out-door employments which the law permits, and for exceptional cases of poverty such work should be found for children who need it.

The ideal thing would be to make the school provisions cover the entire year; to occupy the four summer months with manual or industrial education; and, where there were compulsory education laws, permitting parents who should apply to receive exemption certificates for their children whom they desired to withdraw from any school work, or to make other provisions than that provided by the vacation schools. The vacation school should be wholly different from the ordinary school, in being occupied with manual work; gymnastics; swimming lessons; elementary practical science in the woods and fields, games of out-door skill, archery, tennis, etc.

Poor little Pat, who loves to haunt the wharves and hang around the open saloon door, or peep into the mysterious billiard room, would be allowed some natural vent for his physical energies, his natural curiosity and even his vagrant and roving tendencies, which would now be exercised under guidance and legitimate conditions.

There is nothing in manual labor that should of necessity associate it with mean conditions of life, illiteracy, slums, squalor, dirt, coarseness, are no natural concomitants of hand labor.

Dr. Icorseby, an Englishman, visiting Lowell in 1842, went home to write a book on the refinement, intelligence, modesty and high moral character of the Lowell operatives. He says, significantly, that he did not see one among them under 15. If there are any causes at work, to-day, that tend to make the manual laborer of our country different from those described by Dr. Icorseby, we must see to it that they are removed. And certainly one greatly depressing cause of a lower tone is the employment of children; the consequent lowering of wages; the degradation of the physical type; the low standard of education and fixity of half-development; the demoralization of domestic relations and reversal of natural laws of dependence.

WHAT CAN BE DONE TO IMPROVE THE FIRE-ESCAPE SYSTEM NOW IN GENERAL USE ON FACTORIES AND PUBLIC BUILDINGS?

Read by Deputy Inspector HIRAM BLANCHARD, of New York.

MR. PRESIDENT, LADIES AND GENTLEMEN OF THE CONVENTION.—The subject which has been assigned to me, viz., How can the system of fire-escapes be further improved? is not capable of extended and discursive elaboration.

To fairly introduce the matter, I may say that architects do not, as a rule, draw building plans for the purpose of making the utility of their structures subordinate to the interests of human safety, and the fire-escape of to-day, with its harsh regularity and generally rusty appearance, is an outcome of a combination of false economy, shortsightedness, carelessness and incompetent architecture. As officers whose duty amongst other things it is to take into consideration the question of the personal safety of the employes in factories and workshops, no doubt all of us have at times experienced a feeling of regret that the necessity of requiring additional means of egress compelled us to order the erection of a fire-escape which we know will disfigure the appearance of an otherwise beautiful building, and which unpleasant requirement would have been entirely unnecessary had the architect given as much attention to the welfare of the future occupants of the premises as he did to the decorations for the benefit of the public eye. It is for the reason that a fire-escape must be made to conform to the varying conditions of the different buildings that it is difficult if not impossible to set down any rules whereby an outside iron fire-escape may be improved. The location of the persons in the building must be taken into consideration, and the escape must be placed where it can be quickly reached in case of danger. Then again it ought to be as far from stairways and elevator shafts as possible. Experience has shown that there are more lives lost through suffocation by smoke in burning buildings than through immediate and direct contact with the flames. A spoonful of smoke taken into the lungs is sufficient to deprive a healthy person of consciousness, and therefore in locating a fire-escape due regard must be given to the whereabouts of all air-ducts and open flues in which a draft may circulate. It is certain and well known that open elevator shafts have caused the loss of millions of dollars in property and hundreds of human lives by disastrously spreading what would otherwise have been small and inconsequential fires. Stairways which are not inclosed and which open directly into the different rooms are also responsible for much damage to person and property. The well-known facility, therefore, with which these two very essential means of communication between the various floors of a building carry and distribute smoke and flames, must be taken into consideration in determining where a fire-escape should be placed in order to be of the utmost service in time of need. It is singular, to say the least, that the architect or owner rarely thinks of putting up a fire-escape, or otherwise providing for adequate means of egress, when the building is incomplete and unoccupied. After that an inspector comes along, and in his capacity of protector of human life insists that additional facilities be provided for the ready escape of the occupants of the building. He finds that the stairway and elevator have been located where they will be least in the way and most convenient, and oftentimes they are found arranged so as to make the premises a veritable human fire trap. A fire-escape then becomes an absolute necessity, and if it is ordered to be placed where it may be of the most service but at the same time interfere with the light or the fair appearance of the building, appeals are made at once for an alteration of the order, and it is sought to subordinate utility to business necessity or architectural harmony. Should we allow ourselves to be influenced by the pleadings of those who are more interested in the appearance of the front of their buildings or in the display of their business signs than in the safety of the people in their buildings, there would be many more lives lost or in constant danger in every State. It is one of the unpleasant features of factory inspection that it is our business to correct the errors in judgment of otherwise bright and careful men, landlords or employers, and to compel them to perform a plain public duty by requiring that ample means of escape be provided for inmates of their buildings. And as this class of men usually stand high in their respective communities, it oftentimes necessitates a considerable degree of what might be termed moral courage to inflexibly insist upon the carrying out of expensive instructions. I have in mind many instances which occurred in my own State wherein the inspectors were threatened with the crushing vengeance of great political influence if they insisted upon obedience to the mandates of the law; and I know that, notwithstanding this, the requirements were insisted upon and were carried out.

Few people stop to think that as factory inspectors we are brought in contact with the brightest and probably the most influential element of the country—the business men and manufacturers—and that we are daily requiring them to do things and to go to expense which they never before saw the necessity of, and are not always convinced of the propriety of even after receiving written or verbal orders. We are required to view many matters from a standpoint diametrically opposite what they consider their best interest; and I know of nothing in the line of my duties which causes more friction than the enforcement of the fire-escape clause of the New York State factory laws. This may seem strange when we consider the great importance of guarding human life, and how precious every one regards his own safety; and my experience is that some men, otherwise humane, and thoughtful of the rights of others, wipe the golden rule from their category of precepts when the question of putting up a fire-escape arises.

In common with all persons who have given any thought to the matter of fire-escapes, I am opposed to the erection of an upright ladder, with or without balcony attachments at each floor, and calling it a fire-escape. Even trained acrobats might meet with disaster in descending one of these in a moment of peril and excitement, when crowded by others frantic to escape a terrible fate. Such an alleged fire-escape is an element of danger in itself to a large majority of people who would be compelled to use it. We all know how awkwardly a person unused to it will descend an ordinary ladder, firmly planted on the ground, when no danger is imminent. With women and children, and with most men, this awkwardness becomes hazardous when the ladder is arranged along outside of a high building, with the added danger of stepping on fingers and endeavor to hurry. Such a fire-escape is to be condemned without much consideration. It has no redeeming features. Even the argument that a straight ladder escape is free of one danger which is sometimes present in an inclined ladder or stairway escape, that of passing in front of a window, whence smoke or fire may be issuing, does not, it seems to me, warrant the approval of a straight ladder escape. Such an escape has been occasionally passed, but never with favor, they are permitted to exist simply as an evil which can not be amended, or entirely obliterated.

I believe, when an outside fire-escape must be erected, that it should consist of substantial balconies, connected by stairways a foot and a half or two feet wide with a reasonable tread, say of eight inches, with balusters or handrails on both sides. The incline of the stairway should be the same as of an ordinary household stairway. I think that the steps should be made broad enough so that a firm footing would be had on every step; the narrow and open steps usually found on fire-escapes being likely to trip a person unaccustomed to them. Perhaps the best steps for fire-escapes can be made of angle iron bars, set on edge, about an inch apart, so that they can not catch the boot heel or hold an accumulation of snow or ice. Perforated castings of three-quarter inch thickness also make very good steps, but if thinner are risky in frosty weather. The top balcony of a fire-escape should connect by a ladder with the roof, if possible. The bottom balcony should have a drop ladder, counterbalanced by weights suspended by chains running over pulleys. The pulleys should be covered with a hood. This ladder can readily be forced to the ground by a person's weight. I do not think a loose drop ladder, which must be lifted into position, a very safe affair. These drop ladders weigh from seventy-five to 150 pounds, quite a heavy lift for many people, and such a ladder is difficult to put in position. The specifications for such an escape are simple, and can be had of almost any State factory inspector. It is not patented, requires only an ordinary mechanic to erect it and may be made so as to improve the appearance of many buildings with a judicious use of architectural trimmings and paint. This escape is also a valuable aid to the firemen in offering good opportunity to fight the flames. Where buildings adjoin and are separated with fire-walls, and the location of the stairway and elevator permit it, a balcony extending from one or two windows on each side of and across the party wall will furnish a ready and ample means of escape for an ordinary number of people. Of course it is understood that there shall be no bars or closed shutters at the windows to prevent the use of either building in case of emergency, and no obstruction other than the glass, which might be easily broken should it intervene to prevent the people from passing out of the building and into the other. For this escape it is usually requisite that both buildings shall belong to the same person or firm, or else they must be good neighbors who trust in each other's honesty. We have many such escapes in the city of New York, and the fire department of that city accepts them as filling all necessary conditions. The tower fire-escape is one of the best, but it can be further improved by placing it entirely apart from the main building and connecting it at each floor by short bridges; by this means it is impossible to fill the tower with smoke, which has happened with loss of life in several instances. The tower idea of a fire-escape has been improved on in my opinion by Hon. Henry Dorn, ex-chief factory inspector of Ohio, who embodies the tower into the main structure and reaches it by balconies at every floor, the people being required to pass outside and along the balconies before entering the tower. This is an economical and absolutely safe escape, and should be studied by every architect, its simplicity offering every opportunity for architectural decoration and requiring less land space than an ordinary stairway, and at the same time adding strength to the structure.

Iron folding escapes can not be too severely condemned. In our climate the extremes of heat and cold derange the hinges, swivels and sockets with which such contrivances abound, and corrosion soon sets in to weaken or prevent the escape from opening freely. They are never in readiness for use when wanted, and are as costly as a first-class escape and always unsightly and clumsy. Portable ladder escapes which run on tracks near the eaves and which may be swung in front of all the windows if everything is in a favorable condition have never had the test of experience to my knowledge, but it strikes me that they require too much handling and manipulation to be of great value. They might prove serviceable on hotels or tenements where all the rooms can not be connected with a central fire-escape. Endless chains and ropes may have their uses, but the former are dangerous from the fact that the speed with which they may allow a person to descend can not well be regulated; and the latter have the drawback of being likely to burn, wear apart across the corner of the window sill and thus permit a fatal drop, and if not renewed or tested every two or three years are liable to be rotten while having the appearance of being sound. I maintain that any contrivance which requires the hands to be wholly or partly relied upon as important factors in facilitating the escape of a person from a burning building is to be condemned. Human beings are not trained to use the hands as limbs of locomotion, and all fire-escapes which are of the greatest value will be made so as to take into consideration the fact that men and women use their feet with greater celerity and security in getting out of the way of danger.

There can not be too many means of escape from a burning building, and perhaps some of the devices which I do not here indorse may at one time or another have saved a life, but the fact remains that had there been sufficient care taken in the construction of buildings so as to provide for ample ordinary avenues of egress in case of danger from fire no person would attempt or be required to use the novel methods which we see sometimes put upon the market as fire-escapes, their only recommendation being their ingenious complexity; the fatal objection to them being the certainty that they will be out of order ninety-nine times in a hundred when necessity is most urgent. There are other systems of fire-escapes which I have not referred to because they need no discussion. I lay down this broad rule as being the safe one to follow in the matter of securing the safety of human life in factories, hotels, tenements and public buildings, namely, there ought to be at least two ways of escape, at opposite ends, from every room and every such building, and if fire-escapes are necessary let them be so made that they will always be ready for instant use, and that they will provide for escape by natural methods and not by the hands, by diving, dropping or sliding. In this as in many other things the old way is the best.

UNCLEAN WORKROOMS IN TENEMENT-HOUSES.

Read by Deputy Inspector ISAAC S. MULLEN, of Massachusetts.

MR. PRESIDENT, LADIES AND GENTLEMEN, OF THE INTERNATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF INSPECTORS OF FACTORIES AND WORKSHOPS.—Perhaps no question affecting the interests of a certain class of wage earners has been of more importance than that relating to the sweating system, as practiced in tenement-houses in very many cities in this country. Careful observation, close scrutiny, a rigid and thorough examination have developed many facts relating to this pernicious system.

That the sweating system exists can not be denied, and the fact of its existence is now agitating the minds of well-thinking people. In one of the States this great evil has been so far recognized that a special message was sent to the Legislature concerning this system, and their attention called to the feasibility of making laws to subdue, as far as was possible, the making of garments in unhealthy places, and imposing a fine in case the requirements of the law are not carried out. The press has denounced the evil in terms that can not fail to be understood. From the pulpit it has been condemned in strains that can not be refuted and that have opened the eyes of the most sensitive to the enormity of this stupendous feature now existing. Associations of operatives who are specially interested in the making of garments in unhealthy places, and who are opposed to sweat shops, are using every effort to bring about such a state of affairs as will be of a thousand-fold advantage to those who work in legitimate workshops. Physicians have made examinations, and found that should this sweating system be allowed to prevail, circumstances emanating therefrom would result in untold misery and disease. The census department, and boards of health, have looked into the matter with diligence, and found a somewhat peculiar state of affairs.

The evils emanating from the sweat shops are many, and those who work in these close, ill-ventilated rooms become the victims of many diseases. We may lawfully desire water to quench our thirst, food to nourish our bodies, clothes to cover us, and comfortable shelter and accommodation, if such desires be regulated by reason and confined within proper bounds. "Every man and woman should eat and drink, and enjoy the good of their labor;" everything should be so arranged as to produce pleasure and enjoyment, even among the poorest class of workmen. Man or woman should not be robbed of the true glory of his nature nor be degraded below the level of brutes. Some part of man's or woman's time should be devoted to the good of society, and to that labor both of body and mind which is essential to the true happiness of humanity.

Men and women are confined for long hours, their health injured, and their intellectual and educational improvement prevented; they are deprived of that recreation which is necessary for the vigor of their animal system, and from receiving that knowledge which they ought to possess. Every human being is endowed with mental faculties which, if properly divided, would produce the greatest sum of human happiness, but confined to toil in sweat shops all interest is lost in matters relating to intelligence. The aims and pursuits of every intelligence ought to correspond with the faculties produced. These sweat shop workers are content with food that is mean, the wearing of apparel of the coarsest material; their education is stinted or altogether neglected, and the common rights of humanity denied. The principal conditions of mankind in all emergencies require to be improved. Workshops should be rendered clean, airy and salubrious; the mechanic and every class of wage earners should be made more comfortable and more open to healthy improvements.

A work of immense magnitude, however, requires to be accomplished, and vast exertions are indispensably necessary before the evil is undermined. Were we to inspect the narrow lanes, cellars, garrets and parts of some of these tenement-house sweat shops or workrooms we would find scenes that the most refined could form no conception of. But the cause of this is not so much to be attributed to the individuals themselves as to those in general society. Society has never yet provided for the means of education, or moral training, or employment, or what is necessary for their comfortable subsistence; and general society is, therefore, accountable in part for the system now so prevalent.

There should be provided proper hours of employment and proper remuneration for labor to all who enjoy health and vigor of body and mind; for every human being ought to be actively engaged in something which contributes to his own benefit and the good of others. An absolutely idle person is both a burden to himself and a nuisance to society. It is contrary to the evident design of the Creator, in bestowing upon us both physical and moral powers, that they should remain dormant or unemployed. Therefore the plan of cooping up thousands of healthy persons in tenement-house sweat shops, without being employed in regular mental and bodily exercise, is evidently contrary to nature and consequently subversive to true happiness.

The true method of promoting the comfort of these workers in close, bad-smelling rooms is to furnish them with the means of instruction and employment; to provide for them comfortable habitations, and to teach them the rules of economy, temperance and moral order, and to see that their children be properly educated in the different branches of useful knowledge. There are many ways in which such objects could be accomplished — the building of schools, lecture-rooms, and the erection of workshops for the manufacture of all kinds of clothing under healthy conditions. A vast amount of misery could thus be prevented, happiness diffused, and improvements carried on to an indefinite extent. In many respects much requires to be effected before matters can be thoroughly improved; but such improvements ought not to be engaged in unless it be to do good to our fellow men, to remove nuisances, and to promote the general advancement of society. Then those scenes in tenement-houses, which are now to be seen in some of our cities, those pitiable objects that dwell therein, some in places unfit for the abodes even of animals, now inhabited by human beings, would disappear. Many aspects would be changed into cheerfulness, improvements would be seen rising to view, and healthiness would pervade where filth now exists.

If we look into these tenements we find them crowded with human beings, whole families with their miserable shreds of furniture cooped up in one narrow apartment amidst gloom, filth and disorder, with scarcely any conveniences, or opportunity for enjoying the cheerful light of heaven and the refreshing breeze. In such situations numerous diseases are engendered, the true enjoyment of life prevented; and the period of human existence cut short by nearly one-half of its average duration. These things might be obviated, and industry find its way there, thus becoming the seat of a happy and prosperous population.

Now, all these and similar evils might be removed and the requisite improvements carried forward, affording employment for the industrious workingman and woman. The grand question to be determined is, is it expedient and requisite that such improvements should be attempted? If such questions can be answered in the affirmative then all other considerations ought to be laid aside. A new impulse would be given to human activity, and a new aspect would appear for the general good of humanity.

It can not have been overlooked that, in view of the intelligent observer, fevers and infections generally spread with the greatest facility and make the most dreadful havoc among the lower classes or orders of society. This is owing in part to the unclean state in which their houses are kept, every part of which affords proper material for the production and detention of pestilential effluvia, and their ignorance of the importance of pure air and the consequent necessity of daily ventilating their apartments. Pure air is as essentially requisite to the health and vigor of the animal system as a wholesome food and drink; yet nothing is less attended to in the economy of health by the great majority of mankind. Because air is an invisible substance, and makes little impression on the organs of sense, they seem to act as if it had no existence. Hence we find that no attention is paid by the lower orders of society to the proper ventilation of their apartments, the air in which is in many instances unfit for respiration.

There have been found crowds of tailors pent up in close and sometimes damp apartments, from early morning until midnight, without even thinking of opening their windows for a single half hour for the admission of fresh air; and consequently they are continually breathing an atmosphere highly impregnated with the noxious gas emitted from their lungs, and the effluvia perspired from their bodies, which is most sensibly felt by its hot, suffocating smell, when a person from the open air enters into such apartments. The sallow complexion of such persons indicates the effect produced by the air they breathe. If tenement-house sweat shops were better ventilated, the disorders which flow from the circumstances just stated would be effectually prevented.

Much, however, is wanted to complete the enjoyments of this class of people, who are so closely confined without a separate apartment to which they can retire for mutual exercise. Whole families are frequently crowded into a single apartment, surrounded by filth and noxious exhalations, where the light of day is scarcely seen. In such habitations, where the kitchen, the bed and closet are all in one narrow apartment, it is next to impossible for men or women to improve their minds by reading or reflection, amidst the gloom of twilight, the noise of children and the preparations of meals, even although they should feel an ardent desire for intellectual improvement.

In order that working people may be stimulated in their mental powers, they must be furnished with the domestic conveniences requisite for attaining this object. They should be paid wages to enable them to procure such conveniences. The long hours of labor, and the paltry remuneration which is received in these sweat shops, so long as such domestic slavery exists, will form an insurmountable barrier to the general diffusion of healthy enjoyment. As slovenliness and filth are generally the characteristics of ignorance, so an attention to cleanliness is one of the distinguishing features of cultivated minds. Cleanliness is conducive to health and virtuous activity; keeping the body clean is of great importance. Attention to cleanliness of body would also lead to cleanliness in regard to clothes, victuals, apartments, beds and furniture. The necessity to pure air to health and vigor would lead to the propriety of having rooms well ventilated, and the feasibility of admitting the refreshing breeze. By such attention fevers and other malignant diseases might be prevented, vigor and health promoted, and the whole building and its inmates present an air of cheerfulness.

But, as knowledge tends to liberate the mind, to subdue the principles of selfishness, and to produce a relish for cleanliness and comfort, when it is more generally diffused we may expect that such improvements as those to which we allude will be carried forward with spirit and alacrity, nuisances be removed, and cleanliness and comfort attended to in every arrangement. And what an interesting picture would be presented, when the great body of mankind should be raised from a state of moral and physical degradation to the dignity of rational natures, and to the enjoyment of the beauties of the Creator.

I have endeavored to speak in a general way of what I deem would be of benefit and interest to the workers in close, ill-ventilated rooms of general improvements which might be made tending to their good, physically, morally and intellectually; and of the principles upon which great benefits could be accomplished, the practicability of stringent efforts in subduing this evil, and the utility of clean workrooms.

With the law on the statute books of Massachusetts relating to unhealthy workshops, the requirements relating to the manufacture of clothing, the penalty for not complying with the law will, in my opinion, benefit not only the places where such clothing is made, but be a safeguard to those who may attire themselves in the garments made therein. The effect of the law will be looked forward to with great interest, especially by those who work in legitimate workshops. There can be but little doubt but beneficial results will accrue from the enforcement of the law, and the opinion of those opposed thereto be changed. Let us hope that the cause of the existing evils will be removed, and opposite effects be produced.

The matter to which I have alluded is not a picture, but a reality, which shows us how human beings can live together under some of the conditions that I have enumerated. It is a reality from which we ought not to turn away our eyes; it sets before us the evils which require to be counteracted and the great obstacles which require to be surmounted. Such views of the existing state of these unhealthy places ought to stimulate us to exert every energy and to use every judicious and powerful means which has a tendency to promote the accomplishment of subduing this great evil; and if the requisite means are employed for the prevention of the evils of which I have spoken, we may rest assured that our labors as inspectors will be crowned with success.

Legislators may make, unmake and modify the laws, we may engage in profound discussions and investigations; but, unless the community in general cry out against the evil and dangers of the sweat shops, all plans will prove abortive, "our superstructures gradually crumble into dust, and, like the baseless fabric of a vision, leave scarce a wreck behind."

SOME ERRONEOUS THEORIES OF VENTILATION.

Read by Deputy Inspector WHITE, of Massachusetts.

MR. PRESIDENT AND MEMBERS OF THE CONVENTION.—When, two years ago, at Trenton, I had the honor to address the members of this association upon the subject of ventilation, I devoted my remarks almost wholly to the injurious effects of impure air upon the health of children, and the consequent necessity for much better provision for securing an ample supply of pure air in our school buildings. Last year, at the meeting of the association in New York, I endeavored briefly to show, by description and diagrams, in what manner the best work had been done in my own State since the law was passed requiring better ventilation in such buildings. You will, perhaps, think I owe you an apology for again speaking upon the same subject; but experience has shown that we learn in the same way that we teach our children, by constant repetition; and I am satisfied that "line upon line and precept upon precept" will be necessary before the mass of our people are educated to appreciate the vital importance of this question of ventilation.

One great obstacle met with in the efforts of the inspectors to induce the school authorities to ventilate the buildings under their charge is the fact that nearly all the work done in that line up to the time of the enactment of the law of 1888 had resulted in almost total failure, and the money thus spent had been practically thrown away. This may seem to some a rather broad statement, but I will hazard the assertion that, as compared with some of the best work done in the last three years, there were not in 1888 six well-ventilated school-houses in Massachusetts. That most of these failures were due to the fact that the methods adopted were based upon false theories, has, I think, been conclusively proved; and I have taken, as the subject of discussion in this paper, some of the prevailing erroneous theories of ventilation, with such hints at some of the successful recent methods of accomplishing good work as may seem appropriate.

One of the most persistent errors in regard to the matter of ventilation is that relating to the nature of a gas that forms a small portion of the air we breathe, and which is chemically known as carbon dioxide, and commonly called carbonic acid. Notwithstanding all that has been said and written to the contrary, a very large number of the people with whom an inspector comes in contact in his official work still believe that this gas is the most pernicious impurity to be found in the air of our school-rooms; and that, as it is known to be heavier than air, it settles to the floor, and therefore provision must be made for removing it from that point. Dr. John S. Billings, in his excellent work on "The Principles of Ventilation and Heating," says, in effect, that, until a person knows that all this is nonsense, and knows why it is nonsense, it is useless to discuss problems of ventilation with him. Such a statement may do very well for so eminent an authority as Dr. Billings, but I fancy that an inspector of buildings would not have a very pleasant time with many of the school authorities, with whom he discusses ventilation, if he talked to them in that way. I have often been told, by college-educated men, when I have said that outlets for foul air should be in or near the floor, that I was, so far, undoubtedly right, for, said they, "we all know that carbonic acid is heavier than air, and so sinks to the floor."

No longer ago than last winter a gentleman who appeared before a legislative committee at the State House in Boston gravely stated as his opinion that it would be better to cut holes in the walls of the school-rooms near the floor, to allow this terribly poisonous carbonic acid to run out,—which he seemed to think it would do like so much water,—rather than to put in the expensive systems of ventilation which he said had been ordered in the school-houses in his town by the State inspector. It will not do to assume that the men who entertain these views are uneducated. The only fair statement of the case would be, that a man may be a well-read lawyer, a good biblical scholar, or a first-rate business man, without having much knowledge of chemistry or of the physical properties of gases. Moreover, it should be remembered that it is not so very many years since similar erroneous theories were taught in the text-books in use in our public schools.

There is another class of people who have given sufficient attention to the subject to learn that carbonic acid is not the most pernicious element in impure air as it exists in school-rooms, and that it does not sink to the floor on account of its weight, who suppose that, because the air as it comes from the lungs is warmer and therefore lighter than the surrounding air, it will rise to the top of the room, and that the proper place for outlets for foul air is in or near the ceiling.

It may seem to you hardly necessary to say that both these theories are in the main false, and need not be taken into consideration in providing means for ventilation; and yet an immense amount of money has been wasted in attempts to ventilate school-rooms by methods based upon one or the other of these theories. In a large school-house in my district, in which many hundred dollars were expended a few years ago in an attempt to secure better ventilation, the openings for the removal of the foul air are near the ceiling, and almost directly over inlet for fresh air from the indirect steam radiators. Of course a large part of the pure air supplied escapes without doing any work in ventilation, and a large amount of heat goes with it; and it is not surprising that tests for carbonic acid showed the air at the breathing line of the scholars to be exceedingly impure.

Another way in which a great deal of money has been spent to no purpose is in the application of some patent ventilator to the top of a cold flue, in the vain endeavor to induce an upward current of air therein. All sorts of ingenious and fanciful caps and cowls have been devised to assist in pulling the air out of a room, the principal effect of which is to more or less obstruct what little upward movement of air their might otherwise be in the pipes or flues which they cover. Some of them are probably useful in their proper places to prevent a downward draft of air; but this is of no use in a school-room, as no pipe or flue for removing air from such a room should be liable at any time to a downward draft from an open top; and for this same reason there should be no use for any automatic valve or damper in such a flue.

Another prevalent error is in regard to the amount of air required to secure good ventilation. People read in some medical or scientific book that a person takes into and expels from the lungs about ten or twelve cubic feet of air per hour; and they seem to think that, if that amount of air is supplied for each person, it is all sufficient, which it might be, if one could inhale pure air through one tube and exhale the air through another, sending it to such a distance that it could not possibly mingle with the supply. Even after considering that the exhaled air will necessarily mingle with the air of the room, they will still argue that eight or ten times the amount inhaled, or about 100 feet per hour, must certainly be enough; and, when told by an inspector that 100 times the amount inhaled is none too much, they come to the conclusion that he is too much of a crank to advise them in matters of ventilation. And yet a very slight consideration of the subject ought to show them their error.

The chief reason for ascertaining the amount of carbonic acid in the air of a school-room is that the amount of that gas is the surest indication of the amount of other and more dangerous impurities present therein. Out-door air contains about .0004 of its volume of carbonic acid; air as it comes from the lungs contains about .0400 of that gas, and with it a relatively constant quantity of poisonous organic matter. Now, no method of ventilation yet devised will prevent this foul air from the lungs from mingling with the fresh air introduced into the room; so that the problem to be solved is, practically, how much air will it take to dilute this poison sufficiently to render it harmless? The best authorities agree that, when carbonic acid is found in the air of a school-room to the extent of more than .0008 of its volume, it indicates a condition of that air which may render it injurious to the health of the inmates. It is, therefore, only necessary to find out how much air containing .0004 of carbonic acid will have to be mixed with air containing .0400 to reduce the proportion of that gas to .0008 of the entire volume of air, to answer this question.

It is seldom, however, that such perfect circulation can be secured as to evenly dilute the impurities in the air; and a much larger amount of fresh air than that given by this calculation is usually required to reduce the carbonic acid to the above standard in all parts of a room.

Many persons think that the doors and windows of a school-room, if properly handled by the teacher, will afford a sufficient means of ventilation. If this were so, there would be no need of the present law, as all school-houses are provided with doors and windows. But there are many reasons why ventilation by windows will not work well in cold weather. In the first place no air should be introduced into a room, for the purpose of ventilation, which is colder than the desired average temperature of the room. The air of a school-room is usually kept at seventy degrees. Open a window in such a room when the outside air is at the freezing point. The incoming air at once sinks to the floor, and there it will stay unless forced from its place by more cold air. It is of no use to the children, except to cool their feet. If the room is heated by a stove, the air around the stove is constantly rising toward the ceiling, and the cold air admitted will be drawn along near the floor, and around the persons of the inmates toward the stove, thus accumulating dust and other impurities before it is sent upward, from whence it must again descend, before it can come to the lungs of the children. Why not let it in directly under the stove, in the first place, and warm it before it enters the room?

Aside from not being a good way to ventilate, it is not economical to admit air at a window and then heat it in the manner I have shown, if heated at all. Jacketed stoves are sometimes used to heat and ventilate school-rooms. A good jacketed stove should be capable of heating 1,000 cubic feet of air per minute to a temperature sufficient to keep a well-constructed school-room at seventy degrees, with the outside temperature at twenty degrees. In such a case, close the inlet for fresh air, take off the jacket from the stove, and then admit 1,000 cubic feet of air per minute through an open window, and see if you can keep your room up to seventy degrees. It probably costs twice as much to let in air at a window and then properly heat and circulate it so as to keep the room at an even temperature, as it would to warm the same air before it entered the room. If there is any economy in window ventilation, it comes from the fact that not a quarter enough air is ever admitted in that way.

Many school committees tell us that they have more trouble to keep the air out of a school-room on a cold day than in letting it in, and that enough air comes in around the windows and doors and through the walls and ceiling to secure ventilation. This method of admitting air might be called a sort of insensible ventilation, and the same argument can be used against it as against open windows, except in the matter of exposing the children to drafts. Furthermore, a sufficient quantity of air will not be supplied in this way, and it would be poor economy to attempt it.

In rooms heated by stoves, and unprovided with means of ventilation, except by open windows, and the insensible means before described, there is, besides the inevitable foul air, often a very great difference in temperature in different parts of the room. Observations carefully made of the temperature in such rooms show in some instances a difference of forty-eight degrees between the floor and a point five feet above the floor in the same room, and of thirty degrees between the floor and five feet above it on the same vertical line. How can a child be comfortable when the temperature at his head is seventy-four degrees and at his feet forty-four degrees? In a properly ventilated room the difference should not be more than two degrees between the floor and the breathing line, in any part of the room where the children are seated.

If we observe a person in a day when it is cold enough for the vapor of the breath to become visible, we shall see that as the air is expelled from the lungs it is first thrown downward a short distance from the nostrils; it then diffuses and rises slowly, but only to a little way above the head, as its temperature has by that time become so near that of the surrounding air as to check its upward movement. We shall find, where pupils are seated in a school-room, that there is a stratum of air extending for a little distance only below and above the breathing line that is generally more impure than in other parts of the room. To remove this stratum of air and supply its place with fresh air should be the object of ventilation. To do this it is necessary that the movement of air shall be upward or downward, as to move it laterally would be only to carry the expelled breath of one scholar to another. It can be moved upward in one way by window ventilation, as this lets in cold air, which goes to the bottom of the room and forces the lower stratum of air from its place. This method, as we have seen, is open to many objections. On the other hand, it can be moved downward by admitting pure warm air at the top of the room, and providing for its exit from near the floor as it becomes vitiated. This is the method adopted in all recent successful systems of school-house ventilation. Where air can come in it can go out; and it is obvious that, if we supply the air for ventilation at the top of the room, all that goes out before it gets down to the breathing line is so much air lost, and all its heat is lost with it. There is nothing therefore to be gained, but only a loss in every way, by loose construction of a school building. Build all school-houses as tight and warm as possible. Make all windows double, or put on outside sashes; make all walls and ceilings, and especially ceilings next to cold attics, as impervious to air and as nonconductive of heat as it is practicable to make them, and we shall save enough in fuel to pay for better ventilation than you can ever obtain by the use of doors and windows.

That the outlets for the removal of the vitiated air should be in or near the floor has been clearly shown. They are now generally so located; but the great importance of providing for a strong and uniform current in the exhaust flues in all kinds of weather is not, I think, generally appreciated. Unless mechanical power is used, the supply of air through the heating appliances will vary considerably, with the varying temperature of the weather; but if proper means are used the exhaust can be kept very nearly uniform. Many people seem to think that all the coal burned in a ventilating shaft is wasted; whereas, in any well-arranged system of ventilation every pound of coal used in that way is worth more than a pound expended in furnishing a supply of air. A supply of twenty cubic feet per minute for each scholar, with a good exhaust and good circulation, may give much purer air at the breathing line than double that amount with a poor outlet draft and necessarily poor circulation. Whatever means are taken to produce a draft in the extraction flues, they should be such as will be sure to act under all circumstances, and especially in mild weather, when, as I have before stated, the supply will be more uncertain than at any other time.

In conclusion, I would say, have nothing to do with systems of ventilation based upon the theory that carbonic acid settles to the floor in a school-room, or that the vitiated air necessarily rises to the ceiling. Do not place much dependence on what is commonly called "ventilation by natural means." If you want natural ventilation, you must go out of doors to get it. Nature never made a school-house, and can not be relied upon to heat or ventilate one in cold weather.

Air has the same property of inertia possessed by other substances. It is a very light and elastic fluid, and moves easily, but there must always be some power to move it, if it moves at all. It will not flow into or out of a room through a brick flue, or any duct or pipe, unless forced to do so. As all school-rooms in this climate have to be artificially warmed for a large portion of the year, if the heating appliances are properly located and arranged they can be relied upon to deliver to the rooms a sufficient quantity of air for ventilation; but heat or mechanical power will invariably have to be used to successfully extract the vitiated air. Cold pipes or flues of any size, or however arranged, or capped with whatever fanciful top or patent ventilator, will not do the work, and all contrivances for extracting the air from a school-room without any expenditure of power will fail to give satisfaction. It would be better not to provide any means, other than windows, than to waste money on such useless devices. Good ventilation will cost money, always; and, although the expense is not so great as is generally supposed, and by recent improved methods it is possible to heat and ventilate a room for but little more than it formerly cost to heat it, it will not do to suppose that any building can be heated and properly ventilated for the same price that it can be heated without ventilation.

All standard authorities are agreed in opinion as to the injurious effects of impure air upon the health, and especially upon the health of children in school-rooms, and this opinion is supported by an immense mass of carefully collected statistics. The results of recent attempts to improve the condition of our school-houses have shown that science and mechanical skill can successfully accomplish the work, and that at an expense which can not be considered unreasonable.

“HAVE THE FACTORY LAWS OF NEW YORK STATE, FINANCIALLY, MORALLY OR MATERIALLY BENEFITED ITS WAGE-EARNERS?”

Read by Assistant Inspector FRANEY, of New York.

MR. PRESIDENT AND FELLOW-INSPECTORS.—All legislative enactments relating to the inspection of factories and workshops are from the very nature of things remedial in character, and their merits must be decided upon according to the amount of good that has been accomplished through their enforcement. The fact that from year to year the provisions of such laws are made more stringent and their scope enlarged, is of itself an evidence that their enforcement has redounded in some measure to the public good; for it is obvious that instead of being constantly amended to further extend their effect, had they not been found useful and advantageous, they would certainly have been stricken from the statute books.

In discussing the factory laws of the State of New York, and investigating the results of their enactment, we are under a disadvantage on account of the comparatively short time which they have been in existence. Passed originally in 1886 (when the law simply prohibited the employment of children under 13 years of age in factories and limited the time of employment of women under 21 and youths under 18 years of age to sixty hours per week), a number of changes have been made, widening the powers of inspectors and increasing their numbers; but the law has not been perfected, the number of inspectors is not sufficient, so that an amply satisfactory statement can not here be made of the full advantages which have accrued to the industrial population of New York by reason of her factory laws. Yet the five years which have just elapsed have shown in many ways that, somewhat crude and insufficient as they are, these laws have accomplished all and even more than was claimed by their advocates, and that, when amended in the light of experience and advancing progress, they will be found of incalculable value as aids to the increase of intelligence, promoters of the health and morals of the community at large, and indirectly, if not directly, will enhance the material prosperity of all factory workers.

Our law provides that no woman under 21 years of age and no youth under 18 years of age shall labor in any factory or workshop more than a total of sixty hours in one week, or more than ten hours in any one day, if the excess over ten hours is not to be deducted on the last day of the week. While this limitation of the hours of labor for young people does not interfere with the privilege of older persons to work as long as they please, it has had the effect of stopping much of the over-time work usually the accompaniment of the busy seasons in the various branches of industry. The older hands can not, as a rule, continue without their younger coworkers. In some trades this caused the distribution of an opportunity to labor among a greater number of persons, and in other industries the average number of calendar working days was increased, giving steadier employment to those engaged therein, the advantages of which will be readily seen and conceded by all. By thus relieving the glut of unemployed labor to some extent, a steadiness of the wages paid was correspondingly insured, even if no advance of the wage scale was secured; and by encouraging steadier employment the workers were certainly again benefited in that direction, if no other, which prevented a dabbling in the mischief which idle hands are accused of doing. It is not my province to inject into this paper an argument upon the question of reduction of the hours of labor; but I may be permitted to contribute my testimony in the matter, which is to the effect that it is the result of my experience and observation that the law of New York State in prohibiting the minor women and boys under 18 from working more than sixty hours has had a decidedly good effect upon all the people of the State, not alone upon the wage-earners, old and young, but, by interposing a legal obstacle to all demands by employers for, or insistence upon, a greater number of hours of toil, it removes what at all times has been a source of friction between capital and labor. I could relate many individual instances of this, were it not that you, whose general experience has been the same as my own, would weary of a detailed recital of such matters.

The laws of New York further prohibits any woman under 21 years of age and boys under 18 from being employed after 9 o'clock at night or before 6 o'clock in the morning. This commendable feature of our statutes bears upon its face its own recommendation. Its enactment became necessary because of the long stretches of uninterrupted labor which were often required in a number of industries, sometimes running as high as thirty consecutive hours; and again because some few employers, to show their animosity to the sixty-hour law, and their disregard of its spirit, ran their mills far into the night on some days of the week, and closed them up entirely on other days of the same week, and yet kept within the law. Whatever the evil which it was the design to check, all fair-minded people will concede that it is not for the good of the State that its children and immature workers shall toil all through the hours which nature designed for sleep. The passage of this requirement has had the effect of reducing night work in factories and workshops to a large extent, outside of morning newspaper offices.

We have a law in the State of New York which provides for a half-holiday every Saturday afternoon in the year. While the scope of that law does not require that manufacturing and other business shall cease at twelve o'clock noon on Saturday, still, the closing of banks, exchanges and financial institutions generally at that hour has resulted in similar action on the part of many mercantile and manufacturing houses, especially during three or four of the summer months. I am of the opinion that in a few years the effect of this law will be to cause the stoppage of all ordinary and unnecessary labor, so that our industrial millions will have a much-to-be-desired holiday besides Sunday every week in the year. I mention the existence of this law, not because it is a so-called "factory law," but it is in line with the wishes of the advocates of the factory legislation in this country, to wit, to make the limit of a week's work not more than fifty-four hours. If all the States will pass Saturday half-holiday laws, it will not be long before there will be a material and beneficial reduction of the hours of labor in the whole United States.

Fourteen years is the age at which children may be employed in manufacturing establishments of New York. Every child between 14 and 16 must, before commencing work, place on file in the office of the workshop or factory wherein it is employed a statement of its age, date and place of birth, sworn to by its parent or guardian. This sworn statement to some extent simplifies the work of the inspector, and is a check to a desire on the part of a certain class of unscrupulous parents to place their children at work at an unlawful age. The names of all children under sixteen must be posted in the room where they work, with the age as stated on the age affidavit immediately following. Any older employe can thus at once see and report to the inspector what may be an infraction of the law. A record book containing the children's ages and other facts must also be kept by the employer, and produced upon the inspector's demand. All children under sixteen employed in manufacturing establishments during the public school terms must be able to read and write simple sentences in the English language. These and other restrictions and requirements have reduced the evil of child labor in the State of New York over fifty per cent. Hundreds of establishments wherein children were formerly employed to a greater or less extent now refuse to employ any, the claim being that there is too much risk and red tape, and the corresponding advantages very few. Of course where the younger children are deprived of employment older persons obtain it. This, it will be conceded, is entirely right and proper. Drudgery and toil by children is foreign to the laws of nature, and should be prohibited by the laws of man. The grown should support the young, and the young should not be called in to deprive the old of the duty or opportunity of supporting the family. The days of childhood should be days of freedom, of play, of mental and physical development. I radically disagree with that class of employers who claim that their mills, workshops or factories are better places for children than the schools; I disagree with those who say that their workrooms are better places for children than the homes of the children; and I disagree with those who claim that it is better for children to labor than to run the streets. I have heard many employers make such assertions, and they have been made with equal vehemence and the same air of high-flown philanthropy by the owners of modern and well-appointed up-country mills and by the employers of the reeking, foul and overcrowded sweat shops of New York city. I care not how or where the child is put to labor and kept in confinement at an allotted task for ten or even less hours a day, it is done in violation of its natural rights. Therefore, beyond the mere fact that our restrictive child-labor laws have tended to reduce competition in the labor market, they have been and always will be of vast direct benefit to the children themselves and to the country at large. Dr. A. Jacobi, the eminent physician and scientist, said in 1882, in his address as president of the New York State Medical Society, that "alms-house or hospital generally must receive the men and women who have had to work in factories when they were children." That this is true is noticeable from the fact that, as the child-labor system increased in the United States, or in any particular community, the number of inmates in the poor-houses and hospitals also increased. The most costly labor of all is child labor. Humanity and the State will pay for it long after the child has passed out of childhood and is competing with its fellow men for a livelihood against his own progeny. Society will never discharge this debt of evil until the generations under which the practice existed have entirely passed away. It has stunted human endeavor and destroyed the brightest days of hundreds of thousands of human lives. The law which abolishes the child-labor abomination entirely will date an epoch in the history of the world.

We have also a clause in our law relating to the erection of fire-escapes, and the prevention of various accidents in manufacturing establishments, which has been vigorously enforced and has no doubt resulted in materially diminishing the disasters to humanity in the loss of life and limb, which had been increasing in even greater proportion than the increase in the use of machinery and greater number of establishments justified. I can present no accurate statistics on this subject, however, but I base my belief that the number of accidents and the danger in factories and workshops has decreased upon the fact that the orders to guard exposed machinery, elevators, well-holes and other contrivances around which there is more or less risk have been carried out, as a rule. We have stimulated a precautionary spirit at the same time in the minds of the employers, who take pride in showing our officers the various changes that have been made in directions where no orders have been given, indicating that the former neglect had been thoughtless rather than studied. The makers of all kinds of machinery in New York now guard all gearing, provide loose pulleys and belt-shifters, and where possible have added shafts so contrived that they may be loosened to put on or repair belting and tightened again when the same is in order and ready for running. The law in this respect has generated or revived a regard for the safety of employes which was not felt before. This most important result was accomplished with comparatively little effort, and indicates that a reminder to the employer is all that is necessary to attain a fair degree of personal safety in and around manufactories where machinery is in use. The law requiring accidents to be reported and the liability of suits for damages would not ordinarily accomplish this.

We are also required to insist that separate water-closets shall be provided in sufficient number for each sex, and that these closets shall be at proper distances from each other. I consider this a most important requirement, and believe that its enforcement has been beneficial in the matter of morals in many instances where, through the ignorance of the persons who planned the buildings or the desire of the owners to economize space, or perhaps from both of these reasons combined, morality and modesty were disregarded. We are also empowered to require that suitable and proper washrooms shall be provided for women, and we always do so in those industries where dirt accumulates upon the person or clothing of the operatives. I have known instances where a better class of female employes was the immediate result of an improvement in the toilet facilities, and I think that nothing about a factory or workshop will give more prompt or greater satisfaction than an adequate improvement in this respect.

So far as justice and the necessities of individual cases require it, we have done considerable prosecuting in the State of New York, and we have been successful in securing convictions in the great majority of cases. Nothing has a greater and more permanent good result than a conviction. It not only has a deterrent effect upon the defendant, but radiates a wholesome influence over a wide range of territory and individuals. It causes respect for the law and a more eager desire to hearken to the suggestions of the inspectors with relation to sanitary, safety, and other desirable changes which are not entirely embraced within the law. Many notable alterations in factory conditions have been made by fair-minded employers who knew or were told that the law did not require them. It is such men as these whom we like to meet, who need no law to coerce fair dealing and force proper surroundings for their employes. Such men are found among those who have but little capital beyond their brains, and who are just starting in business, and they are also found among great and successful mill owners. On the other hand, few of us can not at a moment's thought recall the names of several great employers of labor who will do nothing that the law requires except at the threat of immediate prosecution, or perhaps not till the successful conclusion of the prosecution itself; who regard the representative of the State as their personal enemies, and their employes as the dust beneath their chariot wheels. It is such employers as these latter, both rich and poor, who have made it necessary to enact factory laws, and who are responsible for more of the ills of society than their small souls can bear punishment for.

Our weekly payment law, which may possibly be enumerated as one of the factory laws, for the reason that the factory inspectors are required to enforce it, has also proved of considerable financial benefit to wage-earners in numerous instances. Nearly all of us here are acquainted with the evils of the store-order or pluck-me system of paying wages. It has generated in its day a vast amount of poverty and distress, and is one of the most ingenious methods ever devised to keep in slavery the laborer of to-day. The act requiring that wages shall be paid once a week passed the Legislature of New York in 1890, and is now generally observed. From statements made to the inspectors by many persons most immediately concerned, I am justified in saying that the law has further developed a feeling of independence among the wage-earners who were formerly paid but once a month, or at greater intervals; it has reduced the amount of intemperance which formerly prevailed where the store-order or monthly-pay system was a rule; it has increased the purchasing power of their money, and has, therefore, practically increased their scale of wages.

The factory laws of New York, and similar statutes, are all of recent origin, and Mr. Hill, the present Governor of the State, has often advocated their enactment in his various messages to the Legislature, and been greatly instrumental in obtaining friendly action upon them by that body, and he has unhesitatingly signed them all. We are hopeful that the near future will see them materially improved in those directions which experience has shown to be necessary, and that they will be rapidly added to in the progressive spirit which now seems to actuate public sentiment with regard to such matters in the Empire State.

It may be that the factory of the future will need no inspection; that no fire can destroy its occupants; that its buildings will be built upon a hygienic basis, and will have ample breathing space and sufficient pure air to satisfy the needs of its employes; that the prattle of the child will not be heard amid the din of its machinery; that the ambulance gong will seldom or never resound at the great doorway as it stops to gather up the form of the mangled operative; that there will be ample toilet-rooms to satisfy the desires of cleanliness and modesty; that the wages will compensate for the labor done, and that the employer will no longer regard his employe as of the earth earthy, and himself as the product of a Creator mayhap his own equal but not his superior. Until these things are come to pass, there will be need of factory laws and factory inspectors, and in the meantime let us continue to make it our earnest endeavor to prove, as it can certainly be done, that the statutes we are deputed by the people to enforce are financially, morally and materially, beneficial to the wage-earners.
